1341. MEMBRANE 10.

Feb. 12. Westminster. 22 Whereas the abbot and convent of Coggesale recently petitioned the king to the effect that they were lords of the manor of Tolleshunt Mauger, co. Essex, and had always had view of frank-pledge there until a certain bailiff of King Edward I persuaded William de Tolleshunt, then abbot, by reason of the said William's simplicity and sufferance, that he could not have it, whereby the said view had remained ever since in the king's hands, upon which petition the king appointed John de Bousser and John de Lyston to make enquiry concerning the matter; and it is now found by inquisition that the said abbot and convent are lords of that manor and ought to have the view aforesaid, that the manor with the view were formerly in the seisin of Nicholas de Boville and that he and all his ancestors and all other lords of the manor before that time had duly had the said view as belonging to the said manor, that Philip, son and heir of the said Nicholas, being seised, after his father's death, of the manor with the view had by his charter in the fortieth year of King Henry III enfeoffed Thomas Quyntyn, then abbot, and the convent of Coggesale aforesaid of the said manor with its appurtenances, whereto the said view belongs, to be held by them and their successors, that both the said Thomas and the said William after him, being his immediate (propinquior) successor, and their convent held the same for twenty-six years and more until Roger de Wyremundeford, bailiff of King Edward I in those parts, in the twentieth year of that king, hindered them in the enjoyment thereof as is aforesaid, and that by the sufferance of the said William and other abbots after him the said view has ever since been in the hands of the king: now the king, out of special affection for St. Mary, in whose honour the abbey was founded, and by reason of a fine which William Joldayn, abbot, has made with him, has restored to him and the convent the said view of frank-pledge, to be held by them and their successors for ever. By K. and a fine of 60*s*. Essex.

May 1. Westminster. 21 Grant, of special grace, to John de Orreby and his heirs of a weekly market on Wednesday at their manor of Candlesby, co. Lincoln, and of a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Benedict the abbot. By p.s. [13938.]

May 8. Westminster. 20 Grant, of special grace and for good service rendered, to Thomas de Metham and his heirs of free warren in all their demesne lands of Metham, Birsay and Polyngton, co. York, and Willey, co. Nottingham; also licence to the said Thomas to enclose his woods of Polyngton and Willey and make parks thereof, and to hold the same to him and his heirs without let or hindrance of the king or his heirs or any their ministers; and grant for life to the same that he shall not be put upon assises, juries or recognitions nor be made mayor, sheriff, escheator, coroner or other bailiff or minister of the king against his will. By p.s. [13997.]

May 4. Westminster. 19 Whereas king Henry III by his charters granted to the burgesses of Shrewsbury that they and their heirs or successors should not be convicted by any foreigners upon any appeals, charges (rettis), wrongs, trespasses, accusations (criminibus), claims or demands but only by their peers, burgesses of the town, save upon any matter touching the commonalty of the town in which case they should be treated according to their approved and used liberties, that they should have all their liberties approved and used in the time of himself and his ancestors, and that they should have all pleas and plaints except those belonging to the crown, that they should not be impleaded save within their borough concerning the lands and tenements which they hold therein, and that no sheriff should meddle with them concerning any plea or other matters relating to the said borough, saving to the king and his heirs the pleas of the crown which ought to be attached by the said burgesses until the coming of the king's justices; all which privileges the present king confirmed to the said burgesses with the addition that they should not be impeded in their enjoyment thereof by reason of any non-user in the past: now the king, at the request of Richard, earl of Arundel, and other magnates in the present parliament and for a fine which the said burgesses have made with him, desiring to declare plainly the privileges above expressed lest by reason of any ambiguity of general words the burgesses should hereafter be troubled therein, has made the following grants:—

that none of the burgesses or men of that town or others shall be impleaded or troubled upon any appeals, charges, wrongs, trespasses, accusations, claims, indictments or other matters made within the said liberty or arising therefrom save before the bailiffs of the town or be convicted by any foreigners but only by their peers of the town and liberty aforesaid, unless the matters in question touch the commonalty of the town, in which case they shall be treated according to their liberties approved and hitherto used;

that no burgess shall be put upon any assises, juries, recognitions or inquisitions made upon any accusations, trespasses or other matters taken before any justices or ministers of the king, but only (nisi) within the said town before the bailiffs thereof, and this concerning things done within the said liberty; saving only such matters as touch the crown and are done within the said town and liberty; that they shall have attachments, their own prison and the custody of all prisoners attached or adjudged to prison within their liberty, at the suit (ad sectam) both of the king and of others, until they are delivered there according to the law and custom of the realm; and that the bailiffs of the town may take reasonable fines of all convicted before them according to the law of the land; that all pleas and plaints arising within the said town and liberty shall be held before the bailiffs of the town and nowhere else, except such as belong to the crown, and that none of the burgesses or men there or others shall be impleaded concerning their lands or tenements within the town and liberty or arising therefrom before any justice or minister of the king, but only before their own bailiffs, by whatever writ or in whatever other way he may be impleaded, and that no minister of the king or his heirs shall have ingress to the said town and liberty or meddle with the burgesses or men thereof in the matter of any plea, plaint, occasion, trespass or other matter therein arising;

saving to the king the pleas of the crown which ought to be attached by the said burgesses until the coming of the king's justices.

MEMBRANE 9.

April 14. Tower of London. 18 The king, considering the good behaviour of the burgesses of Clifton Dertemuth Hardenesse and the great expense and loss they have suffered by reason of the war, and also because they have undertaken to find and fit out at their own cost two war vessels of 120 tons (dolia) burthen and with a double crew (eskippamento) to follow the king, whenever he call upon other ships of the realm to set forth, and to remain with him forty days from the day when they arrive at such place as he shall appoint, has made to the said burgesses and their successors the following grants :—

that they shall be quit of toll, pavage, murage, payage, cueragio, stallage, passage, anchorage, culage, pontage, barbicanage, quayage, strondage, sedage, wharfage, plankage, lastage, levage and all other customs of all their goods and merchandise throughout the king's realm and power; that they shall choose yearly a mayor from among themselves so he be suitable and loyal to the king, to keep their said borough and to hold pleas touching the same and to do there all other matters concerning them and their borough aforesaid together with the bailiffs thereof; which mayor shall after his election make oath upon the gospels before the commonalty of the borough to bear himself well in the preservation of the king's rights and of the liberties of the borough and in the execution of his office; that they may devise by their last will any lands and tenements which they hold within the said borough, without impediment of the king or his ministers, to any who are in the king's fealty; that they shall not plead or be impleaded save within their borough aforesaid before the mayor and bailiffs thereof concerning any tenures within the same (intrinsecis) or any trespasses, contracts or other matter done there or arising therein, unless such pleas touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the said borough; that they shall have infangenethef and outfangenethef and the return of the king's writs and summonses of the exchequer; so that no sheriff or other bailiff or minister of the king shall have ingress there to discharge any office in any matter touching the said borough, save by default of the mayor and bailiffs thereof;

that they shall not be put on assizes, juries, recognitions or inquisitions by reason of their lands or tenements without the borough (forinsecorum), or of such trespasses, contracts, agreements or other matters without the borough as may come before the justices or other ministers during their stay there; neither shall men from without be placed with them on assizes, juries, recognitions or inquisitions which may arise out of the lands or tenements within the borough or of the trespasses, contracts, agreement or other business occurring therein; unless such matter concern the king and his heirs or the commonalty of the said borough; that no forestaller shall be permitted there and that if any such be convicted he shall be subject to the due and customary punishment. By K. and C. and by p.s. [13882.]

May 8. Westminster. 17 Grant, of special grace and for good service rendered, to Nicholas de Ry and his heirs of free warren in all their demesne lands of Goseberkirke, Surflet, Pyncebek, Quaderyng, Wyhum and Donyngton in Holand; also of a weekly market on Thursday at their town of Goseberkirk and of a yearly fair there on the vigil and the day of St. Peter's Chains. By p.s. [13991.]

May 11. Westminster. 16 Grant, of special grace and for good service rendered in the march of Scotland, to Robert de Oggle, king's yeoman, and his heirs of free warren in all their demesne lands of Oggle, Aldenshelcs, Rouley, Shilvyngton, Heselrigg, Folbiry, Thrasterton and Hurtheworth; licence also to the said Robert to fortify his manse of Oggle with a wall of stone and mortar and crenellate it and so hold it of the king and his heirs without let or hindrance of them or any their ministers. By p.s. [14023.]

May 1. Westminster. 10 Inspeximus and confirmation in favour of William de Monte Acuto, earl of Salisbury, for the considerations specified in the last grant, of the following :—

1. A charter dated at the Tower of London, 16 August 11 Edward III. [Calendar, Vol. IV, p. 427.]

2. A charter dated at Westminster, 1 October 11 Edward III [Ibid. p. 432 : cf. p. 431] ;

With further grant, as in the last charter above, that the grants and gifts specified therein shall never lose force. By p.s.

MEMBRANE 3.

July 17. Tower of London. Inspeximus and confirmation, in favour of the burgesses of Welles and their heirs and successors, of a charter dated at Westminster, 10 June 18 Edward I [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 358] inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Chinon, 7 September 3 John [Archæologia, Vol. LI. p. 105].

With grant to the same, of further grace and for a fine of 40*l.* which they have made with the king, of the following privileges :—

that they shall be quit of toll, passage, pontage, lastage, stallage, paiage, quayage, tronage, picage, keueragio, morage, murage, works of castles, houses, walls, dikes, causeways and bridges and of all other aids and royal works throughout the king's realm and power ; that they may elect and create there from among themselves a mayor, bailiffs and constables of the peace for the better governance of the borough and the keeping of the peace, and coroners for the attachment of pleas of the crown, when they occur within the said borough and liberty ; who after making oath according to custom shall discharge the duties of their offices ; and that the coroners shall answer before the justices in eyre for the attachments aforesaid and the other duties of their office ; that there shall be a gaol in the said borough and that the burgesses shall have the keeping thereof and of all prisoners taken within their liberty ; that they shall have the return of all writs of the king and summonses of the exchequer in all matters touching their said borough or arising therein and the execution of the same by their mayor and other ministers ; so that no sheriff or other bailiff of the king shall meddle therein to make summonses, distraints or attachments within their liberty nor enter their borough to do anything concerning his office save by default of the said mayor, ministers or burgesses ;

that no one of them shall plead or be impleaded without the borough concerning lands or tenements within the bounds of the same or concerning trespasses, contracts or agreements arising within the said borough and liberty, but that all pleas of this kind shall be held within the borough before the mayor and bailiffs thereof and there determined; and moreover that they shall not, by reason of their lands or tenements within the borough or without so long as they stay within the borough, be placed upon any assises, juries or inquisitions with any men from without, nor shall such men be so placed with them, by reason of lands or tenements of that kind or of trespasses, contracts or any other matters within or without the said borough, but that assises, juries and inquisitions about matters which arise within the same and concern only the said burgesses shall be taken only in the borough; unless the pleas or the assises, juries or inquisitions aforesaid touch the king and his heirs or the commonalty of the borough;

Sept. 18. Westminster. 14

Whereas King Henry III, by a charter, which the king has confirmed [Calendar, Vol. I. p. 183] granted inter alia to the church of St. Etheldreda of Ely and Hugh the bishop and the prior there, that the said bishop and prior shall collect and have all the amercements of their men and lands in the hundred and half hundred of Midford, in the five and a half hundreds of Wyckelawe and the 'tryllyng' of Wyneston whether of other's fee or of their own; and that they shall have all fines from those amercements, when anyone has fallen into mercy; and that without the said hundreds they shall have all amercements of all their men, lands and fees and all fines arising from the said amercements as aforesaid; and that they shall have return of the king's writs in the said hundreds of all fees and without the said hundreds of all their own lands and fees; as in the said charter is more fully contained; and whereas in the said charter there is no special mention that the said bishop and his successors and the prior and his successors ought to collect and have these amercements and fines anywhere in any court (curia vel placea) of the kings, nor that they ought to have return of the summonses of the Exchequer; whereby these liberties may come to be doubted;

the king out of devotion to St. Etheldreda and affection for Simon, bishop of Ely, of a declaration of the sense of these general words, has hereby granted that the said bishop and his successors and the said prior and his successors shall collect and have all such fines and amercements, and all fines for licence to agree and for trespasses or other causes from all their men and lands within the said hundreds from all fees, and without the said hundreds of all their own men, lands and fees in whatever court of the kings the same may be imposed, provided that the same would have come to the king before this grant; so that the said bishops and priors may levy the same by their bailiffs without impediment from the king and his ministers; with further grant of return of the summonses of the Exchequer and all the king's writs in all fees in the said hundreds and in their own fees without them so that no sheriff or bailiff shall enter therein to do aught, save in case of default by the bishops and priors or their bailiffs. By p.s.

Sept. 20. Westminster. 13 Whereas the abbot and convent of Cyrencestre have informed the king, that they and their predecessors have held the church of St. John the Baptist, Cyrencestre, with the chapels of Baudyngton and Wyggewolde and St. Cecily to their own use from the time of the foundation of the abbey which is before the memory of man, and also the hospitals of St. John and St. Laurence in that town which were founded for the support of the poor and which are kept up out of the endowments of the said abbot and convent, in which hospitals the said abbot and convent have placed and removed wardens as often as was needful, and also the wood of Okleye from the time of the foundation of the abbey, which wood is not within the metes of the king's forest; and that Richard, king of England, by his charter gave to the then abbot and convent the manor of Cirencestre, with the seven hundreds and all other appurtenances in frank almoin, on rendering therefore to the Exchequer 30*l.*, and that John, king of England by his charter confirmed that gift, by virtue of which gift and confirmation the abbot and convent have always hitherto held the towns of Cirencestre and Minty, which make up the manor of Cirencestre, and had view of frank pledge, return of writs, infangenethef and the custody of prisoners within the said towns and hundreds as appurtenant to the said hundreds, whereof the towns of Cirencestre and Minty are as it were one hundred ; and that the said abbot and convent have always tallaged their tenants of the said manors as tenants of ancient demesne, when the king tallaged his boroughs and demesnes ; and that they have had two weekly markets on Monday and Friday in the town of Cirencestre and reasonable toll in that town throughout all the week of all merchandise there bought and sold, from the time aforesaid ;

but that nevertheless, the said abbot and convent have been impeached and disquieted as well on the aforesaid matters as on the allegation that a borough was being set up in Cirencestre (quod unus burgus in Cirencestria in grosso per se habebatur), which the said abbot and convent were alleged to be doing by way of purpresture on the king without warrant, and that thereon presentments were made in the chancery and inquisitions and proceedings taken before Robert Parvyng late the chancellor and continued in other of the king's places (placeis) ;

whereupon the said abbot and convent prayed the king for a remedy ; now the king out of devotion to St. Mary and for a fine of 300*l.* has hereby granted, of special grace, to the said abbot and convent that they and their successors should have the said church of St. John the Baptist with the said chapels and also the hospitals and wood aforesaid, and also the said town of Cirencestre complete, so that they shall not in future be impeached touching any borough in Cirencestre, and the said town of Minety, with the seven hundreds, in frank almoin, by rendering at the Exchequer 30*l.*, and also that they shall have in the said towns and hundreds, view of frank pledge, return of all writs, infangenethef and the custody of prisoners as appurtenant to the said hundreds, tallage of their tenants in the towns of Cirencestre and Minety when the king tallages his demesnes, together with the two weekly markets and the toll aforesaid ; notwithstanding any presentations, inquisitions or proceedings had thereon. MEMBRANE 5.

Dec. 22. Westminster. 1 Inspeximus and confirmation in favour of John de Sancto Paulo, provost of Wells, of the following :—

1. A charter of Jocelin, bishop of Bath, as follows : Robert, formerly bishop of Bath, and Reginald his successor both added to the goods of the church of Wells ; following in whose footsteps Jocelin with the assent of the chapter desires to provide that the parsons who are bound to continual residence in the church of Wells shall have at hand (de proximo) the revenues required for their support ; and therefore the bishop decrees that the church of Pilton shall be the precentorship (precenteriam) of the church of Wells ; and that from the manor of Cumbe, where that office formerly was, eight prebends shall be made ; of which manor the bishops shall always give the office of provost (preposituram) to one of the canons of Wells, who shall thence pay 40*l.* yearly to the canons ; and whereas the church of Wynesham was formerly assigned to the chancery of the church of Wells and to one prebend of 100*s.* and is distant from Wells, the bishop has hereby ordained that in future the church of Kyngesbury shall be assigned to that office, and from the church of Wynesham 100*s.* shall be appointed for one prebend and the residue for another; and with the common assent of the chapter the bishop has ordained that the church of Evercriz shall fall to the office of treasurer of the church of Wells, so that the treasurer shall provide for the church of Wells fitting lights in cierges and candles and also incense (thimiama et incensum) and all things that William, late treasurer was bound to provide in the said church; and the church of St. Cuthbert in Welles with the assent of Thomas, treasurer of Wells, the bishop has assigned to the commun fund (commune) of Wells, excepting the land, rent and meadow of that land, which belonged to William late treasurer of Wells in Wells; and considering that the office of succentor of Wells is of small value, with the assent of Alexander the dean and Hugh the archdeacon and the chapter, the bishop has assigned for the augmentation of that office the land and alder-grove and moor of Landshareleg, late of the archdeacons of Wells; and the bishop with the assent of the dean and chapter and of Thomas the treasurer has conferred upon the same office of succentor all the land, rent and meadow of the land which William the treasurer had in the manor of Wells, except the land (area) on which were the houses belonging to the said William, which the bishop with the counsel of the dean and chapter caused to be pulled down to extend the cemetery of Wells. Given by the hand of the bishop and of Alexander the dean of Wells and the chapter at Wells, 4 nones of March, in the second year of the pontificate.

2. A charter of Jocelin, bishop of Bath and Glastonbury, whereby after setting forth that formerly with the counsel and assent of R. the dean and the chapter of Wells he ordained that of the manor of Cumba and the church of that town there should be one provostship and one provost in the church of Wells, who should pay yearly to nine other canons of Wells ten marks each and should retain the residue by way of a prebend and provostship, the bishop acknowledged that it has been found that the said manor and church could not support so great a burden and therefore added to the said provostship with the counsel and good will of L. the dean and the chapter the church of Cerda and decreed that the manor of Cumba and the churches of Cumba and Cerda should be one provostship and that one provost should be instituted therein by the bishop, who in addition to the other charges imposed thereon should render yearly at Wells in the chapter for the service of St. Mary there instituted by the bishop 10 marks yearly by way of 'beneficium,' and another 10 marks yearly to a new prebend, to which the bishop has appointed (canonicavimus) Master William de Kainesham, and which shall be equal to the other prebends in charge and honour. Done in the chapter of Wells, 8 Ides June, in the 10th year of his pontificate.
3. A consent of Thomas the precentor and the chapter of Wells to an ordinance of Jocelin, the bishop, touching the manor of Cumba. [Calendar of the MSS. of the Dean and Chapter of Wells, Vol. I. p. 58.]
4. An ordinance of Jocelin, bishop of Bath, touching the union and endowment of the two provostships of Cumba and Winesham dated on the morrow of Christmas in the chapter of Wells in the 29th year of his pontificate. [Ibid. p. 244.]

5. A confirmation by Thomas prior of Bath and the convent of the foregoing.
6. A declaration by Robert, bishop of Bath and Wells, Thomas the dean and the chapter of Wells that in that church there has been of old instituted an administration of the common goods of that church without right to receive commons or residue and without a stall in the choir or a place in the chapter specially assigned, and that since by reason of its name 'prepositura' it may be doubted whether it be a title (titulus) or no, they hereby declare that the said provostship is not a title of a dignity, personatus or prebend in the said church and has no cure of souls, but is only an administration or office of charge of a farm ordained for the better care of the common goods, and wont to be conferred by the bishop; given in the chapter of Wells, 7 day of April, A.D. 1290.
7. A charter whereby Rainaud bishop of Bath confirmed the gift made by Richard son of Waldric to the church of St. Nicholas, Cumba, of a messuage late of Luingus with two courts (curitillis) inner and outer on the east side of the church, and of a little piece of land on the west of the church, enclosed in a wall on the left side of the way towards Stanton, and of an acre and a half of land by the spring called 'Berengar's spring,' all quit of secular service and exaction; witnesses, Master Ralph de Lechelad, Jocelin the chaplain, Herman de Wiflescomb, Geoffrey the clerk, German the clerk.
8. A charter whereby Jocelin, bishop of Bath, granted to William, provost of Cumba, a croft in his manor of Welington, lying at Gatteweye, to be held by the said William and his successors, who hold the church of the manor by rendering yearly to the bishop 2*s*. yearly; given at Wermenistre by the hands of Walter de Maidestan, 4 Ides October, in the 31st year of the pontificate.
9. A charter of William the dean and the chapter of Wells confirming the foregoing.
10. A charter of Thomas the prior and the convent of Bath, confirming the foregoing charter No. 8.
11. A charter of Rainald, bishop of Bath and Wells, giving to the church of St. Mary, Wellington, a ferling of land, to wit the land of Stodham, which Edric the miller held, and the wood next to that land to be held from the bishop and his successors, on condition that the rector of Wellington shall keep up the chapel of St. Lawrence, and rebuild and repair the same when needful; witnesses, Thomas, archdeacon of Wells, Walter prior of Bokeland, Master Ralph de Lechelade, Stephen de Thornaco, Master Roger the leech (medico), Thomas de Dinand, Geoffrey the clerk, Hugh the clerk.
12. A charter of Jocelin, bishop of Bath, inspecting and confirming the last charter; dated at Witham Friary by the hand of Walter de Maidenstane on the morrow of St. John before the Latin Gate, in the 32nd year of the pontificate.
13. A charter of John the dean and the chapter of Wells inspecting and confirming No. 11 above.
14. A charter of Thomas the prior and the convent of Bath inspecting and confirming No. 11 above.

15. A charter whereby Jocelin, bishop of Bath, gave to William provost of Cumba eighteen acres of land in the bishop's manor of Welington, of which twelve acres lie at Stodham on the west side of the demesne of the church of Welington and six acres lie at Kaggebere, which acres John Bacun held ; and also granted to the said William a holding (coter') which William de Rewe held and a croft called Baggelegh ; to be held by the said William and his successors, who hold the church of Welington, by rendering to the bishop and his successors 4*s.* yearly ; dated at Nuny by the hand of Master Walter de Maidenstan, the first Saturday after the feast of St. Luke the Evangelist, in the 33rd year of the pontificate.

15. A charter of the chapter of Wells inspecting and confirming No. 15 above.

16. A charter of Thomas the prior and the convent of Bath inspecting and confirming No. 15 above.

17. A charter of Jocelin, bishop of Bath, restoring to the church of St. Mary, Wellington, and William provost of Cumbe a land with alderwood on it, called Prestelegh and a little meadow called Spurtemed which are within the bishop's wood of Welington, and which belonged to the church of Welington before the ordinance made thereof touching the provostship of Cumbe, whereby the foregoing were reserved to the bishop ; provided always that if the bishop or his successors shall wish to enclose the said wood, it shall be lawful for them to retain the land and wood on paying reasonable compensation to the rector of the said church ; dated at London on the day of St. George the martyr in the 33rd year of the pontificate.

18. A writing whereby the chapter of Wells inspected and confirmed the foregoing No. 17.

19. A charter, whereby Jocelin, bishop of Bath granted to William, provost of Cumba, a share (partem) of land in the bishop's manor of Welinton lying between the bishop's demesne called ' Scipeland ' on the north and the demesne of the church of Welinton, called ' Stodham ' and between the bishop's fish-pond there and the land of Godfrey de Welinton, to be held by the said William and his successors, rectors of the said church, by rendering yearly to the bishop and his successors 12*d.* Dated at Woky by the hand of Master Walter de Maidenstan on the morrow of the Epiphany, in the 34th year of the pontificate.

20. A writing whereby the chapter of Wells inspected and confirmed the foregoing No. 19.

21. A charter, whereby Jocelin, bishop of Bath, after a pious preamble, declared that when Stephen, bishop of Waterford, with him on 7 Ides of August, A.D. 1239, dedicated the church of Winesham belonging to the provostship of Cumba in honour of St. Mary, he endowed it by conferring upon the provostship of Cumba in the name of the church of Winesham the advowson of the vicarage of the church of Welington with archidiaconal jurisdiction in the same parish, decreeing that William provost of Cumba and his successors should present for the vicarage of the church of Welyngton a fit vicar to the bishop on voidancy. Dated at Winesham 7 Ides August in the 34th year of the pontificate ; witnesses, Walter de Sancto Quintino, Master Walter de Maidenestan, Hugh de Rumenel, Walter de Cusinton, canons of Wells, Master John le Enter, Bartholomew the clerk.

22. A writing whereby Jocelin, bishop of Bath, after a preamble, declared that when Stephen, bishop of Waterford in his presence at his bidding on the vigil of St. Laurence, A.D. 1239, dedicated the church of Cumb belonging to the provostship of Cumb in honour of St. Nicholas, he himself endowed it by conferring upon the provostship of Cumb in the name of the church the advowson of the vicarage of the church of Cerd with archidiaconal jurisdiction over that parish, decreeing that William, provost of Cumba, and his successors should present for the vicarage of the church of Cerd fit vicars on voidancy; provided also that the vicarage shall be free from the obligation of paying 40*s.* yearly to the provost, with which it was charged; and lest the provostship should be mulcted by this deed of the bishop and consent of the said William, the bishop by way of recompense for the said 40*s.* has given to the said William the provost and his successors the mill of Fordethun with the manse and land which John miller of the said mill held, and the mill of Hornesbogh which Richard de Hornesbogh formerly held, to hold with all liberties and customs and the suits of the bishop's men; and has further granted to the said William and his successors the mill of Suthcerd with the manse and land which Robert the miller held, to be held by rendering yearly 20*s.* to the bishop. Dated at Cumba by the hand of Walter de Maidenestan on the vigil of St. Laurence, in the 34th year of the pontificate; witnesses, Master Walter de Sancto Quintino, Hugh de Rumenal, chaplain, Master John le Enter, Walter de Cusington, Stephen the chamberlain, Thomas de Altavilla.

23. A charter whereby the chapter of Wells inspected and confirmed the foregoing charter No. 22.

24. A charter whereby Thomas the prior and the convent of Bath inspected and confirmed the foregoing charter No. 22.

25. A charter, whereby the prior and the convent of Bath inspected and confirmed a charter of Roger, bishop of Bath and Wells, dated at Chyw, A.D. 1247, being a gift of the mill of Cerd to William, provost of Cumb, rector of the church of Cerd. [Calendar of the MSS. of the Dean and Chapter of Wells, p. 79]. Dated at Bath in the chapter, September, A.D. 1247.

26. A charter, whereby Jocelin, bishop of Bath declared that at the dedication of the church of Cerd in honour of St. Nicholas, he endowed the said church by conferring upon the provostship of Cumb in the name of the said church the advowson of the vicarage of the church of Cerd, decreeing that William, provost of Cumb and his successors should present fit vicars to the said vicarage on voidancy, providing also that the vicarage should be quit of a yearly payment of 40*s.* to the provost, and giving to the said provost in compensation the mills of Fordetun and Hornesbogh; and further hereby granted to William, provost of Cumb, and his successors the mill of Tateworth, which Robert the miller held, to be held by the said William and his successors by rendering 22*s.* 11*d.* yearly to the bishop. Dated at Cumb, 5 Ides August, in the 34th year of the pontificate.

MEMBRANE 6.

July 6. Reading. 11 Whereas the king has heard that diverse felonies and robberies have been done upon the highway of Fosse between the city of Lincoln and the town of Newark because there is no town near nor any men dwelling there and the prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England has requested that for the greater safety of travellers there and the repressing of ill-doing he may build a town or hamlet and settle men there upon his own ground in a place called Swynderby More hard by the said way of Fosse and at his manor of Aycle which is of the ancient demesne of the crown ; in which place the chief resort (reperium) of such felons is said to be ; now the king has given licence to the said prior to found anew a certain chapel in honour of the Holy Trinity in the said place, to build a town and houses about it, to enclose plots of ground (placeas) and to demise these at his will to men ready to inhabit them for the entertainment of travellers on that road ; and to hold the said chapel and the said place so built and inhabited as a town or hamlet to him and his successors the statute of mortmain notwithstanding. Further the king has granted to the said prior and his successors in the said place a weekly market on Saturday and two yearly fairs, one on the feast of St. Barnabas the

Aug. 26. Westminster. 9 Grant, of special grace, to Robert de Ufford, earl of Norfolk (sic), and his heirs of a weekly market on Thursday at the town of Wynterton, co. Suffolk (sic), and of a yearly fair there on the vigil of St. Matthew the Apostle and the eight days following. By K.

MEMBRANE 5.

Oct. 8. Westminster. 8 Whereas the king lately by letters patent gave to Giles de Bello Campo in discharge of 40*l.* which King Edward, the king's father, by his letters patent gave to the said Giles, the manor of Fresshwater in the Isle of Wight, to be held by him and his heirs of the king and his heirs by the accustomed services; now the king for good service rendered, has further granted to the said Giles that he and his heirs shall have in the said manor the return of all the king's writs, amends of the assize of bread and ale of their men and tenants there, and wrek and wayf, infangenethef and outfangenethef, and all other liberties and free customs which the king or any other lord thereof had while it was in their hands. By p.s.

Oct. 24. Westminster. 7 Whereas by inquisition ad quod damnum [File 276, No. 18] it was found, that it would not be to the king's prejudice to grant to Robert de Ufford, earl of Suffolk, view of frank pledge in the town of Wynterton, co. Suffolk (sic), but that it would be to the diminution of the farm of the hundred of Westfleg in 20*s.*, and that the said town is held of the earl himself and other lords but not of the king: now the king, of special grace, has granted the said view to the aforesaid earl and his heirs, rendering yearly therefor 20*s.* at the Exchequer at the accustomed terms by the hands of the bailiff of the hundred or the sheriff of the county. By p.s.

Oct. 4. Westminster. Whereas the prior and convent of Henton of the Carthusian order by charter of King Henry III have a yearly fair at their manor of Henton co. Somerset on the vigil, the day and the morrow of the Decollation of St. John the Baptist, and whereas by the clamour, noise and violence of men frequenting this fair, which is held in a place close to the church, the holy offices and the devotion of the convent are in various ways disturbed and the said prior and convent have returned their said charter to be cancelled in the Chancery; now the king, at their request, has granted that they shall have in lieu of their said fair at Henton a fair at Norton in the same county at the time aforesaid. By p.s.

April 11. Tower of London. 16 Inspeximus of letters patent of Edward, prince of Wales, dated at Berkeweye, 3 April 20 Edward III, whereby the prince inspected and confirmed in favour of the burgesses of Coventre, being tenants of the manor of Cheilesmore, co. Warwick, now held by Queen Isabel with remainder to him, the said prince, letters patent of the said Queen dated at Castle Rising, 1 February 19 Edward III, confirming for her life-time to the said burgesses, with the king's licence, the following :—

the king's grant to the burgesses that they should have and elect a mayor and bailiffs and so forth ; [see above, p. 36, under date 20 January 18 Edward III.]

the king's grant to the said queen for her life, and to the prince of Wales and his heirs after her death, of cognisance of all pleas within the liberty and view of frank pledge of their manor of Cheylesmore and within the town of Coventre, return of writs and summons of the Exchequer, chattels of felons and fugitives and a gaol for the custody of ill-doers ; [see above, p. 39, under date 16 June 19 Edward III.]

the king's grant to the said queen for her life that she and all her men and tenants of the manor aforesaid should be quit of pavage, passage, lestage, etc., and she should have the return of all writs and summonses of the Exchequer, the chattels of her said men and tenants being felons or fugitives, all fines and all amercements, forfeited issues, etc. [see above, p. 33, under date 23 August 18 Edward III].

all the foregoing to be held, received and enjoyed by the said burgesses, their mayor and bailiffs in the same manner as the queen herself had them, together with the market, fair and view of frank pledge which she also held in the same place, rendering to her for life yearly the sum of 50*l.* in equal portions at Easter and Michaelmas :

the prince also granted that the aforesaid liberties should be continued after the queen's death to the said burgesses, their heirs and successors, rendering to him and his heirs yearly the farm above said ; saving to him and his heirs their liberties without the town :

and confirmation of the foregoing, notwithstanding the fact that the queen had not used any of the aforesaid liberties before she granted them to the burgesses nor had they been allowed to her, and that the prince made his grant without the king's licence :

with further grant, of special grace, that the burgesses, their heirs and successors may elect to themselves a coroner who, after due oath made before the mayor and bailiffs, shall discharge all the duties of that office. By p.s. [17407.]

Oct. 24. Westminster. 17 Grant, of special grace, to John de Hudleston, and his heirs, of a weekly market on Wednesday at their manor of Botil, co. Cumberland, and of a yearly fair there on the vigil and the day of the Exaltation of the Cross and the two days following. By p.s. [18957.]

Oct. 16. Westminster. 16 Whereas king Henry III among other liberties granted by him to the master of the hospital of the Maison Dieu of Dovorr' and the brethren thereof, granted that they, their men, lands and tenements should be quit of aids, as is more fully contained in the said charter, which the king has confirmed, and the said master and brethren have petitioned the king, setting forth that this grant is made under general words, and that they therefore are compelled to contribute with others in proportion to their possessions in all subventions and aids granted to the king, whereby they are reduced to such poverty, that they cannot support themselves out of their property nor provide for the charges incumbent on them according to their foundation, and praying that they may be freed from these charges by special words; the king, therefore, considering the intentions of the said King Henry the founder of the hospital, who did not wish the hospitalities, alms, chantries and other pious works of the hospital to be diminished but rather to be increased, lest poor men begging their usual support should be turned away, and those received in the said hospital cast out to the peril of their life, has hereby granted, of special grace, to the said master and brethren that they and their successors shall be quit of all tallages, charges, subsidies, grants or aids, granted or to be granted to the king and his heirs by the clergy or commonalty of the realm of England, notwithstanding that any such tallages, subsidies or aids have been exacted since the foundation of the hospital and duly paid. of Roderham, which the former had by the gift of John de Lexinton, with the advowson, lands, services of free men and tenants, escheats, and all else appurtenant to the said moiety, to be held by the said abbot and convent of Rufford and their successors from the abbot and convent of Clairvaux and their successors by rendering yearly at St. Bernard, Paris, to the purveyor (provisori) and cellarer of the monks there studying 20*l.* of good, lawful and whole sterlings worth at least 4 turonenses, on the feast of St. Bartholomew the apostle, without delay, excuses or fraud (malo ingenio, fraude vel defectu); so that if the abbot and convent of Clairvaux or the purveyor and cellerer aforesaid incur any loss or expense by default (defectu) of payment, the general chapter or principal (pater abbas) of the said house of Rufford shall compel the said abbot and convent by censure of the order to the full payment and repayment of damages and expenses, the amount of which shall be referred to the consciences of the purveyor and cellarer; the first term of payment to be on the feast of St. Bartholomew A.D. 1280; with clause of warranty providing that if those of Rufford lose possession of the said moiety by negligence, malice or default, they shall still be held bound to the same payment; and providing also that if at any time they of Rufford are impleaded touching the said church so that they are compelled for this warranty to summon the abbot of Clairvaux to England, they shall give him proper notice thereof, and if he cannot come, they shall bring some one from the court to the realm of France to receive the attornies of the said abbot of Clairvaux, if the statutes of the realm are not altered, and they shall maintain the suit at their own costs and charges; the seal of either abbey being appended to the part in the possession of the other.

3. Letters patent dated at Westminster, 18 November 16 Edward III. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1340–1343, p. 559.]

4. The tenor of a record and process before William de Vescy and his fellows, justices of king Edward I for the pleas of the forest of Shirewode, taken in the 15th year of that king's reign and brought up into the Chancery:—

Pleas of the forest of Shirwode at Notingham before Sir William de Vescy, Thomas de Normanval (sic) and Richard de Creppinges, justices in eyre for the pleas of the said forest, on the morrow of St. Hilary in the 15th year of king Edward pleaded by the foresters and verderers following. The men of Clipston and Edenestowe have complained by Robert son of Ralph de Edenestowe that they ought to have and have always been wont to have, take, uproot and collect through all the wood of the abbot of Ruchford, which is within the bounds of the forest of Shirewode, heath, fern and leaves, until they were prevented by brother William forester of the said abbot to their great loss; being questioned if they had any right thereof, they say that from time immemorial they have been wont to do this; and pray to be allowed to prove this by a good inquisition of the verderers, regarders and ministers of the forest. And the abbot Henry of Rufford, who is present, makes the same prayer. Wherefore the ministers of the forest were ordered to come to an inquisition; who say upon their oath that the men of Clipston and Edenestowe ought to take nothing thereof, nor are they wont so to do save by the grace or will of the abbot or his forester; and it was adjudged that in future the said men should neither take nor collect nor root up aught save by the licence or good will of the abbot and his forester.

Which judgement the king has hereby exemplified.

With further grant of the following :—

the gift of Robert de Waddesleye of a messuage, a toft, an acre and forty-six feet of land in length and fifteen feet in breadth, 9*s.* 8*d.* rent and the rent of one pound of pepper in Roderham and Merkesburgh, with the homages and services of John de Gotham, Richard Hawys, William Malcus, William le Arewesmit, John Loselund and Hugh le Feure and their heirs for the lands they hold in the said towns;

MEMBRANE 14.

April 16. Westminster. 24 Whereas by charters of previous kings of England, which the king has confirmed, it was granted to the burgesses of the king's town of Hedon in the liberty of Holdernesse, that they and their successors should have all the liberties, customs and quittances, which the citizens of York and Lincoln have, and whereas the said burgesses of Hedon have petitioned the king setting forth that they and their ancestors burgesses of that town have always used and enjoyed some liberties, customs and quittances fully expressed in the charters of former kings made in favour of the citizens of York and Lincoln, from the time of the grant of such charters to the burgesses of Hedon as aforesaid by virtue of the said general words, yet that they have been impeded in such use and enjoyment by the king's ministers and others, and fear that they may be still further impeded in the future under pretext of the generality of the said words, and praying the king to specify the said liberties as contained in the charters of the said citizens; now the king considering the aforesaid petition and that the burgesses of Hedon will in future pay a further sum beyond the farm for which they are to answer, and for the betterment of the town, which the king has reserved to his chamber, and being willing to declare more plainly the said liberties, customs and quittances, has hereby granted to the said burgesses that they and their heirs and successors shall hold the said town with liberties, rights, wastes, vacant places and all appurtenances at fee farm by rendering therefore yearly to the king at the manor of Brustwyk 24*l.* as formerly and also 6*l.* of increment yearly at Easter, Midsummer, Michaelmas and Christmas in equal portions, saving the king the prison of all prisoners who may be indicted and taken in the liberty of Holdernesse without the said town and all other profits arising from the said prison and all new rents hitherto acquired by the king's bondmen in the said town and to be acquired in future; and that the king's stewards and bailiffs of the manor of Brustwyk shall hold in the hall of pleas in the town of Hedon the wapentake of Holdernessee and other foreign pleas, of felonies, contracts and trespasses arising without the town in the liberty of Holdernesse; and that the burgesses and their successors shall have the said hall and prison and keep them up at their own expense; and that the said burgesses shall have a commonalty among themselves and may chose a mayor and bailiffs, a coroner and other fit ministers from among themselves yearly, who after taking the usual oaths shall do and keep all that pertain to their offices in the said town;

and that for the quiet of the men of that town and the merchants coming thereto a seal shall be kept in the said town to be ordained by the king in two pieces as is usual for taking recognizances of debts there according to the form of the statutes of merchants, and that the greater part of that seal shall remain in the custody of the mayor, and the lesser part in the custody of a clerk to be appointed by the king according to the statutes, and that the mayor and clerk shall take the recognizances of debts according to the statutes; and that the same shall duly be put in execution; and that no burgess of the town shall plead or be impleaded without the town touching lands which they hold within the town nor of any trespass in the same save before the mayor and bailiffs of the said town; and that the burgesses shall have in the liberty of the said town infangthef and outfangthef; and that they by one or two persons bearing letters patent of the commonalty may be able to demand their court and liberties before the king or his justices of the Bench or any other justices, bailiffs or ministers of the king and his heirs, and have their court of all persons, matters and plaints, which pertain to them or their court; and that they may freely bequeath (legare) all their lands, rents and tenements in the said town to whom they will as their chattels; and that they shall be quit of toll, murage, pontage, pavage, stallage, wharfage, terrage, picage, carriage, seiage, lastage, quayage, passage, through all the king's realm of England and elsewhere in his power; and that the burgesses on account of any lands or tenements in the said town or of any trespass there done shall not be put upon assizes, juries or inquisitions to be taken without the said town; and that all dwelling in the said town and there doing merchandise and wishing to enjoy these liberties shall be in gild, lot and scot with the said burgesses in talliages, contributions and other common charges falling upon the commonalty of the town; and that the burgesses shall not be convicted by any foreigners touching any appeals, indictments (rettis), injuries, trespasses, charges, claims and demands laid against them or committed in that town, but only by their fellow burgesses, unless the commonalty of the town be in fault or the matter touch the whole commonalty or the king; and that they may take distress (namia) for their debts within the liberty of their town, and have their gild merchant and hanses in the said town; and that the burgesses through all the king's realm and power shall have this liberty; that they and their goods wherever found in the king's realm and power shall not be arrested for any debt whereof they are not sureties or principal debtors; and that in future they shall have, as well in the king's presence as out of it, assize of bread and ale, the keeping and essay of measures and weights and all else belonging to the office of the market, and they shall punish, correct and amend duly all trespassers against the said assize and all defects of measures and weights and other matters belonging to the said office of the market, so that neither the clerk of the market nor any other minister of the king shall enter the said town to do aught that belongs to the office of the said market;

and the mayor and bailiffs of the said town shall have return of all the king's writs and executions thereof and of summonses of the exchequer, and cognisance of all pleas of lands, rents, tenements, trespasses, agreements and contracts arising in the said town as well in the king's presence as in his absence without impediment from the king or his ministers, so that the king's stewards and marshalls shall in no wise intermeddle in the cognisance of such pleas of trespasses, agreements or contracts, unless such arise in the king's household between the members thereof; and the burgesses shall be able to sue to claim and have the said liberties along the middle of the port there to the mid line (medium file) of the water of Humbre, provided that they do not meddle with the town of Paghelflete nor in any matter arising in that town or with the men thereof in the port of Paghelflete; and they shall have pillory, tumbrel and 'thewe' in the town of Hedon, and the first purchase of all merchandise coming within the water of the port of that town, excepting always the king's ministers;

provided always that the burgesses render to the king the said farm of 30*l.* at the said terms at the said manor; and that they maintain at their own cost the said hall of pleas and prison and all the bridges belonging to the said town of Hedon, which the king was wont to repair and amend, by the view of the steward of Holdernesse or his deputy.

By letter under the seal called 'le Griffoun.'

April 10. Westminster. 15 — Inspeximus and confirmation of a charter dated at Haveryng, 7 August 7 John [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 157] in favour of the burgesses of Huntendon ; and because the said burgesses fear that they may be in future impeached touching liberties and customs, which they have hitherto used under the general words contained in the said charter, and which other boroughs and towns in the realm of England have specifically (specie), on the ground that such liberties and customs are not specifically mentioned in the said charter, and have prayed the king to declare such liberties and customs specifically ;

the king for the betterment of the said town, through which there is frequent passage of the magnates and common people (popularium) of the realm, and for the assuring of the tranquillity of the said burgesses, in consideration of a fine has hereby specified and granted the following liberties which are enjoyed by other boroughs and towns in the realm of England ;

the burgesses shall have returns of all writs and summonses of the Exchequer and executions thereof in all matters arising within the liberty of the town, so that no sheriff or bailiff or minister of the king shall enter the said liberty to execute the same save in case of default by the bailiffs of the town ;

the burgesses shall answer at the Exchequer for all demands and summons of the Exchequer touching them within the said town ; the burgesses shall have in the said town a gaol for all those who may be taken, attached or apprehended in the said town for felonies, trespasses or other offences there committed, to be there kept by those whom the burgesses may appoint thereto, until those of them, who cannot be delivered by the bailiffs of the town, shall be delivered by the king's justices for gaol delivery according to the custom of the realm of England ;

the burgesses shall be quit of toll, murage, pavage, pontage, tallage, lastage and passage through all the king's realm and power ; they shall have cognizance of all pleas by their bailiffs, of lands, tenements, rents within the said town, of trespasses, agreements, contracts and plaints arising within the liberty or committed touching any tenants or residents within the said town and liberty ;

they shall not be put with foreigners on assises, juries or inquisitions which shall arise to be made by reason of tenements, trespasses or foreign matters, as long as they abide in the said borough nor shall any foreigners be put with the burgesses on assises, juries or other inquisitions, which shall arise to be made by reason of any lands or tenements in the said borough or trespasses, agreements or internal matters ; and they shall not be convicted by foreigners of any pleas arising within that borough, but only by their fellow burgesses, unless the matter touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the borough.

MEMBRANE 9.

Feb. 10. Westminster. 12 Whereas lately the king for the better declaration of the general words contained in charters of former kings of England in favour of former bishops of Ely and the prior and convent thereof, whereby the said bishops, prior and convent were to have, as they assert they have had, all forfeitures of the men and tenants of others and of other's fee as well as of their own men and tenants and of their own fee in the two hundreds within the isle of Ely, in the hundred and a half of Midford and in the five hundreds and a half of Wykelawe and the trilling of Wyneston, being sueh forfeitures as could belong to the king's progenitors, granted by charter to the then bishop of Ely and the prior and eonvent the right to reeeive all the forfeitures that eould belong to the king in the said hundreds from the said men and tenants pursuant to the said eharters ;

and whereas, although certain bishops and the prior and eonvent have thereby reeeived forfeited issues from the said men and tenants and had allowanee thereof at the Exchequer, yet these allowances have been impeaehed by eertain of the king's ministers interpreting the word 'forisfacturas' differently, whereupon Thomas now bishop of Ely and the prior and convent there have petitioned the king to grant to them forfeited issues of their said men and tenants by speeial words ;

now the king out of affeetion for the ehureh of Ely and St. Etheldreda and in consideration of a fine and for the removal of such questions has hereby granted to the said bishop, prior and convent that they and their sueeessors shall receive and have all forfeited issues within the said hundreds and half hundreds as well of the men and tenants of others and other's fee as of their own men and tenants and of their own fee for past time as for future in whatever eourt of the kings sueh issues may be adjudged to be forfeited, if they would have belonged to the king had they not been granted to the said bishop, prior and convent, so that the said bishop, prior and convent and their suecessors may levy the same by their bailiffs without impediment from the king and his ministers. By p.s. and fine of 200 marks.

July 1. Westminster. 10 — Inspeximus and eonfirmation in favour of John, bishop of St. Davids, of a charter dated at Wallingford, 8 March 25 Henry III, inspecting and confirming with additions a charter of Henry II dated at Pembroke. [Calendar, Vol. I, p. 258.]

By fine of ½ mark paid in the hanaper.

July 10. Westminster. 9 — Grant, of speeial graee, to the abbot and convent of Whalleye of a weekly market on Thursday at their town of Hordern in Aumondernesse, and of a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Denis. By p.s.

July 17. Westminster. 8 — Inspeximus and eonfirmation in favour of the mayor and burgesses of Coventre, tenants of the manor of Cheilesmore, of letters patent of Edward, prince of Wales and duke of Cornwall, the king's eldest son, dated at Westminster, 12 March 22 Edward III, inspeeting letters patent of Isabel, queen of England, dated at Castle Rising 12 February 22 Edward III to the following effect :—

After reeiting the tenor of a charter of King Edward III [dated at Westminster, 20 January 18 Edward III. No. 3. See above p. 36] and also of a further charter [dated at the Tower of London, 16 June 19 Edward III. No. 13. See above p. 39] and of another eharter [dated at Westminster 23 August 18 Edward III. No. 9. See above p. 33] deelaration that the said queen has granted and demised at fee farm to the mayor and bailiffs and men of Coventre tenants of the manor of Cheilesmore all the liberties contained in the said charters for the term of her life; and that they shall have and take by themselves or their deputies, chattels, fines, amercements ransoms, forfeited issues, forfeitures, year day and waste and all else that the queen might have taken by virtue of the said charters; and that they shall have cognizance of pleas touching these matters to be held by the mayor and bailiffs, and the mayor and bailiffs shall hold those pleas and do justice thereon and execute returns and summonses and make attachments according to their office and the tenor of the said charters; and they shall keep the gaol of the town, and have the custody of the prisoners therein; moreover the mayor and bailiffs and the said men shall have a market, fair and view of frank pledge in the said town for the said queen's life, as she herself has had and used the same; rendering to her yearly 50*l.* at Easter and Michaelmas in equal parts.

And all this the said prince of Wales has hereby confirmed, and further grants that after the death of the said queen the mayor and bailiffs and men of Coventre, tenants of the said manor of Cheilesmore shall continue to have the said liberties without impediment on rendering the said farm at the said terms, saving to the prince all the liberties and other matters without the said town, which are to remain to him under the king's charter.

And all this the king hereby has confirmed notwithstanding that the said Queen Isabel had never used the said liberties before her demise of them, and that they had never been allowed to her; or that the prince had demised the remainder of these liberties to the said mayor, bailiffs and men without obtaining the king's license; and of further grace has granted to the said mayor, bailiffs and men, their heirs and successors that they may choose a coroner for themselves in the said town to do all that belongs to his office, who on election shall make oath before the mayor and bailiffs according to custom and shall thereafter discharge his office. 8. Letters patent dated at Leeds, 18 August 17 Edward I. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1281-1292, p. 320.]

9. A charter whereby Hugh, earl of Chester after greeting all his men and especially his steward, bailiffs, foresters, men and tenants of Coventry, and after a pious preamble, forbade all the foregoing to disquiet the religious men, the prior and monks of his mother church of Coventre touching their lands ; and ordered that all the lands and tenements with the appendent liberties of the said monks should be quit of all exaction, claim and impediment from the earl, his heirs or ministers, as the founders and feoffors held them and gave them ; and further prohibited all the foregoing from intermeddling in the fees of the monks or their demesne or in their market which is set up on the land of the church, or from in any way troubling the men who may wish to come to that market with their merchandise ; and for the avoidance of future disputes declared that the boundary between the fees and demesne of the religious and that of the earl begins at the cemetery of the chapel of St. Michael in Coventry and runs straight by the broad gate (latam portam) of the earl's castle between the tenements of William de Repyngdon and William son of Richard Forthwyn tenants under the monks on the north side and the earl's fee on the south side, and goes down to the brook (rivum aque) of Smythesford and thence up the brook to the mills of Gerard le Vineter of Hull and Radeford up to Cundealm and turning aside between the land of Robert Scot of Ailwardesich beside Blakemore lands and the tenements of R. Beaufitz and Anketill Locard on the one side and the earl's wood of Haselwode on the other and so along the brook of Evedemere to the highway running through the middle of Harenhal along the country of Stoca to the gibbet and thence down hill along the land of Bissel to the brook of Goseford and along the brook and the dike by the land of W. Hakun to the close of the priory and there the boundary ends ; witnesses, Edmund archdeacon of Coventre, Ralph Meynilwarin, G. son of Pigot, William de Aula, Nicholas son of Liulf and his brethren, William the clerk.

July 1. Westminster. 7 — Inspeximus and confirmation with clause licet, in favour of John de Wynewyk, king's clerk, now parson of the church of Wigayn and lord of that borough, and of his successors, parsons and lords of the same, of a charter dated at Newminster, 7 June 7 Edward II [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 237], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Woodstock, 26 August 30 Henry III.

Further grant that even if the said borough or its liberties have before the late justices in eyre for the county of Lancaster or any other justices of the king or his progenitors at any time whatsoever been taken into the king's hand on account of abuse or not claiming of the said liberties or for any other reason, the said John and his successors shall nevertheless have and enjoy the said borough with all liberties belonging to a free borough, all liberties and quittances contained in the foregoing charter, and all liberties and free customs which he or his predecessors have enjoyed in time past for themselves or their burgesses in the said borough or elsewhere, without let or hindrance by the king and his heirs or any their ministers.

Grant also to the said John and to his successors, parsons and lords as aforesaid, of view of frankpledge of all their men and tenants in the said borough and in the liberty thereof and of others dwelling there: also of cognisance of all pleas, both pleas of assize and others, by their bailiffs there, that is to say both concerning lands, rents and tenements within the said borough and liberty and concerning trespasses, agreements, contracts and disputes arising within the same; and grant that no burgess or other dwelling in the borough shall plead or be impleaded before the king and his heirs or any their justices, sheriffs or ministers without the said borough concerning lands or tenements within it or concerning trespasses, agreements or contracts arising as aforesaid, but all such pleas which may chance to be summoned or attached before the king and his heirs or their justices de Banco or other justices or ministers or in the county or elsewhere, to be pleaded without the borough or within it, shall be pleaded and determined within the borough before the bailiffs aforesaid and no others; and that the burgesses shall not be convicted upon any pleas arising within the borough by strangers but only by their fellow-burgesses, unless such pleas touch the king and his heirs or the said parson or the community of the borough; also that the said bailiffs may make executions within the said borough and liberty of all things recovered or acknowledged (recognitis) before them and of losses (dampnis) adjudged before them without let or hindrance of any.

Grant also that since there is great resort of merchants and others to the said borough for trade and other matters the said John and his successors, parsons and lords as aforesaid, shall have there a seal to be ordained by the king of two pieces, according to custom, for taking recognisances of debts according to the form of the statute of merchants: of which seal the greater part shall remain in the keeping of the mayor or keeper of the borough or other honest man to be appointed out of the more important and discreet of the burgesses with the assent of the said John or his successors, if the mayor or keeper be not there, and the smaller piece shall remain in the keeping of a clerk to be appointed there by the king and his heirs according to the form of the said statute; and the said mayor, keeper or other person and the said clerk shall take recognisances according to the form aforesaid and those recognisances shall be reduced to writing and shall be put in due execution and so forth as has been the custom in the case of recognisances so taken by mayors or keepers and clerks elsewhere within the realm. March 6. Westminster. 18

Grant, after a suitable preamble, to the warden and canons of the king's chapel of Windsor, and their successors of the following privileges :—

(1) that they shall be quit of all aids, contributions and tallages in respect of their lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels present and future ;

(2) that when the clergy of the realm or the provinces of Canterbury and York separately shall grant a tenth or any other quota of their spiritualities or ecclesiastical goods, or the commons of the counties or the citizens, or burgesses shall grant a tenth or fifteenth or other quota of their temporalities or moveables or of their lands, rents and tenements, or the king or his heirs shall tallage their demesnes throughout England, or the Pope for the time being impose a tax upon the clergy of England or of one of the provinces of Canterbury and York and grant the same or a part thereof to the king, the said warden and canons shall not be taxed nor shall any part of the said tenths, fifteenths, tallages or other quotas be levied from them for the king's use ; nor shall they by their lands, tenements, rents, goods or chattels be distrained or interfered with ;

(3) that if at any time the men of the counties of the realm, or of any county or other place, or their lands, possessions or goods be assessed at any sum for the furnishing (munitione) and

equipment (apparatibus) of men-at-arms, hobblers, archers or footmen to serve with (pro obsequio) the king or his heirs, or for guarding the coast, or if the said men of the realm make fine for the remission of any such burdens, the said warden and canons and their successors shall be quit of all such charges and expenses ;

(4) that they shall hold all their houses as well those within the king's castle of Windsor as those elsewhere in the realm of England free of livery of stewards, marshals or other ministers of the king and his heirs and of marshals, purveyors or other ministers of the magnates of the realm and others ; so that no steward, marshal or other minister of the king or his heirs or of any other shall make any livery in their houses against their will ;

(5) that no duke, earl, baron or magnate of the realm or of any other place, nor any stewards, marshals, escheators, sheriffs, coroners or other bailiffs or ministers of the king, nor the bailiffs or ministers of the said escheators, sheriffs or coroners nor any other shall on any pretext be entertained or lodged by the said warden and canons against their will ;

(6) that they and all their men and tenants in all their lands and fees shall be quit of toll, pavage, pontage, quayage, murage, passage, paiage, lestage, stallage, tallage, carriage, pesage, picage, barbicanage, terrage, scot and geld, hidage, scutage and works of castles, parks and bridges, enclosures and building of royal houses, as also of suit of counties, hundreds and wapentakes, of all manner of aids of kings, their sheriffs and bailiffs, of view of frankpledge and murder and of common mercy (misericordia) when the county is put in mercy before the king or his justices of the Bench or in eyre, and of all other such customs throughout the king's realm and power ;

(7) that they shall have the chattels of their men and tenants, being felons or fugitives, of all their lands and fees as well those already bestowed upon them as those hereafter to be given or assigned ; so that if any such for a crime (delicto) ought to lose life or limb, or fly or refuse to stand to judgement, or commit any other crime for which he ought to lose his chattels, wherever justice ought to be done of him, in the king's court or in any other, his chattels shall belong to the said warden and canons, and they or their ministers may, without hindrance of the king or his sheriffs, bailiffs or ministers, put themselves in seisin thereof, and keep them ;

(8) that they shall have all fines for trespasses and other delicts, fines for licence to agree and all amercements, redemptions, forfeited issues and forfeitures, and year, day and waste (vastum sive streppum), with all that could belong to the king thereof, of all their men and tenants of all the lands and fees given or assigned to them or hereafter to be given or assigned, in whatsoever court of the king, whether before himself, or in the chancery, or before the treasurer and barons of the exchequer, or the justices of the Bench, or before the steward and marshal, or the clerk of the market of the king's household, or in any other courts, before the justices in eyre or those for common pleas or pleas of the forest or any others, in the presence of the king or in his absence, such fines, forfeitures and so forth, may be made or adjudged, being such as would have belonged to the king or his heirs if they had not been granted to the said warden and canons ; so that they may, by themselves or their bailiffs, levy, take and hold the same without let or hindrance of the king and his heirs or any their ministers ;

(9) that they shall have all animals called 'wayf' or 'stray' found upon their lands and fees unless any follow them and prove ownership or unless they be claimed within a certain proper time according to the custom of the country;

(10) that lest their goods and chattels in the lands, they have or shall have, should be taken and wasted by purveyors and takers of victuals and other matters in the household of the king and his heirs or any other, they, their lands and possessions and their goods and chattels in all places shall be in the king's special protection henceforth; and that nothing of their corn, hay, horses, carts, carriages, victuals or other goods, chattels or matters, or those of their men shall be taken against their will for the use of the king or any other by any purveyors or other officers, but that if any such enter their lands to make purveyance as aforesaid and take away anything of their goods or chattels, they shall, upon conviction before the Chancellor, the justices of any of the king's benches or the barons of the Exchequer, or any other justices of the king or the steward and marshal of the king's household, make restitution of the matters taken or, if they cannot, be compelled to pay their true price immediately, incurring besides a penalty of thrice their value, which penalty they shall pay before they leave the court in which they were convicted, one moiety of it for the king's use for the contempt done to him and one moiety for the said warden and canons;

(11) that they shall not be compelled to find pension, corrodies or maintenance for any from their chapel or other possessions at the request or mandate of the king or his successors;

(12) that they shall have free warren in all their demesne lands already bestowed upon them or to be bestowed, even if they be within the limits of the king's forest;

(13) that they shall have a weekly market on Wednesday at their manor of Evere, co. Buckingham, and a yearly fair there on the vigil and the day of St. Peter's chains and the two days following;

(14) that they shall hold all their lands already bestowed or hereafter to be bestowed upon them with soc and sac, infangenthef and outfangenthef, and have view of frankpledge of all their men and tenants of their lands given or to be given to them with all belonging thereto;

(15) that they may have in their lands aforesaid 'thewe,' pillory or tumbril for the punishment of malefactors and may erect a gallows upon their land and may have judgement done of malefactors taken there according to the liberties of infangenthef and outfangenthef before mentioned without let or hindrance of the king and his heirs or any their ministers;

(16) that they shall be discharged and quit of all suits and pleas of the forest and of summonses, plaints and all other actions belonging to or touching the king and his heirs or the forest, justices of the forest or other officers thereof in respect of the lands and tenements given or to be given to them; as also of the lawing of their dogs, of maintenance and puture of foresters or other ministers of the forest and of all charges, fees or dues (curialitatibus) which the officers aforesaid have in the past exacted or claimed; further of gelds, danegelds and scutages when they run (currant); of the money belonging to murder or larceny and of guard and custody of castles, of works and repairs of bridges, castles, parks, fishponds, walls, dams, banks (walliarum), causeways (calcetorum) and all manner of enclosures; of assises, summonses, aids of sheriffs and their bailiffs, and all things belonging thereto; of conduct of treasure and all aids, common assise and amercement (misericordia) of counties and hundreds, and of all actions belonging to the king, of wardpenny, averpenny, tithingpenny and hundredpenny, of grithbrech, forstall, and homsoken, blodwite, fightwite and leyrewite, lastage, pannage and assart and waste of forest, provided that they do no destruction, waste or other offence in the forests, woods or parks of the king; and if they do any harm in the forests, parks or woods of the king beyond or against the liberties and quittances above granted, then without any imprisonment or heavy redemption it shall be amended;

(17) that they shall have the return of all writs and all summonses of the Exchequer and attachments of pleas of the crown and other pleas in all their lands and fees; so that no sheriff or other bailiff or minister of the king shall enter their lands or fees to make execution of writs or of summons of the Exchequer there or attachment of any pleas, saving in case of default of the said warden and canons or their bailiffs.

(18) that they shall have their leets and 'lawedayes' of all their men and tenants aforesaid and others who are bound to come thereto by right or custom, together with the amends of the assize of bread and ale broken in their lands or fees;

(19) that they shall have cognisance of pleas concerning trespasses, contracts and other matters in their courts of all their men and tenants within their fees aforesaid;

(20) that they shall hold all their lands and fees given or to be given to them with wards, marriages, reliefs, escheats, forfeitures and other profits and issues which the king could have or which he ought to take if the lands had not been granted as aforesaid of the tenents of the fees aforesaid;

Jan. 1. Tower of London. 4 Gift, of special grace, after a suitable preamble, to the dean and secular canons of the chapel which the king has founded to the honour of God, St. Mary and St. Stephen in his palace of Westminster, of the following:—

a place within the king's palace aforesaid, towards the north, stretching in length between the walls of the said chapel and the Receipt of the Exchequer and in breadth from the wall of the king's great hall of Westminster to the waters of Thames, to make their close there and the houses necessary to their said chapel; the foregoing to be held by the said dean and canons and their successors together with free access therefrom to the said chapel by day or night by the gate next the king's bridge (pontem regium), where there is already an entrance to the chapel, of which gate they shall have the keys ;

the chamber within the gate aforesaid which formerly belonged to the clerk of the king's kitchen ; also other buildings (domos) within the palace which were appointed (ordinatas) as stables for the king's destriers (dextrariorum) and other horses ; also the king's garden lying in length and breadth between the said houses and the hostel (hospicium) late of . . , earl of Kent, in the town ot Westminster ; also the said hostel as fully and freely as the king himself had it of the gift of John, late earl of Kent ; and the tenements in the town of Westminster late of Roger de Heydon the king's surgeon (surigici), deceased, which tenements the heirs of the said Roger for themselves and their heirs released to the king and his heirs ; all the foregoing to be held by the said dean and canons and their successors of the king and his heirs and the other chief lords of the fees in frank almoin ; that if any on pilgrimage (peregre) or by reason of devotion come to visit the threshold (limina) of the said chapel, they may have access thereto during daylight by the great hall of Westminster, without let or hindrance of the king's ministers of the palace ; for which purpose the said dean and canons shall have the keys of the doors (ostia) of the said hall ; together with grants of the following liberties to the said dean and canons for the better carrying out of their religious duties :—

that they shall be quit of aids for knighting the king's eldest son or for marrying his eldest daughter and of all aids of kings, contributions and tallages which might be exacted from them for the king's use in respect of the lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels which they do now or shall in the future hold ; and that whensoever the clergy of England or the provinces of Canterbury or York separately shall contribute any tenth or other quota of their spirituality, or when the commons of the counties or the citizens or burgesses of the realm shall grant any quota or tax of their temporal goods, moveables, lands, rents or tenements to the king, or when the king himself or his heirs shall tallage their demesnes, or when the pope shall impose any tenth or other quota upon the clergy of the realm or of the provinces of Canterbury or of York and grant the same or a part thereof to the king, the churches and benefices appropriated to the said dean and canons, their lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels shall not be so taxed, assessed or tallaged nor themselves in any way charged or vexed therein ; nor shall they contribute to the provision or equipment of men-at-arms, hobblers, archers or foot soldiers for the king's service in any parts or for the defence of the coast ;

that they shall hold all their buildings within the palace and town of Westminster and elsewhere quit of livery of stewards, marshals and other ministers of the king and his heirs, and of stewards, marshals, purveyors and ministers of queens, of the king's sons and of the sons of his heirs and of magnates and others, so that the said officers shall not make any livery in the houses of the said dean and canon against their will or the will of their successors or their ministers there ; and that no duke, earl, baron or other magnate of the realm or of any other place, nor any steward, marshal, escheator, sheriff, coroner or other minister of the king nor their bailiffs nor any other of any rank or condition shall lodge or stay in their said houses against their will;

that they and their successors and all their men and tenants dwelling in their lands, tenements, fees and places shall be quit of toll, pavage, pontage, quayage, murage, passage, paage, lestage, stallage, tallage, carriage, pesage, barbicanage, terrage, scot and geld, hidage, scutage, works of castles, parks and bridges, enclosures and of building and repairing of royal houses, of suits of counties, hundreds and wapentakes, of view of frankpledge and murder and of common amerecement, whenever the county is amereed before the king or his justices, or those of his heirs, whether justices of the bench, justices in eyre or others; that they shall have the chattels of their men and tenants, being felons or fugitive, of all the lands and fees already conferred or in the future to be conferred upon them or their chapel; so that if any such men, tenants or residents for any deliet ought to lose life or limb or fly or refuse to stand to judgement or commit any other deliet by reason of which he ought to lose his chattels wherever justice ought to be done of him, whether in the king's court or elsewhere, the said chattels shall go to the said dean and canons, and they or their ministers without let or hindrance of the king or any his ministers may at once put themselves in seisin and hold them to their own use;

that they shall have all fines for trespasses, oppressions, extortions, excesses, concealments and other deliets, under whatever form of words or subtlety such fines may be made, with fines for licence to agree, fines for having charters and writs and for all other causes, and with all amerements, redemptions, forfeited issues and forfeitures, year, day and waste and all things which belong to the king and his heirs therefrom, and murders from all their men and tenants of their lands and fees aforesaid and also from residents therein in whatever court of the king the said men, tenants and residents may be adjudged to pay the fines and amercements as aforesaid, whether before the king himself and in the Chancery, or before the treasurer and barons of the exchequer, or before the king's justices of the bench, or before the steward and marshal, or the clerk of the market of the king's household, or in any other court of the king or his heirs, or before the king's justices in eyre for common pleas or for pleas of the forest, or before any other justices or ministers of the king, as well in his absence as in his presence which profits would have accrued to the king, if these lands had not been granted to the said dean and canons; all which they shall have even though the said men, tenants or residents be escheators, sheriffs, taxers or other officers of the king, or ministers of the said officers, or hold of the king or his heirs or others there or in any other place; so that they and their successors by themselves or by their bailiffs and ministers may raise, take and keep all such fines, amercements, redemptions and so forth without let or hindrance of the king and his heirs or any their ministers; that they shall have wreck of sea (wreccum maris) and the animals called wayf and stray found on the lands and fees of their chapel aforesaid, unless any follow the said animals and prove them to be his or they be claimed within a proper time according to the custom of the country; that, in order to prevent their goods and chattels or those of their men and tenants being taken or wasted by purveyors and takers of

victuals and other things for the king's household or those of the queens, the king's sons or the sons of his heirs or of any magnates or others, they and their successors, their chapel and all the lands and possessions already conferred or in the future to be conferred on it, their goods and chattels and those of their men and tenants, wherever they be found, shall be in the king's special protection; so that nothing of the corn, hay, horses, carts, carriages, victuals or other goods, chattels or matters belonging to themselves and their successors, their chapel, or their men and tenants shall be taken for the use of the king and his heirs or queens, the king's sons or his heirs' sons, nor for that of magnates or any others, against the will of them the said dean and canons, their ministers or men and tenants by any purveyors, takers or other ministers of the king or any other: and if by chance the purveyors or takers of anyone thall have entered the lands and fees of the said dean and canons or their men and tenants to make any such purveyance and shall have carried off anything therefrom, being duly convicted thereof before the Chancellor, the justices of any of the king's benches, the Barons of the Exchequer, or any other justices of the king or the steward and marshal of his household, in one of which courts by the choice of the said dean and canons the king wills that the matter shall be brought and decided, they shall make restitution of the matters taken or, if that be impossible, shall restore the true price thereof; and they shall incur besides a penalty of thrice the value of the matter taken, and being convicted shall pay the same before they leave the court, one half to the king's use for the contempt done him and one half to that of the said dean and canons for their prosecution, without delivery or bail unless it be by the assent and free will of the said dean and canons; that they shall not be compelled to pay any pension, corrody or maintenance at the request or mandate of the king out of their said chapel or other possessions; that they shall have free warren in all their demesne lands already conferred upon them or to be conferred in the future, even if they be be within the limits of the king's forest upon penalty of 10*l.* whereof half shall be levied to the king's use and half go to the said canons; that they shall have and hold all their lands and tenements as aforesaid with soc and sac, infangenethef and outfangenethef; and shall have view of frankpledge of all their men and tenants; also that they may have there, if they will, thwe, pillory and tumbril for the punishment of malefactors, and may cause gallows to be erected and judgement to be done of malefactors taken there according to their liberty of infangenethef and outfangenethef aforesaid without let or hindrance of the king and his heirs or any their ministers;

that they shall be free and quit of suits and pleas of the forest and of summons and plaints (querelis) and all other actions pertaining to the king or his heirs, his forest or his justices and other ministers of the forest in respect of lands already conferred or in the future to be conferred upon them; also of expeditation of dogs, of maintenance and puture of foresters and other ministers of the forest, and of all other charges, fees and dues (curialitatibus) which the said foresters or ministers have been able aforetime to exact or claim (vendicare); also of gelds, danegelds, scutages when they are run (currant) and of the money belonging to murder or larceny; of regard and keeping of castles, and of works and repairs of bridges, castles, parks,

fishponds, walls, dams, banks (walliarum), causeways, and all manner of enclosures; of assises, summonses and aids of sheriffs or their ministers with all pertaining thereto; and of conduct of treasure and all other aids whatsoever, of common assize, county amercements and hundreds and of all actions belonging to the king, of wardepeny, averpeny and hundredpeny, of grithbrech, forstall and homsoken, of blodewite, wardwite, hengwite, fightwite, lairewite, lastage, pannage, essart and waste of forest, provided that they do no destruction, waste or other delict in the king's forests, parks or woods; and if they do any such delict or damage therein beyond or against their liberties above granted it shall be amended without imprisonment or heavy redemption; that they shall have return of all writs and attachments as well of pleas of the crown as of other pleas in all their lands and fees; so that no sheriff, bailiff or other minister of the king shall enter their said lands and fees to make execution of writs or attachments of pleas as aforesaid or to do any other office there save in case of default by the said dean and canons; that if any of the vicars or choristers of their chapel aforesaid or any other of their servants shall within the bounds (septa) of their said chapel or dwellings lay violent hands upon another of the chapel or of the servants as aforesaid, yet lightly so that no serious wound (enormis lesio) is caused, they or their lieutenant (locum tenens) may have cognisance, correction and punishment of this offence without interference from the keeper of the king's palace or any other royal minister; that they shall have their leets and lawedayes of all their men and tenants and of residents in their lands and fees, who ought by law and custom to come to them, together with the amends of the assise of bread and ale in their lands and fees aforesaid; and that they shall have cognisance of all pleas both of trespasses and contracts and of other matters in their courts of all their men and tenants and of residents within their fees aforesaid; and they shall hold all their said lands and fees together with wards, reliefs, escheat, forfeitures and other profits, issues and emoluments, which would belong to the king and his heirs in respect of those fees if the said fees were in their hands, of all their tenants thereof although they hold of the king or of any other, there or elsewhere, in chief as of the crown or in any other manner.

Further grant that the said dean and canons shall hold all the possessions which they have of the king's gift in frank almoign free of all secular service.

Grant also that even if in the future they or their successors abuse or fail to use the liberties above mentioned by reason of negligence or by any chance, they shall not on that account be hindered in their enjoyment thereof at any time when they see fit to make use of them.

that no secular person or minister of the king should interfere in anything concerning the said borough and the dwellers therein, but only the abbot and convent and their ministers; and the abbot and convent have now represented to the king that by virtue of that charter, from time immemorial up to the present time they have always had by their justices, bailiffs and ministers all pleas of the crown concerning all manner of felonies and trespasses within the said borough in this way, to wit by taking indictments and appeals concerning all homicides, murders, robberies, larcenies (latrociniis), burglaries and all other felonies and trespasses, together with such seditions as do not touch the king's person, occurring within the borough, both ex officio and at the suit of a party or in any other manner, and the execution of the said indictments and appeals according to the law and custom of the realm; and that they, the said abbot and convent, have always made and had coroners within their borough aforesaid to take appeals and abjurations and to supervise the view of casualties (aventurarum) and to do all else belonging to the office of king's coroner without the borough; for the view and exercise of all which liberties they fear that they may in the future be put to diverse losses (dampna) because there is no express mention thereof in the charter and confirmations aforesaid:—

grant, of special grace, after due consideration of the intention of the said kings, with a view to the greater security of the said abbot and convent, out of close devotion to the king and martyr St. Edmund, whose body has been translated to the said monastery, and by whose intercessions and merits the king hopes to prevail over his enemies, as also out of particular and merited affection for the abbot, prior and convent and because of the true religion which flourishes there, that they and their successors, abbots and convents of the said place, shall have by their justices and bailiffs within the said town all pleas of the crown concerning all manner of felonies and trespasses, as also of conspiracies, confederations, leagues (alligationibus), unlawful meetings (conventiculis), maintenances or favouring of malefactors or of quarrels (querelarum), extortions, oppressions, falsities, deceptions, threats, taking bribes from both sides (ambidextriis), champarties (cambipertus), concealments, vexations (gravaminibus), excesses, procuring of false indictments, duress (duritiis), injuries and all other misdeeds: so that the justices or bailiffs may henceforth take, hear and determine all indictments and appeals concerning such matters within the said borough either ex officio or at the suit of a party, and the ministers aforesaid may make executions of the same according to law and custom; grant also that the said abbot and convent may make and have coroners in their said borough to take appeals and abjurations there, to supervise view of casualties and to do all else belonging to the office of king's coroner without the borough; so that the said abbot and convent may be in no wise vexed in the future on account of their past use the foregoing liberties by the king or his heirs or their justices or other ministers;

grant also, for the better security of the abbot and convent, that no justices of pleas coram Rege, justices of the Bench or in eyre, or appointed to take assises, juries or certifications or for gaol delivery, or of oyer and terminer or to take inquisitions, no stewards or marshalls or clerks of the market

Nov. 14. Westminster. 4 — Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the citizens of Waterford, of a charter dated at King's Langley, 16 June. 2 Edward II [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 129], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Woodstock, 16 June 16 Henry III. [Ibid. Vol. I. p. 157.]

Excepting always the following clauses in the aforesaid charter of Henry III, namely :— that no strange merchant shall buy in the city from any stranger corn, hides or wool, but only from the citizens ;

no stranger shall sell cloth in the city by retail ; and that no recognition shall be taken in the city ;

with further grant, of special grace, of the following :—

whereas in the charter of King Henry III above, it is contained that no citizen of Waterford shall plead without the walls of the said city for any plea, but that he shall plead within the walls of the city in the Guildhall, saving pleas of foreign tenements not belonging to the hundred of that city, for the fuller declaration of this article, the king has hereby granted to the said citizens, their heirs and successors that the mayor and bailiffs of the city in the Guildhall shall have cognizance of all pleas as well of tenures within the said city and liberty as of trespasses, agreements and contracts therein arising, and execution of judgements rendered in those places before them, saving always the ordinances of the staple made by the king and his council ; and that no citizen shall plead or be impleaded without the city of lands or tenements within the said city and liberty or of trespasses, agreements or contracts therein arising or of any other matters, unless the pleas touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the city ; and that the said citizens, their heirs and successors shall not be put with foreigners on any assizes, juries or inquisitions which may arise to be taken by reason of tenements, trespasses, agreements, contracts or other foreign matters, so long as they abide in the said city ; nor shall foreigners be put with the said citizens on assizes, juries or inquisitions arising to be taken for the same reasons within the said city ; nor shall the citizens in any pleas arising within the said city and liberties be convicted by foreigners but only by their fellow citizens, unless the matter touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the city ; saving always the ordinances of the staple.

And for the betterment of the city the citizens shall have the following liberties :

the mayor of the city to be chosen yearly by the citizens shall make due oath before his predecessor in office and the commonalty of the city in the Guildhall, unless the Justice of Ireland or any baron of the Exchequer shall be in the said city at the time of the election, before whom in that case the mayor shall take oath, provided that the mayor shall not be compelled to come without the said city before the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer for that purpose ;

the mayor and bailiffs of the city may account by proper attornies, appointed under the seal of the commonalty of the city, before the treasurer and barons at the Exchequer of all accounts and debts touching them or the commonalty of the city and shall be admitted to render accounts at the Exchequer by the said attornies, provided that thereby the payment of the king's debts be not delayed ;

all ships and boats entering the port of the city between Randowan and Rodyhak and all other ships and boats being within those bounds shall be laden and unladen at the said city, as has been used hitherto, and not elsewhere without the licence of the citizens ; in the said city there shall be a seal of the king's according to the form of the statute of Acton Burnell, of which the greater part shall be in the custody of the mayor or keeper of the city and the lesser part in the custody of a clerk to be appointed by the king; and the mayor or keeper and clerk shall take recognisances of debts in the said city and make obligatory letters upon such recognisances under the said seal; and the clerk shall write and enroll the said letters with his own hand; and on the certificate made into the chancery in due form on the said recognisances, writs shall be granted for taking the debtor and further process and execution of the recognisance according to the form of the statutes.

By K. for 100*s.* paid into the hanaper.

Nov. 19. Westminster. 2 Whereas the king has founded upon his land (solo) at Derteford a monastery of sisters of the order of preachers with houses, cloisters and enclosures to be a priory and dwelling for a prioress and thirty-nine sisters to be there enclosed, to be under the rule and habit of St. Augustine and the obedience of the prior of Langeleye of the said order, and also for the said prior of Langeleye and his vicars when they shall come thither and for the brethren of that house who shall abide in the said priory by the orders of the prior and minister to the prioress and nuns in divine services; and whereas the said priory has been founded by the king in honour of St. Mary and St. Margaret and for the health of the king's soul and of those of King Edward II and of Eleanor, sometime queen of England, mother of that king;

the king has hereby given to St. Mary and St. Margaret and the said prioress and sisters the said monastery with its houses, cloisters, closes to be held from the king in frank almoin; and has also given to the prioress and sisters 100*l.* receivable yearly at the Exchequer at Easter and Michaelmas in equal portions, until the king or his heirs shall provide them with 100*l.* of land or rent in suitable places.

And the said prioress and sisters and the prior of Langeleye and the fifty-nine brethren of the order residing at Langeleye shall be maintained in victual, clothing and all other necessaries out of the said 100*l.* and all lands, tenements and rents which may be given by the king or others and from the fruits of any churches which they may have licence to impropriate, according to the direction and ordinance of the prior of Langley.

By K. on the information of the treasurer.

Dec. 26. Eltham. 1 Grant, of special grace, to the abbot and convent of Newenham, co. Devon, of a yearly fair at their manor of Plenynt, co. Cornwall, on the vigil, the day and the morrow of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist. By p.s. [23308.]

31 EDWARD III.

1357. MEMBRANE 4.

Feb. 8. Westminster. 8 Whereas John Herlyng holds certain lands in Estherlyng and Quydenham, co. Norfolk, and Gnateshal, co. Suffolk, for life with remainder to William de Walton, parson of the church of Hoghton, William atte Hagh, parson of the church of Banham, Bartholomew Pult', parson of the church of Westwrotham, Edmund Gonevill and Hugh Payn, chaplain, the king, of special grace, has granted to the said John for his life and the aforesaid William, William, Bartholomew, Edmund and Hugh and their heirs free warren in all their demesne lands of the said manors. By p.s. [23336.]

March 12. Reading. 7 Grant, of special grace, to Roger Larcher, king's yeoman, and his heirs, of free warren in all their demesne lands of Redlesworth, co. Norfolk, Wylesham Floketon, Someresham, Holton, Brindewenham and Stretford, co. Suffolk. By p.s.

May 10. Westminster. 6 Inspeximus and confirmation in favour of the men and burgesses of Newcastle upon Tyne of the following charters :—

1. A charter dated at Westminster, 8 December 22 Edward I [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 434], inspecting and confirming the following :—
   (1.) A charter dated at Westminster, 2 July 18 Henry III. [Ibid.]
   (2.) Letters patent dated at Westminster, 18 October 36 Henry III. [Patent Roll, 36 Henry III, m. 1.]
2. A charter dated at York, 12 November, 12 Edward II [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 392], inspecting and confirming with additions a charter dated at Durham, 28 January 17 John. [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 219.]

and whereas the burgesses of the said town have petitioned the king, setting forth that the moor and field called Castelfeld and Castelmore on the north side of the town of Newcastle from a place called Inglerdike to the east by the metes placed up to a place called le Thornbuske by the cross and thence by the bounds and metes placed towards the town of Newcastle up to the gallows, and between the posts of the gallows so that one post shall be on the march between the land of the prior of Tynemouth and the land of the said town and so to the Quareldike and thence along the high-way to the said town are the land and soil of that town belonging to it from time immemorial with all profits thence arising, as appears by an inquisition taken thereof and returned into the chancery ; and that although the burgesses from the time that they have held the said town at fee farm have held the said land and moor as appurtenant to the town and taken the profits thereof without dispute, yet they fear since there is no mention thereof in their charter, that they may be questioned in the future thereof ; and that the town by reason of the last pestilence and dangers of wars and other adversities is so impoverished and destitute of men that the profits of the town do not suffice for the payment of the farm ; and whereas the said men have prayed the king for a remedy herein ;

the king has hereby granted that the burgesses and their heirs shall hold the land and moor aforesaid by the aforesaid bounds as appurtenant to the town with all the profits thereof, as they ought to have held them and have held them since the date of the said charter and letters, with power to dig and have mines of coal and stones therein, and make their profit thereof in aid of the farm of the town without impediment. By K. and C. and fine of 40*s.* paid in the hanaper. [See Brand, History of Newcastle, Vol. II. p. 164, n.]

Aug. 12. Westminster. 5 Grant, of special grace, to the prior of St. Saviour, Holandbrigge, of a fair on the feast and the morrow of St. Luke the Evangelist, and of another fair on the feast and the morrow of St. Mary Magdalene, at the town of Holandbrigge, co. Lincoln. By p.s. [23547.]

MEMBRANE 2.

May 1. Westminster. 4 Whereas the king, for good service, has given by letters patent to Richard de la Bere 40*l.* of land of the lands late of Roger de Mortuo Mari, earl of March, the grandfather of the present earl of March, which among the other lands of the former earl by reason of a judgement rendered, whereby that earl was condemned to death, came to the king's hands ; and whereas the said judgement was afterwards annulled and the said lands were restored to the present earl as kinsman and heir of the said Roger, whereupon the said Richard has petitioned the king, setting forth that he holds to him and his heirs from the king at fee farm a mill in Mawardyn, co. Hereford, by rendering yearly at the Exchequer 5 marks, and praying that by way of compensation for the said 40*l.* of land that farm might be remitted ;

the king, of special grace and for good service, has remitted to the said Richard and his heirs the said farm, so that they shall hold the said mill discharged thereof ; and has further granted to the said Richard and his heirs a weekly market on Tuesday at their manor of Kynardesleye, co. Hereford and a yearly fair there on the vigil and the day of St. James the Apostle. By p.s.

Oct. 20. Westminster. 3 Grant, of special grace, to Thomas de Ingelby and his heirs of a weekly market on Monday at their manor of Ripplay co. York, and of a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of the Assumption. By p.s.

MEMBRANE 4.

Sept. 20. Leeds castle. 8

Whereas William de Edyngdon, bishop of Winchester founded a religious house of regular brethren of the order of St. Augustine at Edyndon in the diocese of Salisbury with the king's licence in honour of SS. Mary and Katharine and All Saints, and for the support of the rector and brethren there and the support of the charges of the said house endowed the same, and with the king's licence made dispositions for the increase of the endowment; the king, considering the good services of the said bishop and his wise and faithful discharge of the high offices held by him, wherein he was put to much expense and suffered much in health, and being also desirous to provide for the honour and quiet of the said rector and brethren, has hereby granted to them with the assent of the prelates, earls, barons and others of his council the following liberties:—

they shall have the chattels of their men and tenants of the lands and fees, conferred or to be conferred upon them, being felons or fugitives, so that if any of their men and tenants for any offence (delicto) ought to lose life or limb or shall flee and refuse to abide judgement, or shall do aught else for which he ought to lose his chattels, in whatever court justice ought to had of him, the chattels shall go to the rector and brethren, who may put themselves in seisin of the same and keep them to their own use without impediment from the king or his ministers;

they shall have all fines for trespasses and other offences, for licences to agree, all amercements, ransoms and forfeited issues and forfeitures, year, day and waste (vastum et streppum) and all things pertaining to the crown therefrom, murders of all men and tenants of their lands and fees, conferred or to be conferred upon them, in whatever court of the king's the foregoing may be imposed; so that the prior and brethren may collect the same without impediment from the king or his heirs; the rector and brethren and their successors and all their men shall be quit of toll, pavage, pontage, quayage, murage, passage, payage, lastage, stallage, tallage, carriage, pesage, picage, terrage, scot and geld, hidage, scutage, works of castles, parks and bridges, enclosures, building of royal houses, suits of counties, hundreds and wapentakes, all aids of kings and sheriffs and their bailiffs, view of frank-pledge, murder, common amercement when the county falls into the king's mercy before the king or any justices of the bench or justices in eyre, and of all other custom throughout the king's realm and power;

the rector and brethren shall be quit of all aids, contributions and tallages, which may be exacted from them by the king or his bailiffs or ministers on account of their lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels; and when the clergy of the realm or those of the province of Canterbury alone or those of the province of York alone shall grant a tenth or any other portion of their spiritualities, or ecclesiastical goods, or when the commons of the counties of the realm or the citizens or burgesses of the cities or boroughs of the counties shall grant a tenth, fifteenth or any other portion of their temporal goods or moveables or lands, tenements and rents, or if the king shall tallage his demesnes throughout England, or if the pope shall impose a tenth or other quota upon the clergy of the realm or either of its provinces, or then grant the same or part thereof to the king, the rector and brethren shall not be assessed therefore for the king's behoof, but shall be quit of all such payments;

and if it chance that upon the men of the counties of the realm or of other places of the realm or upon their lands, possessions and goods any sums of money be assessed either for equipping men at arms, hobblers, archers or any foot soldiers to be chosen in future for the king's service, to be despatched to any place for any reason, or for the defence of the coast, or if any other such charge shall be imposed by the king, or any fines for the remission of such charges, the lands and possessions and goods of the rector and brethren shall be quit thereof; the beasts called 'wayf' or 'stray' found on the lands and fees of the said monastery shall belong to the rector and brethren, unless anyone shall have followed them and prove ownership, within a proper time according to the custom of the country; and the rector and brethren and their successors shall hold the said monastery and all their houses there and elsewhere in the realm quit of livery of the king's stewards, marshals and other ministers of the king, and of the marshals, purveyors and ministers of the magnates of the realm, who shall not make livery therein for the use of any one without the consent of the rector and brethren; and no earl, baron or magnate of the realm or of any other part, and no stewards, marshalls, escheators, sheriffs, coroners or other bailiffs or ministers of the king or bailiffs or ministers of the said escheators, coroners or others, against the will of the rector and brethren, shall be lodged by them on any pretext;

and to the end that the goods and chattels of the monastery be not expended upon lodging the king or any others, the king has taken into his protection the said monastery, rector and brethren, their lands and possessions and goods and chattels, and wills that of their corn, hay, horses, carts, carriages, victuals, goods and chattels and of those of their men nought shall be taken and carried away for those purposes without the consent of the rector and brethren;

nor shall the rector and brethren be bound by any mandate or request of the king to find pension, corrody or maintenance from any of their revenues, but shall be quit of all such;

and they shall have free warren in all the demesne lands conferred or to be conferred upon the said house.

By p.s. [24383.]

MEMBRANE 2.

Oct. 25. Sandwich. 1 — Whereas Roger Beler, deceased, with the licence of King Edward II had founded a chantry for a perpetual warden and twelve chaplains in the chapel of St. Peter adjoining his manor of Kirkeby super Wrethek and both the said Roger and others had endowed the said chantry in spiritualities and temporalities, and the said king confirmed both the ordinance of the chantry which was approved by the diocesan and others interested and also the donations made to the said warden and chaplains, as by the following letters patent more fully appears :—

1. Letters patent dated at York, 15 October 13 Edward II. [Cf. Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1317–1321, p. 392, Monasticon, Vol. VI. p. 513, where the confirmation clause of the letters patent is omitted. The version of the letters patent of Roger Beler in this charter is that given in the Monasticon. It corresponds partially with the version on the Patent Roll, as noted in the Calendar of Patent Rolls loc. cit. but the final provisions are entirely different.] and whereas Alice late the wife of the said Roger, tenant for life of the manor of Kirkeby aforesaid, portion of the inheritance of Roger son of the said Roger Beller, to which manor the advowson of the said chapel and chantry belongs, and the said Roger son of Roger have petitioned the king setting forth that they were disposed to change the said chantry into religious and place there a prior and twelve regular canons with the king's licence and the authority and assent of the diocesan and others whose assent is required thereto, and praying the king to grant such licence and confirm and approve the said change and all the gifts and grants made to the said warden and chaplains of all lands, tenements, rents and advowsons above specified and all grants of liberties and quittances in the names of the religious there to be placed, to be held and used by them for ever ; now the king, commending the pious wishes of the said Alice and Roger son of Roger, has thought fit to grant, so far as he can, the said licences to the said Alice and Roger son of Roger and for the security of the said religious has confirmed the said change and all the aforesaid grants, as well as the gift of the said Roger to the warden and chaplains of the advowson of the church of Stapelford, co. Leicester ; and the gift of the said Roger of ten messuages, five virgates of land and six acres of meadow in Belgrave and Thornaston ;

5. Letters patent dated at York, 12 October 13 Edward II. [Ibid. p. 392.]

the recognition of Roger the father made by a fine in the court of King Edward II before William de Bereford and his fellows justices of the Bench in the 18th year of that reign in favour of the said warden of his right to the manor of Kirkeby ;

the grant of Brother Richard de Leyghton, master of the hospital of Burton Lazars, of a messuage and a carucate of land in Kirkeby ; the grant and demise of Walter abbot of Vaudey and that convent of a manor and grange in Seusterne, co. Leicester ; the gift of Alice, late countess of Lincoln, daughter of Henry de Lacy, late earl of Lincoln, of the advowson of two parts of the church of Clipston co. Northampton ; the gift of William la Zouche of Haryngworth of the advowson of the said two parts.

And the king wills that the religious to be placed in the said church shall hold all the lands, tenements and advowsons previously conferred upon the warden and chaplains with the churches appropriated, if any, as the warden and chaplains held them, notwithstanding the statute of mortmain or any other statute to the contrary ; and that they shall enjoy all liberties and quittances as the said warden and chaplains have used and enjoyed them, and that they shall have the same allowance of them in the Exchequer and other courts and places of the king without impediment.*

April 20. Westminster. 22 — Pursuant* to an inquisition ad quod damnum [not found] taken by Roger de Wolfreton, escheator in co. Hertford, finding that it is not to the damage of the king or any other if the king grant to his kinswoman Elizabeth de Burgo, and her heirs, a weekly market on Friday in the king's streets in the town of Buntyngford as the streets run, one from the head of the chapel of St. John in Buntyngford to the north and two other streets across the said street running eastward and westward, and a yearly fair on the day and the morrow of the Invention of the cross, in lieu of a weekly market called le Neuchepyng, which the said Elizabeth now has on Friday in a vacant place (placea), which is of her inheritance, and which is distant about half a mile from the town of Buntyngford ; grant, of special grace and for a half mark paid to the king, of the said market and fair, to be held by rendering 6*d.* yearly to the king by the hands of the sheriff of Hertfordshire. By the keeper.

May 26. Westminster. 21 — Grant,† of special grace, to Richard de Stafford and his heirs, of a yearly fair at their manor of Campeden, co. Gloucester, on the vigil, the feast and the morrow of St. George. By p.s. [24469.]

June 12. Westminster. 20 — Grant, of special grace, to Ralph Basset of Drayton, and his heirs, of free warren in all their demesne lands of Multon, co. Northampton. By p.s. [24596.]

June 20. Westminster. 19 — John, archbishop of Dublin, has petitioned the king setting forth that certain charters granted by previous kings of England to previous archbishops touching free warren in all the demesne lands of the archbishopric are so worn by age and eaten by worms that they cannot be read, and that the confirmations of them by carelessness have been lost or removed during invasions, and that the use of this warren has been interrupted both by the voidances of the see and the frequent taking of it into the king's hand and also by the exceeding negligence of former archbishops, and praying that the king would confirm the said warren to the said John and his successors.

Wherefore the king considering the services of the said archbishop in England and especially in Ireland hereby confirms the said grants and confirmations of warren to the said archbishop and his successors, with clause licet, securing to him enjoyment of the same notwithstanding non-user in the past ; and for the avoidance of any doubts has hereby granted to the said archbishop and his successors free warren in all the demesne lands of the said archbishopric. MEMBRANE 4.

July 14. Westminster. 14 Whereas Thomas de Bello Campo, earl of Warwick, lately in the king's court before the justices of the Bench by a writ of right recovered the castle of Sweyneseye and the land of Gower in Wales against John de Moubray of Axioholm, knight; and whereas after this recovery the said Thomas was impeached (impetitus fuisset) by Edward, prince of Wales claiming that certain parcels, to wit, Kylvey, Landymor, Rossully and Kitehull within the lordship of Gower were held from the said prince as of his lordship of Kermerdyn in the principality of Wales, and that the royal liberty and jurisdiction in the said land of Gower and the said parcels ought to belong to the said prince as appurtenant to the said lordship of Kermerdyn, which liberty and jurisdiction the said earl asserts that he and his ancestors and all other lords of the said land always held in the said land and parcels and always used through all past time;

whereupon matter of dissension arose, and the said prince considering the right of the said earl with the king's assent by letters patent for him and his heirs quit-claimed all the right that he had by reason of the principality of Wales or of his lordship of Kermerdyn in the lands, liberties, jurisdictions or tenants in the said land of Gower and the parcels aforesaid.

Wherefore the king, considering the good service rendered by the earl, of special grace hereby ratifies the said quit-claim and all else contained in the said letters patent and the estate (statum) acquired by the said earl by the recovery aforesaid in the said castle, land and parcels with the royal liberties and jurisdictions thereto belonging, as the said earl and his ancestors and other lords of the said land of Gower have hitherto held them;

and also grants to the said earl that he and his heirs shall hold the said castle and the land of Gower with the parcels of Kilvey, Landymor, Rossully and Kitehull with the royal liberties and jurisdictions thereto pertaining from the king as of the crown of England by the services due therefrom; and that the said earl and his heirs shall have therein all jurisdictions, liberties, royal franchises and customs which Edward le Despenser and his ancestors, lords of Glomorgan, or other lords in Wales have hitherto had and used in their demesne, without impediment from the king or his ministers.

July 20. Westminster. 13 Grant, of special grace, and at the request of Mary de Sancto Paulo, countess of Pembroke, the king's kinswoman, and on account of the king's devotion to the abbess and minoresses of the monastery of Deneye, co. Cambridge, which has been founded by the king's said kinswoman with his licence, that the said abbess and sisters shall be quit of all tallages, and aids for knighting the king's eldest son and marrying the king's eldest daughter, as of other subsidies of wools or keeping of the coasts and of any other contributions separately or in common granted to the king before this or hereafter to be granted, to be paid within the realm of England by reason of their lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels; with further grant to the said abbess and sisters that they shall be quit of tenths and fifteenths granted to the king by the laity of England and of tenths and other quotas granted by the clergy of the said realm, or imposed upon the clergy by the pope and afterwards granted to the king, and of all other subsidies and contributions payable by reason of their lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels. By p.s. [24778.]

Sept. 19. Hadleigh castle. 12 Grant, of special grace, to James de Burford, and his heirs, of free warren in all their demesne lands of Erhuth and Erde co. Kent and Stokwell, co. Surrey. By p.s. [24879.]

MEMBRANE 9.

May 12. Westminster. 15 Whereas lately considering how the county of Lancaster and many castles, towns, manors, lands and tenements as well in the counties of Lincoln and Derby as elsewhere in the kingdom, which belonged to Henry late duke of Lancaster and earl of Lincoln and Derby, had now by the death of the said duke descended to John, earl of Richmond, the king's son, and Blanche his wife being daughter and coheir of the duke, to wit, some by inheritance according to the partition made between them and Maud the other coheir and some by reason of the order and grant made by the duke during his lifetime, the king granted to his said son John, now earl of Lancaster and Richmond, and to his heirs born of the said Blanche, the return of all writs of the Crown and all pleas of unlawful distraint in all the lands and fees which they then had or which should thereafter remain to them of the inheritance of the aforesaid duke, together with all fines and amercements of their men and tenants in the same lands whenever they should be amerced or make fine in the king's courts and the chattels of the said men being felons, fugitive or condemned;

and whereas all the lands and tenements which the said Maud held of her purparty aforesaid of all the lands which belonged to the late duke as also certain lands and tenements in Norfolk and Suffolk, which she held of his inheritance of the gift and feoffment of John, bishop of Lincoln, Richard, earl of Arundel, Robert de la Mare, John de Buklond, John Charnels, Walter Power, Simon Simeon and John Neumarche, have by the death of the said Maud descended to the said John and to Blanche his wife, as her sister and heir; grant, out of special favour to the earl and countess aforesaid, to the earl and his heirs born of himself and the said Blanche, of the return of all writs of the king and of all pleas of unlawful distraint both in the lands and fees which they had of Blanche's purparty and in those which they inherited from Maud, and also in all such as may in the future remain or revert to them, together with all fines and amercements and so forth, as in the grant first above mentioned, in all the said lands and fees in the same manner in which Henry, late earl of Lancaster, father of the duke aforesaid, or the duke himself held these liberties by successive grants of the king. By K.

Jan. 18. Westminster. 1 Inspeximus and confirmation in favour of the prior and convent of Newark of the following :—

1. A charter dated at Westminster, 12 November 14 Edward II [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 429], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Westminster 12 February 55 Henry III [not on the Charter roll], inspecting and confirming nine private deeds. [Cf. Monasticon, Vol. VI. p. 383.]

2. A charter whereby John Treygoz, lord of Ewyas, gave to the said prior and convent the homage and service of Sir Robert de Lodeham and his heirs for all the tenements which they held of the said John in the town of Sendes; and the homage and service of Thomas son of Robert de Papeworth and Alice his wife and their heirs for all the tenement which they held of him, the said John, in the same; and the homage and service of John de Deudeswell and his heirs for the tenement which they held there; and the homage and service of John le Blund and his heirs for the like; and the homage and service of Geoffrey Maubank and Alice his wife for the like; all these homages and services to be held by the prior and convent aforesaid and their church for two knights' fees from the said John Treygoz and his heirs, together with all escheats, wards, reliefs and other appurtenances, by a yearly payment of two marks of silver at Ewyas on the feast of St. Peter's Chains, by a relief for two knights' fees to be paid to the said John and his heirs on the death or removal of a prior and by doing suit by their attorney at John's court at Ewyas whensoever any judgement upon a plea by writ is left pendent for default of peers; the foregoing being in lieu of all service, saving the royal (regali) service, to wit, the scutage for two knights' fees. Witnesses, Sir Hugh le Despenser, Sir John de Abernoun, knight, John de Wykeford, Thomas de Otteworth, William de Weston, John de Henle.
3. A charter whereby John le Warre, knight, lord of Ewyas Harald, quitclaimed to brother Roger de Enham, prior of Newark by Guildford, and to the convent of Newark and their successors all his right and claim in the homage and services of William de Weston, his heirs and assigns from the tenement in Sende, called Papeworth, co. Surrey. Witnesses :— Sir John de Cleidon, parson of Mamcestr', Thomas de Weyvill', Sir Adam de Depyng, parson of Fokinton, John de Hayton, William de Mallyng. At Porteslade, co. Sussex, on Sunday next after the feast of Ascension, 10 Edward III.
4. A writing indented of the said John La Warre addressed to William de Weston enjoining him to be intendent to the said prior and convent by reason of the foregoing grant. Of which writing indented one piece, with the seal of the said William remains with the said John, and one piece with the seal of John remains with William de Weston. Dated at Isefeld on Sunday after the feast of Ascension, 10 Edward III.
5. A writing indented of the said prior and convent whereby in return for the foregoing quitclaim and indenture they undertook to acquit the said William de Weston, his heirs and assigns in respect of all services, customs and demands owing on account of the tenement aforesaid to the king, to the said John, his heirs and assigns, to the heirs and assigns of John de Deudeswell, and to the heirs and assigns of Geoffrey Maubank. Moreover whereas an agreement was made (pax pacificata fuit) aforetime between brother John then prior and the convent

Oct. 15. Westminster. 5 Whereas, among other liberties and immunities granted to the burgesses of Huntyngdon by charters of the king's progenitors and of the king himself, it was granted them that the burgesses, their heirs and successors should have cognisance of all pleas by their bailiffs or others to be there appointed by them, both of lands, tenements and rents within the said town and of trespasses, agreements, contracts and plaints arising within the liberty of the same town, touching any tenants and residents within the said town and liberty, as in the said charters is more fully contained :—

the king considering that the said town is so weakened by mortal pestilences and other calamities that the fourth part of the town is not inhabited, and the few persons there remaining have scarcely whereof they may live, and that no lands or rents belong to the town, from which any aid for the payment of the yearly farm of the king can be obtained, and that therefore the whole town will be left desolate and uninhabited, for the relief thereof has hereby granted that the burgesses of the said town, their heirs and successors shall have cognisance of all pleas, as well of assises of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor and other pleas touching free tenements in the said town and liberty as of trespasses, agreements, contracts and plaints arising within the said town and liberty, whether of tenants and residents in the said town and liberty or of other persons ; and that they shall have all fines, ransoms and amercements and forfeited issues of all men both residents in the said town and liberty and others, which may arise in the said town by reason of any plea or plaint touching free tenement in the said town or by reason of any debt or trespass, contract or plaint or other matter arising within the said town and liberty before any of the king's justices or ministers ; and that they shall have all chattels of felons and fugitives and outlaws, which may be found within the said town and liberty, with power to collect the same by their bailiffs or deputies and put themselves in seisin thereof and retain them to the use of the borough in aid of the farm without impediment, and without account ; and that whereas strangers coming to the said town with wheat (frumento), malt, corn and other merchandise to trade with the said goods and make their profit of them have hired houses in the said town for their goods, and have paid a custom called 'gernerage,' that they may make their profit of such sale as the burgesses do, which custom the said merchants, seeing the town so wasted, now refuse to pay, the king has hereby granted that the burgesses dwelling in the said town and their heirs and successors, burgesses of the said town, may take the said custom called 'gernerage' and compel the merchants to pay it, as they were wont to do. MEMBRANE 3.

Inspeximus in favour of the citizens of Dublin of the following :—

1. A charter dated at Westminster, July 11 10 Edward II, [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 315] inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Upton, 7 November 2 John. [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 78.]
2. Letters patent under the seal of Ireland, witnessed by Lionel, duke of Clarence, earl of Ulster, the king's deputy in Ireland, at Dublin, 26 September 37 Edward III, inspecting and confirming the following :—
   (1) Letters patent dated at Nottingham, 14 August 12 Edward II. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1317-1321, p. 196.]
   (2) A charter dated at York, 13 October 8 Edward III. [Calendar, Vol. IV. p. 320.]

and in consideration of the good services rendered by the citizens and their ancestors, especially in the defence of the city against the attacks of the king's Irish enemies, confirmation of the same with clause licet.

Moreover the citizens of the city of Dublin shall have all the liberties and privileges, not set forth above, which the king and his predecessors granted to the citizens of Waterford, Cork and Drogheda, as follows :—

their mayor chosen yearly of themselves shall make the oath due before his predecessor in office before the commonalty of the city, unless the justice of Ireland or any baron of the king's Exchequer at the time of that choice shall be in the said city, before whom in that case the oath shall be taken ;

the citizens of Dublin shall have return of all the king's writs, both of summonses and of attachments of all matters arising within the city of Dublin and its suburb, so that the king's ministers of Ireland shall not enter the said city or suburb to make summonses, attachments or executions, save in case of default by the mayor and bailiffs of the city, excepting always the four pleas of rape, arson, forestall and treasure trove, if these occur in the said city and suburb ;

the citizens shall not be put on assizes, juries or recognitions without the said city of Dublin or its suburbs by reason of their lands and tenements without and within the said city or suburbs, so long as they dwell within the city or suburb ;

no citizen shall plead without the walls of city of any plea, but only within the walls in their Gildhall (Gyhalla) saving pleas of foreign tenures which do not belong to the hundred of the city ;

the mayor and bailiffs of the city in the Gildhall (Gihalla) of the city shall have cognisance of all pleas as well of tenures within the city and suburb and their liberty, as of trespasses, agreements and contracts arising within the city, suburb and liberty, and shall make executions of the judgements rendered before them in those pleas, saving always the ordinances of the staple made by the king and his council ;

no citizen shall plead or be impleaded without the city touching lands or tenements within the city, suburb and liberty, nor touching trespasses, agreements or contracts made within the said city, suburb and liberty or any other matters there arising, unless the pleas touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the city of Dublin ;

the mayor and bailiffs may account by sufficient attornies to be appointed by letters patent under their seal before the treasurer and barons at the Exchequer of the realm of Ireland, when it shall be elsewhere than in the said city, and shall be admitted to render their accounts by their said attornies, so that the payment of the king's debts be no wise delayed ;

no bailiff shall take any citizen of the said city or imprison him, so long as he can find safe pledges, unless it be for felony or other enormous offence, for which he is not bailable ; the citizens shall have the said city, suburb and liberty with all profits, liberties and free customs which they have hitherto used in the time of the king and his progenitors ;

no sheriff, bailiff or minister of the king's shall intermeddle to make any attachments or summons in the city, suburb or liberty aforesaid, save the mayor, bailiffs and coroners of the city who answer for the pleas of the crown before the king's justices in eyre for pleading common pleas in the city of Dublin, save in case of default by the mayor, bailiffs and coroners ;

if any of the citizens of Dublin shall be attached without the bounds of the city, the mayor and citizens of the city shall have their court of him and shall exhibit justice to the plaintiff, just as an earl, baron or other magnate of Ireland ought to have his court of his men according to the law of Ireland.

Moreover, the citizens of Dublin have petitioned the king and council to the following effect :—

they set forth that according to their liberty no foreign merchant may sell merchandise within their city by retail, but that nevertheless certain foreign merchants alleging the provision of the statute for the ordinance of the staple, that all merchants coming to the staple, cities and boroughs in the realm of England and the lands of Ireland and Wales may sell their merchandise in gross or in retail or by parcels without dispute (calumpnia), do now come to their city and buy and sell their merchandise as freely as the merchants of the city and so take almost all the profits of such sale and purchase, without contributing in any way to the charges of the city ; and the citizens also set forth that the ordinance of the staple provides that all wools, hides and other merchandise to be taken to foreign parts from the said realm and lands shall be taken to the king's town of Calais ; and that thereby they are bound to take their merchandise which consists of old clothes, wool, hides and other small matters and is quite different from the merchandise of other lands, to the said town of Calais, where their merchandise will scarcely fetch anything, nor will they be able to find wines, iron, salt or other merchandise suitable to the said land of Ireland, so that, when they have there sold their merchandise for a small price, they must make new freight to England, Gascony or elsewhere to find merchandise suitable to their own country, whereby they have to pay two freights for one to the manifest impoverishment of their citizens ; and considering this petition the king has hereby granted that all foreign merchants who buy or sell merchandise in the city according to the form of the said statute shall be bound to pay aid and contribution with the said citizens to support the charges of the said city according to the quantity of goods bought or sold and may be compelled thereto as shall be just ; and that the citizens may take old cloths, wool, hides and all other merchandise originating in Ireland to the parts of England, Gascony and elsewhere as they think fit, excepting always corn during time of prohibition (bladis pro tempore vetito), as they did before the said ordinance. Feb. 3. Westminster. 20 Grant, of special grace, to John de Charneles, king's clerk, and his heirs of free warren in all their demesne lands of Beulton, co. Warwick, Ailmeresthorp, Swepston, Nethercote and Neuton Boteler, co. Leicester. By p.s. [26226.]

Feb. 10. Westminster. 19 Grant, of special grace, to Richard de Pembrugge and his heirs, of two yearly fairs at their manor of Wadelee and Wykingesham, co. Berkshire, one on the day of the Ascension and the other on the day of St. Mary Magdalen ; grant also of free warren in all their demesne lands of the said manor. By p.s. [26235.]

Feb. 24. Westminster. 18 The citizens of Waterford have petitioned the king and council to the following effect :—

they set forth that according to their liberty no foreign merchants may sell merchandise within their city by retail, but that nevertheless certain foreign merchants, alleging the provision of the statute for the ordinance of the staple, that all merchants coming to the staple, cities and boroughs in the realm of England and the lands of Ireland and Wales may sell their merchandise in gross or in retail or by parcels without dispute, do now come to the said city and sell and buy their merchandise as freely as the merchants of the city and so take almost all the profits of such sale and purchase, without contributing in any way to the charges of the city ; and they also set forth that the ordinance of the staple provides that all wools, hides and other merchandise to be taken to foreign parts from the same realm and lands shall be taken to the king's town of Calais ; and that thereby they are bound to take their merchandise, which consists of old cloths, wool, hides and other small matters, and is quite different from the merchandise of other lands, to the said town of Calais, where their merchandise will scarcely fetch anything, nor will they be able to find wines, iron, salt or other merchandise suitable to the said land of Ireland, so that when they have there sold their merchandise for a small price, they must make new freight to England, Gascony or elsewhere to find merchandise suitable to their own country, whereby they have two freights for one to the manifest impoverishment of their citizens ; and considering this petition and the good service of the citizens of Waterford in the defence of their city against the king's enemies, the king has hereby granted that all foreign merchants who buy or sell merchandise in the said city according to the form of the said statute shall be bound to pay aid and contribution with the said citizens, to support the charges of the said city according to the quantity of goods bought or sold and may be compelled thereto as shall be just ; and that the citizens may take old cloths, wool, hides and all other merchandise originating in Ireland to the parts of England, Gascony and elsewhere, excepting always corn during time of prohibition, as they did before the said ordinance. Feb. 22. Westminster. 17

Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the burgesses of Drogheda towards Uriel, in consideration of their good service in the defence of that borough against the king's enemies, of a charter dated at Havering, 6 May 5 Edward III [Calendar, Vol. IV. p. 222], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Westminster, 11 July 10 Edward II [Ibid. Vol. III. p. 315], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Lewes, 24 June 23 Edward I [Ibid., p. 59], inspecting and confirming the following :—

1. A charter, dated at London, 20 September 13 Henry III. [Ibid. Vol. I. p. 99. Historic and Municipal Documents, Ireland, p. 93.]
2. A charter dated at Clarendon, 12 December 37 Henry III. [Calendar, Vol. I. p. 412. Historic and Municipal Documents, Ireland, p. 132.]

Moreover, since certain liberties and privileges above expressed have been granted by the king and his predecessors to the city of Dublin, as appears from the rolls of the chancery, the king has hereby granted to the burgesses of Drogheda all the liberties and privileges which have been granted to the said citizens of Dublin, as follows :—

their mayor chosen yearly of themselves shall make the oath due before his predecessor in office before the commonalty of the city, unless the justice of Ireland or any baron of the Exchequer at the time of that choice shall be in the said borough, before whom in that case the oath shall be taken ;

the burgesses shall have return of all the king's writs, both of summonses and of attachments of all matters arising within the borough and suburb, so that the king's ministers of Ireland shall not enter the said borough or suburb to make summonses, attachments or executions, save in case of default by the mayor and bailiffs of the borough, excepting always the four pleas of rape, arson, forestall and treasure trove, if these occur in the said borough and suburb ;

the mayor and bailiffs may account by sufficient attorneys, to be appointed by letters patent under their seal, before the treasurer and barons at the Exchequer of the realm of Ireland, when it shall be elsewhere than in the said borough, and shall be admitted to render their accounts by their said attorneys, so that the payment of the king's debts be no wise delayed ;

no bailiff shall take any burgess of the said borough or imprison him, so long as he can find safe pledges, unless it be for felony or other enormous offence, for which he is not bailable ;

no minister of the king or other person shall be lodged in the houses of the burgesses within the walls of the borough, nor shall they make livery or take lodging in them by assise or livery without the consent of the burgesses, saving to the king his old and accustomed prises ;

no justice, bailiff or minister of the king shall take of the goods and merchandise of the said mayor and burgesses or of others coming to the town against the will of the owners, save in the king's presence for his use or for the provisioning (munitione) of the king's castles in those parts in case of need ;

the mayor and bailiffs of the borough in the gildhall (Gihalla) of the borough shall have cognizance of all pleas, as well of tenures within the borough and suburb and liberty, as of trespasses, agreements and contracts there arising, and shall have the executions of the judgements rendered before them in those pleas, saving always the ordinances of the staple made by the king and his council ;

no burgess shall plead or be impleaded without the city touching lands and tenements within the borough and suburb and liberty, nor touching trespasses, agreements or contracts made within the said borough, suburb and liberty or other matters there arising, unless the pleas touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the borough ; with further grant on the petition of the burgesses of exemptions from the ordinance of the staple in the same words as in the charter to Waterford above. By K.

July 6. Westminster. 8 Whereas at the petition of Elizabeth de Burgo the king granted to her that she and her heirs in lieu of a market called 'le Newechepyng,' which the said Elizabeth had in a vacant place of her inheritance about half a mile away from the town of Buntyngford weekly on Friday, should have another weekly market on Friday in the king's high street in the said town of Buntyngford and a yearly fair there on the day and the morrow of the Invention of Holy Cross by rendering to the king 6*d.* yearly; and whereas afterwards at the suit of Lionel, duke of Clarence, who holds all the inheritance of the said Elizabeth by the law of England after the death of Elizabeth late his wife, kinswoman and heir of the said Elizabeth de Burgo, and on his petition setting forth that the market and fair so granted in the king's streets of Buntyngford, which are without the demesne of the said inheritance, are to the damage of the said duke's fair in his manor of Staundon, which is of the demesne of his inheritance and is distant three miles from the town of Buntyngford, and praying that the said market and fair might be revoked and a weekly market on Friday be granted in his said town of Staundon and a yearly fair there on the vigil, the feast and the morrow of St. Peter's Chains; and whereas the lords and tenants of Buntyngford appearing after due warning before the king in his chancery showed no cause why the said market and fair should not be revoked, and it was therefore adjudged that the said market should be removed as by the process more fully appears; now the king, of special grace, has granted to the said duke and his heirs that they shall have in lieu of the market and fair held in the said place of Newechepyng and afterwards in the town of Buntyngford, a weekly market on Friday at their manor of Staundon, and a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Peter's Chains, on rendering to the king 6*d.* yearly by the hands of the sheriff of Hertfordshire at Michaelmas. lastage, stallage, wharvage, hidage, ryvage and wreck of sea, of shires and hundreds and of all customs concerning their goods (rebus) and merchandise ; that they, their heirs and successors shall not be placed upon assises, juries and recognitions by reason of their lands or tenements without the borough, or of any trespasses, contracts, agreements or other matters without the borough which may arise before the king's justices or other ministers, so long as they remain as burgesses living there ; and that foreigners shall not be placed with them the said burgesses upon assises, juries, recognitions or inquisitions concerning any matter of lands or tenements or of trespasses, contracts or agreements or other matters within the borough, unless such matter touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the borough ; that they and their heirs and successors inhabiting the borough aforesaid shall be quit of all manner of tallages, aids, tenths and fifteenths and other sums in respect of their goods ; that the mayor and bailiffs shall have cognisance of all pleas concerning contracts, debts, agreements and trespasses occurring in the borough and the execution of the same so long as they do not touch the king or the commonalty of the borough ; that they shall be quit of the king's right of prise in respect of their wines, to wit of a cask before and a cask behind the mast ; that the warden and barons of the king's Cinque Ports shall not meddle at all in the concerns of the said borough nor of the burgesses or their possessions or goods in the borough or their ships ; nor shall the burgesses themselves be charged in any way in the matter of the services which the said warden and barons have to render to the king in respect of their ships. Constat of a charter dated at Westminster, 14 November 30 Edward III [See above, p. 150], inspecting and confirming, with clause licet and other additions and alterations, in favour of the burgesses of Waterford, a charter dated at King's Langley, 16 June 2 Edward II [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 129], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Woodstock, 16 June 16 Henry III [Ibid. Vol. I. p. 157]; and confirmation of the above, with clause licet and with the following additions :—

Whereas in the charter of King Henry III above it is contained that no citizen of Waterford shall plead without the walls of the said city for any plea, but that he shall plead within the walls of the city in the Guildhall, saving pleas of foreign tenements not belonging to the hundred of that city, now for the fuller declaration of this article the king has hereby granted to the said citizens, their heirs and successors that the mayor and bailiffs of the city shall have cognisance in the Guildhall of all pleas as well of tenures within the said city and liberty as of trespasses, agreements and contracts therein arising, and execution of judgements rendered in those pleas before them, without any manner of cognisance or interference therein by any minister of the king or his heirs, saving in case of defect of the said mayor and bailiffs or in cases which touch the king and his heirs or the commonalty of the city, and saving always the ordinances of the staple made by the king and his council; and that no citizen shall plead or be impleaded without the city of lands or tenements within the said city and liberty or of trespasses, agreements or contracts or of any other matters therein arising anywhere except in the Guildhall of the city and before the mayor and bailiffs aforesaid, provided that strangers may prosecute for trespasses against them done within the said city at their will before the mayor and bailiffs aforesaid or before the king's justiciar of Ireland or anywhere else in the king's courts, unless the pleas touch the king and his heirs or the commonalty of the city; that the mayor and citizens, their heirs and successors in the absence of the king and his heirs shall have the assize of bread and ale, the keeping and assay of measures and weights and all other matters belonging to the office of a market in their city aforesaid and shall punish offenders against the said assize, and correct faults in weights and measures, so that no clerk of the market or other minister of the king shall enter there to do anything relating to his office, saving only to supervise, approve and examine the standard of the city and to correct defects or excesses of the same; and that all profits of this office, saving of the standard aforesaid, shall belong to the mayor and bailiffs aforesaid in aid of their farm of the city; provided always that if any complain that the mayor and bailiffs have been negligent and remiss in discharging their duties aforesaid, then the justice of the king or his heirs for the country aforesaid by himself or by his deputy appointed thereto, at the suit of the king or of complainants as aforesaid, shall survey or cause to be surveyed the matter of the complaint aforesaid and if he find that the mayor and bailiffs have been so negligent and remiss, shall correct the matter and punish suitably the said officers, saving always to the king and his heirs their fines and amercements or the penalty imposed upon them as aforesaid ; that the citizens and their heirs and successors, citizens of Waterford, shall have the return of all the king's writs, both of summonses and of attachments concerning all matters arising within the city aforesaid and the suburb thereof ; so that the king's ministers of Ireland shall not enter the said city and suburb to make summons, attachments or executions save in case of default by the mayor and bailiffs aforesaid, saving always the four pleas of rape, arson, forstal and treasure trove which the king desires to remain entirely to himself and his heirs and their ministers. Data per manum Willelmi de Longo Campo, cancellarii nostri, anno j°. regni nostri, xv. die Septembris apud Gaidintun'.

Now, although by reason of the fraud of a certain monk of the said convent of Bruerne who caused the word Fifehida in the foregoing charter to be erased and the word Estlech to be substituted for it and thereafter obtained the confirmation of the said charter and endeavoured to have it allowed in a plea then in process before the king between the abbot of Bruerne aforesaid and the abbot of Cirencester, it was determined by the judgment of the same court that the charter of confirmation should be restored and cancelled; yet, because the said abbot and convent of Bruerne were innocent of the fraud aforesaid and it is not right that for the fraud and malice of a single man they should lose all the immunities and liberties bestowed upon them by King Richard's charter, the king, out of special affection for St. Mary in whose honour the said convent was founded, desiring to deal graciously with them, hereby approves and ratifies all the liberties contained in the said charter.* By K.

July 10. Westminster. 8 Although by inquisition taken before Edmund de Burton, escheator in co. Stafford, it was found to be to the king's damage to the amount of 5*s.* yearly if he should grant to John de Beverle, king's squire and his heirs view of frank pledge of all their men, tenants and residents in their manor of Pencrich and in the fees and members thereof, to wit Wolgarston, Drayton, Connegrove, Doneston, Coveley, Befcote and Little Onne, with all that they have from time before the memory of man held to their own use the church of Beckeford, as belonging to the priory of Newent, which is a cell to the abbey aforesaid ; that their predecessors demised the said church to the then prior and convent of Ste. Barbe in Normandy and their successors for a yearly farm of 40*l.* to be paid to them, the said abbot and convent of Cormeilles and their successors for ever ; that afterwards the prior and convent of Ste. Barbe aforesaid, feeling themselves burdened by this farm restored the said church to them in discharge thereof ; that recently it was found by inquisition made between the king and the prior of Newent aforesaid, in the course of a suit then in process in the king's court upon a claim by him to present to the said church, that a certain prior of Newent holding the advowson of the said church of King Henry, the king's progenitor, alienated the same to the prior and convent of Ste. Barbe and their successors and that the said prior and convent of Ste. Barbe recently alienated again this advowson in like manner to the prior and convent of Newent without obtaining the king's licence therefore, by reason of which the king took the said advowson into his hands and presented his clerk, Thomas Hervy, who was duly admitted and instituted ; whereby the abbot and convent aforesaid are deprived of their right ; and that they pray the king to order them to be put in possession of the said church ;

grant, although the patronage of the church is now come to the king and his heirs, in consideration of the long possession of the abbot and convent and of the cause of their losing the same, of special grace, and for the sum of 100 marks which they have paid to the king, to the said abbot and convent the advowson of the said church to hold in frank almoin as aforetime ; so that as soon as by death, cession or resignation the same becomes vacant they by themselves or their proctors may re-enter therein and hold it to their own use, notwithstanding the aforesaid recovery by the king or any statute or ordinance or any right the king or his heirs may have

Vol.* III. p. 236], inspecting and confirming the following :—

1. A charter, dated at Westminster, 12 June 13 Edward I [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 318], inspecting and confirming the following :—
   (1) A charter, dated at Marlborough, 18 March 9 John. [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 175.]
   (2) A charter, dated at Norwich, 25 March 40 Henry III. [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 318.]
   (3) A charter, dated at Norwich, 25 March 40 Henry III. [Ibid.]
   (4) Letters patent dated at St. Paul's, London, 28 September 45 Henry III. [Ibid.]
2. Letters patent dated at Westminster, 1 July 13 Edward I. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1281–1292, p. 182.]
3. Letters patent, dated at St. Albans, 28 April 26 Edward I. [Ibid. 1292–1301, p. 349.]
4. Letters patent, dated at Beverley, 22 July 34 Edward I. [Ibid. 1301–1307, p. 455.]

Moreover, since it was found by inquisition [Inquisitions ad quod damnum, file 373, No. 19] taken before Reginald de Eccles and Edmund de Gurnay under letters patent and returned into the chancery, that it was not to the damage of the king or any other if he should grant to the burgesses and good men of the town of Great Jernemue a place in the sea near the entrance of the port of that town, called Kirkelerode, to be annexed to the said port and town and so annexed to be held to the said burgesses and their successors, burgesses of the said town, for the relief thereof and in aid of the farm payable to the king yearly, or if ships and boats arriving at the said place or going thence should have power freely to load and unload, or if the burgesses should take customs and other profits thence, as freely as they did before this time in their own port, and there make executions touching their liberties as freely as in their own port aforesaid ; and since the king desires to aid the said town which is greatly impoverished, because its shipping trade (navigium) has been diminished by various misfortunes and because its port has been obstructed by inundations of the sea and by storms, so that large ships which used to put in near the town, now put in to neighbouring places as well at the time of the herring fishery and of the herring fair, which are the foundation of the prosperity of the town, as at other times ;

the king, for the aid and relief of the said town, and for 100*s.* to be paid by the burgesses and their successors as an increment of their farm of 55*l.*, has hereby given to them and their successors the said place to be annexed to their said town and port, to be held by them from the king with the liberties and quittances expressed in the above charters as they have them in their said town, with power to take from ships and boats at that place the same customs that they could have taken at the said town ; with further grant that no ship or boat shall in future be laden or unladen at any town or place upon the coast within seven leagues (leucas) of the town of Great Jernemue of herrings or other merchandise by any person, unless the ship, boat, herrings and merchandise be the property of that person, but only at the town of Great Jernemue or at its port or at the place called 'Kirkelerode,' and also that at the time of the said fishery and fair no fair shall be held nor any purchase or sale by way of trade made elsewhere within the said seven leagues about the said town, but only at the said town, or in the port thereof ; and the king hereby prohibits any one from loading any ship or boat, not being his own property, with any herrings or merchandise not his own within the said space of seven leagues, except only at the said town of Great Jernemue or in the port thereof or at the said place of Kirkelerode, or from holding any fair at the said time or making any sale or purchace of merchandise save at the said town and port upon pain of forfeiture of the ships, boats, herrings or other merchandise in question ; the same to be taken by the bailiffs of the said town into the king's hands and answered for at the Exchequer ; with revocation of any letters patent granted to the town or men of Leystoft so far as they contravene this charter.

under the care of the Friars preachers living at Derteford in the diocese of Rochester, to the honour of St. Mary and Saint Margaret, and endowed the same and designs to endow them yet further ; grant to the prioress and convent of Derteford aforesaid, of special grace and for their better maintenance and tranquility, of the following liberties :—

they shall have the chattels of their men and tenants, being felons or fugitive, of all their lands and fees already bestowed or in the future to be bestowed upon them ; so that if any such for any offence ought to lose life or limb, or flee or refuse to stand to judgment, or do anything else for which he ought to lose his chattels, wheresoever justice ought to be done of him, whether in the court of the king or in any other court, his chattels shall belong to the said prioress and convent, who may put themselves in seisin thereof without impediment from the king or his ministers ;

they shall have all fines for trespasses and other offences, fines for licence to agree and all amercements, redemptions, forfeited issues and forfeitures, year, day and waste, with all that should belong to the king thereof, and murders of all their men and tenants of all their lands and fees as aforesaid in whatever court of the king they be made, whether before the king or in his Chancery, or before the treasurer and barons, or the justices of the Bench, or the steward and marshals, or the clerk of the market of the king's household, or before any other courts, as also before the justices itinerant to take common pleas or pleas of the forest or any other justices or ministers of the king, whether in his presence or in his absence ; all which fines and so forth they may by themselves or their bailiffs levy, take and keep without hindrance as aforesaid ; they and all their men shall be quit of toll, pavage, pontage, quayage, murage, passage, paiage, lastage, stallage, tallage, carriage, pesage, picage, terrage, scot and geld, hidage, scutage and works of castles, parks and bridges, enclosures and building of royal houses, as also of suits of counties, hundreds and wapentakes, of all manner of aids of kings, sheriffs and their bailiffs, of view of frankpledge, of murder, of common amercement whenever the county falls in the king's mercy before the king or his justices of the Bench or in eyre, and of all other custom throughout the king's realm and power ;

they shall be free of all manner of aids, contributions and tallages which might be exacted from them by the king or his bailiffs or ministers for his use in respect of any of the lands, tenements, rents, goods and chattels which they now have or in the future may have ; and when the clergy of the England or of the province of Canterbury or of the province of York by way of a tenth or other quota of their spiritualities make a grant to the king, or when the communities of the counties contribute a tenth or fifteenth or other quota of their temporal goods, moveables, lands, tenements or rents, or when the king tallages his demesnes or the Pope imposes a tenth or other quota upon the clergy of the realm or of the provinces aforesaid and grants the same or a part thereof to the king, the lands, goods and so forth of the said prioress and convent and of their men shall not be so taxed, nor they be in any wise distrained or molested therefore ;

and if the men of the counties or of any county or other district (locorum) of the realm or their lands, possessions or goods be assessed at any sum for the furnishing and arraying of men-at-arms, hobblers, archers or other footmen for the king's service in any part or for coast defence, or if any other burden be laid upon them on such occasions, the lands, possessions and goods of the prioress and convent shall in no case be charged therewith ;

they shall have all animals called wayf and 'strayf' found in their lands and fees unless any follow and prove ownership and unless within a proper time, according to the custom of the country, they be claimed and followed ;

they shall have their monastery and all the houses which they now or in the future may hold throughout the realm quit of livery of stewards, marshals and ministers of the king and of marshals, purveyors or other ministers of the magnates, so that no such officer shall make there any livery to the use of any person against the wish of them, the said prioress and convent ; and no earl, baron or magnate of the realm or of any other place, nor any stewards, marshalls, escheators, sheriffs, coroners or other officers of the king, or their ministers, nor any other of any state or condition shall harbour or stay there against the will of the prioress and convent upon any pretext ; and to the end that their goods and chattels be not taken and wasted by takers and purveyors of victuals or other matters for the household of the king or of any others, the king has taken the monastery, the said prioress and convent and all the lands and so forth which may now or hereafter be given, granted or assigned to them and all their goods and chattels into his special protection, willing that nothing of their corn, hay, horses, carts, carriages, victuals, or other goods, chattels and things, shall be taken or carried off by any officers or ministers whatsoever for the use of himself or of any other ;

they shall not be called upon or compelled to find pension, corrody or maintenance for anyone out of their house or other possessions against their will at the request or order of the king ;

they shall have free warren in all the demesne lands which have now been or may in the future be granted to them. By p.s. [29287.]

Oct. 20. Westminster. 17 Whereas the town of Burle, co. Rutland, which Thomas le Despenser holds in chief of the king, has been destroyed by fire, and the men and tenants of the said town have been so impoverished by excessive amercements for suits of hundreds and other articles touching leets and view of frank-pledge demanded from them before the present time by the sheriffs of the county and their ministers, that because of the burning of the town and of these amercements they propose to abandon their holdings, unless they receive assistance ; now therefore for the relief of the said town and the benefit of the inhabitants thereof the king has granted to the said Thomas that he and his heirs shall have a leet and view of frank-pledge with all thereto belonging and wayf and stray, infangethef and outfangethef in the said town and the hamlet of Alsthorp ; and that the said Thomas and his heirs and the men and tenants of the said town and hamlet shall be quit of suits of counties and hundreds for their holdings there, on rendering to the king yearly at the Exchequer by the hands of the sheriff of Rutland 12*s.* 4*d.*, at Easter and Michaelmas in equal parts ; and that the said Thomas and his heirs shall have a yearly fair on the vigil and the day of the Exaltation of the Cross.

April 5. Westminster. 6 Whereas the king lately created Richard son and heir of Edward, late prince of Wales, duke of Cornwall and earl of Chester, to be prince of Wales, duke of Cornwall and earl of Chester, and conferred upon him two parts of the said principality and two parts of the duchy of Cornwall and of all other lands in England whether belonging to the said duchy or otherwise, late of the said Edward late prince of Wales, with the reversion of the remaining third part of the said principality, duchy and earldom and of the said lands, which part Joan, late the wife of the said Edward and mother of the said Richard, now holds in dower, to be held from the king by the said Richard and his heirs being kings of England as in the said charter is fully contained ;

now the king wishing to provide further for the said Richard has hereby given to him all the customs of all wools, hides and wool-fells that may be put on board in any part in the duchy of Cornwall, to be received, by the hands of those whom he may appoint to collect them, by him and his heirs being dukes of Cornwall by hereditary succession to the realm ; with further grant to the said Richard that he and his heirs shall have within the honours of Wallingford and St. Valery and the fees thereof return of all the king's writs and summonses, and all fines, redemptions and amercements of all the men and tenants of the same honours and fees, forfeited issues and all things that can belong to the king and his heirs from year, day, waste, forfeitures and murders, in whatever court of the king's the same may be imposed or adjudged, so that the said duke and his heirs by their bailiffs and ministers may collect the same in the said honours and fees, if such be adjudged before the king's justices in eyre and of the forest by estreats of the said justices in their eyres to be by them delivered to the said bailiffs and ministers and may also receive the same in whatever other court imposed or adjudged by estreats of the Exchequer to be delivered to the said bailiffs and ministers by the hands of the sheriffs in whose bailiwicks the said honours and fees are, without impediment ; and that the said Richard and his heirs shall have in the said honours and fees the chattels of felons and fugitives, so that if any of their men and tenants for any offence ought to lose life or limb or shall flee and refuse to abide judgment or shall have committed any other offence for which he ought to lose his chattels wherever justice ought to be done upon him whether in the king's court or elsewhere, the said chattels shall go to the said Richard and his heirs, who may put themselves in seisin thereof and retain them to their own use without any impediment from the king or his ministers. MEMBRANE 1.

June 4. Shene. 1 Whereas by charter indented the king gave to John, king of Castille and Leon, Duke of Lancaster, the castle, manor and honour of Tikhill with other lands specified in the said charter to be held by him and the heirs of his body in exchange for the county of Richemond and the honour, castles, manors and other things thereto belonging, which were given to the king and his heirs by the said John ; and whereas the said John in a petition has set forth that the town of Grenstede as though parcel of the manor of Marsfeld, the town of Seford as though parcel of the castle and lowey of Pevensey, and the town of Laghton in Morthyng as though parcel of the castle and honour of Tikhull were delivered to him at an assigned value by way of exchange, no special mention being made of the said towns in that charter, and that these three towns are really gross and not pertaining to the manor of Marsfeld, the castle and lowey of Pevensey or the castle and honour of Tikhill and never were, as he is now given to understand ; and lest this lack of any special mention should hurt his occupation of the said towns, the said John has prayed the king to grant to him by name the said towns of Grensted, Seford and Laghton to be held with the castle, manor and honour of Tikhill and the other lands given to them in exchange, with all liberties, quittances and immunities, which Philippa, late queen of England, who held the said castle, manor and honour of Tikhill and other lands given to the said John, had therein, in compensation for the liberties, quittances and immunities, which the said John had in the said county of Richmond before the exchange ;

now therefore the king, assenting to this prayer, out of special affection to the said John, has granted to him that he shall hold the said three towns whether they be gross (grossa) by themselves or appurtenant as aforesaid, with the castle, manor and honour of Tikhill and the other lands given to him by the king and with the following liberties, quittances and immunities, being those which Philippa, queen of England, had therein, as appears by inspection of the rolls of Chancery [cf. Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1330–1334, p. 55], to be held by our said son and the heirs of his body with all appurtenances as set out in the said indented charter, with view of frankpledge, hundreds, wapentakes, wreck, wayf, stray, royal liberties and all other things thereto belonging;

with further grant that he and his heirs shall have all fines, redemptions and amercements of all their men and tenants of and in the said castles, honours, manors, hundreds, towns, lands and places so given to them, and also in all the towns, hundreds and places whence yearly farms and rents granted to them arise; and that they shall have forfeited issues and all that can come to the king and his heirs from year, day and waste, forfeitures and murders; in whatever court of the king's any of the foregoing may be adjudged; so that the said John and his heirs by his bailiffs and ministers may receive the same, if adjudged before justices in eyre for common pleas or pleas of the forest, or before the steward, marshall or coroner of the king's household, by estreats to be delivered in the sessions of those courts to the said bailiffs; and if the same be adjudged before the king or in his chancery or before the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer or before the justices of the Bench, or those assigned to take assizes, or to deliver gaols or to hear felonies and trespasses or before any other of the king's justices or ministers, they shall be collected by estreats of the Exchequer to be delivered to the said bailiffs by the sheriffs, in whose bailiwicks the said castles, honours and so forth shall be;

and the said John and his heirs shall have therein chattels of felons and fugitives in the usual form, and return of all the king's writs and the summons of estreats and precepts of the exchequer and of precepts and estreats of the king's justices in eyre and other justices and the execution of the same by their bailiffs and ministers, so that no sheriff or other minister of the king shall enter to do any office there, save by the default of the said John and his heirs or their ministers;

moreover if any sheriff or bailiff of any liberty, hundred or wapentake be so negligent in any execution on behalf of the said John and his heirs of matters ordered by the king's writs or mandates, that they be amerced or make fine in the Exchequer or other court, the said amercements or fines shall go to the said John and his heirs.

Moreover, since the said citizens prayed in their said petition in parliament that although they have used the undermentioned customs from of old, until they lately were unjustly restrained therein, to wit, that no stranger of the liberty of the city shall sell to or buy from another stranger any merchandises within the liberty of the said city upon pain of forfeiture of the same, yet the king should for the staying of controversies in this part confirm this liberty by charter in express words ;

now the king hereby grants to the said citizens and their successors that no merchant foreign from (extraneus a) the liberty of the said city shall sell any merchandise within the liberty of the said city to any other foreign merchant or buy the same from any such upon pain of forfeiture thereof, saving the privileges of the king's liege of Aquitaine, provided that such purchase and sale (emptio et venditio) only take place between merchant and merchant ; and in the said petition the citizens also set forth that they hold immediately of the king and were never bound to be intendant to the precepts or mandates of any lord, constable, steward, marshall, admiral, clerk of the market, or other official of the king's but only to the king's precepts and mandates sealed (signatis) with the king's name and his public and privy seals, excepting the mandates of judges assigned according to the form of the charters of the citizens, and prayed that for the staying of controversies this might be expressed in the king's charter; and after deliberation thereon in parliament, answer was made in parliament in these words, 'soit usee come ad este dancien temps' ;

and in the said petition the citizens also set forth that by ancient custom all inquisitions ought to be taken by the citizens themselves touching customs, uses, impositions, and purprestures and other matters arising within the liberty of the said city, whether they regard the commonalty of the city or any office of the same ; and prayed that this might be set forth in express words ; and after deliberation as aforesaid the king has hereby granted, of special grace, that all such inquisitions shall be taken by citizens of the said city and not otherwise ; and the king further grants that in future protections given by the king to any persons starting or remaining on his service (obsequium) shall not hold good in pleas of debt for victuals bought for their voyage or employment, nor in pleas of trespass or contracts made hereafter when the plaintiff is a citizen of the said city ; and at the instance of the citizens the king charges the treasurer and barons and his other ministers of the Exchequer that no writ shall issue to bring (ad venire faciendum) the body of any person, imprisoned in the king's gaol of Neugate or elsewhere within the liberty of the said city for debts or damages in any actions to the citizens adjudged, that he may answer to the king or others in the Exchequer for the debts of the king or any minister thereof, unless first the said barons and ministers shall find by examination that the said debt is a true debt and not a debt feigned before the prisoner was condemned ; and the king has also granted that if any doubt arise as to the meaning of the charters granted to the citizens by the king and his progenitors, the king at the request of the citizens will interpret the same. By K. and pet. of C.

and confirming a charter dated at Westminster, 28 March 7 Edward II [Calendar, Vol. III. p. 296], inspecting and confirming with additions the following :—

1. A charter, dated at Westminster, 12 June 13 Edward I [Ibid. Vol. II. p. 318], inspecting and confirming the following :—
   (1) A charter dated at Marlborough, 18 March 9 John. [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 175.]
   (2) A charter dated at Norwich, 25 March 40 Henry III. [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 318.]
   (3) A charter dated at Norwich, 25 March 40 Henry III. [Ibid.]
   (4) Letters patent dated at St. Paul's, London, 28 September 45 Henry III.
2. Letters patent dated at Westminster, 1 July 13 Edward I. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1281–1292, p. 182.]
3. Letters patent dated at St. Albans, 28 April 26 Edward I. [Ibid. 1292–1301, p. 349.]
4. Letters patent dated at Beverley, 22 July 34 Edward I. [Ibid. 1301–1307, p. 455.]

Moreover, after reciting the purport of a charter in favour of the said burgesses, dated 22 August 46 Edward III which charter in a parliament held at Westminster on the morrow of St. George, 50 Edward III [see above, p. 224], was cancelled, saving to the said burgesses their liberties under the charters of preceding kings ; and in consideration of the petition put forward in Parliament by the burgesses of Great Ternemuth setting forth that they bear yearly great charges and have no advantage saving liberties and privileges, and that their town is situated in so dangerous a place near to the sea that without new grants and liberties they can nowise support their burdens and resist those perils, and also that the new liberties and privileges, if restored to them, would be for the advantage of the king and all the realm, and praying for their restitution accordingly ; and since the commonalty of the realm of England in the said parliament have also petitioned the king setting forth that great complaint in several parliaments has been made touching the dearness of herrings and praying for a remedy ;

the king, after full deliberation with the prelates and magnates in the present parliament, and for the aid of the town of Great Jernemuth and all the adjacent country and for the public weal and lest the said town for lack of these liberties and privileges should remain desolate, with the assent and advice of the said prelates and magnates, has hereby given to the burgesses and commonalty of the town of Great Jernemuth and their heirs and successors the aforesaid place called Kirkelerode and annexes the same to the said town and port, to be held by the said burgesses, good men and their successors from the king and his heirs, so that they shall have in the said place of Kirklerode all the aforesaid liberties and quittances expressed in the aforesaid charters ; and that they shall have and receive from all ships and boats that may be unladen in part or wholly at the said place of Kirklerode the same customs that they would have had from the said ships and boats, if they were unladen in part or wholly at the town itself ;

moreover, the king has granted that no ship or boat shall be laden or unladen, at any town or place upon the sea-coast within seven leagues (leucas) from Great Yarmouth by any person of any herrings or other merchandise, unless the ship or boat, herrings and merchandise be the property of that person and not of any other, but only at the town of Great Yarmouth or in its port or at the said place of Kirkelerode ; and also that at the time of the herring fishery and fair no fair shall be held nor any buying or selling be done anywhere within the space of seven leagues about the said town but only at the town of Great Yarmouth, or in its port ; and the king hereby declares that no person shall within the said space load or unload any ship or boat not his own of any herring or merchandise not belonging to him, or hold any fair or buy or sell any herrings or other merchandise, save only as aforesaid, on pain of forfeiture of the ships, boats, herrings and other merchandise concerned, the said forfeitures to be applied to the king's use ; of which forfeitures the bailiffs of the said town shall enquire and take them into the king's hands and cause them to be kept safely ; and for these and for the additional farm of 100*s.* beyond the old farm they shall answer at the Exchequer according to the form of the gift and confirmation of the king's grandfather, notwithstanding the revocation thereof ;

moreover, the king has revoked certain letters patent of Edward III granted to the town and men of Leystoft so far as they are contrary to this charter, provided always that any person, whether of the town or not, during the said fair may sell and buy herrings without impediment, as freely as the burgesses of the town.

May 30. Westminster. 2 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the prior and convent of Holy Trinity, London, of the following :—

1. Henricus, dei gratia rex Anglorum archiepiscopis, episcopis, abbatibus, comitibus, baronibus, vicecomitibus, et omnibus ministris et fidelibus suis, salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et presenti carta confirmasse canonicatum regularium canonicorum Sancte Trinitatis Londonie quem uxor mea M. regina ibi constituit esse stabilem imperpetuum et liberum a subjectione omnium ecclesiarum ; et ut ipsi canonici claudant viam que est inter ecclesiam suam et murum civitatis. Concessi etiam eisdem canonicis pro anima mea et anima M. regine conjugis nee viginti quinque libras blanchas annuatim in puram et perpetuam elemosinam de redditibus ipsius M. regine in Exonia quas ipsa M. regina assensu meo illis dedit in vita sua ; et ita ut quicumque vicecomes fuerit in Exonia eas reddat predictis canonicis ad Pascham et ad festum Sancti Michaelis Londonia sicut unquam melius reddite fuerunt. Preterea dedi eisdem canonicis portam de Alegata cum socca ad eam pertinente. Et concessi eisdem canonicis quod habeant soccam de Anglica Cnichtenegilda cum terris et omnibus libertatibus suis ad eandem soccam infra civitatem Londonie et extra pertinentibus. Volo etiam et firmiter precipio quod predicti canonici et eorum homines omnes terras et possessiones et feoda sua et elemosinas suas tam in ecclesiis quam in rebus et possessionibus mundanis habeant et teneant cum omnibus libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus et quietantiis suis in bosco et plano, in pratis et pasturis, in aquis et molendinis, in viis et semitis, in stagnis et vivariis, in mariscis et piscariis, in grangiis et virgultis, infra civitatem et extra, intra burgum et extra, cum soca et saca et toll et team et infangenethyef ; et quod ipsi canonici et homines sui liberi sint et quieti imperpetuum de omnibus geldis et scotis et witis et assisis et de omnibus auxiliis vicecomitum et minsterilium eorum et de omnibus sectis de syris et hundredis et leth' et hustengis de placitis et querelis. Et quieti sint et liberi de hidagiis et taillagiis, de excercitibus et equitationibus, de oneribus expeditionum et vigiliis faciendis, de operationibus castellorum, parcorum, pontium, vivariorum, murorum et omnibus clausuris, et de omni careio et summagio et navigio et domuum regalium edificatione et omnimoda operatione et de omni seculari servicio et exactione et de omnibus occasionibus. Concessi etiam quod prefati canonici et homines sui sint quieti ab omni theloneo in omni foro et in omnibus nundinis et in omni transitu viarum pontium et maris per totum regnum meum. Et homines qui tenent de predictis canonicis tam in civitate Londonie quam extra non placitent nisi in curia ipsorum canonicorum ubi placitare debent. Et prohibeo super forisfacturam meam quod non ponantur in placitum de aliquo tenemento suo nisi coram me vel capitali justitiario meo. Et quod nullus eis vel hominibus suis contra hanc cartam meam in aliquo forisfaciat, quoniam ipsi et omnes terre et possessiones sue et hominum suorum sunt in custodia et speciali protectione mea. Testibus Rannulfo cancellario, G. de Clinton, Radulfo Basset apud Norhamptonam. [Letter Book C, p. 73. 1100–1118.]

2. Stephanus rex Anglorum episcopo Londoniensi, justitie, vicecomiti, baronibus, ministris et omnibus fidelibus suis, Francis et Anglis, Hertfordschire, salutem. Sciatis me dedisse et concessisse ecclesie Sancte Trinitatis Londonie et canonicis ibidem deo servientibus c. solidatas terre in manerio meo de Bracching in perpetuam elemosinam pro requie animarum scilicet Baldewini filii mei et Mathildis filie mee, qui in eadem ecclesia sepulti requiescunt. Preterea concessi et dedi eidem ecclesie et canonicis vj. libratas terre in eodem manerio de Bracchyng pro escambio molendini sui et illius partis terre sue quam concesserunt Mathildi regine uxori mee juxta turrim Londonie ubi ipsa fecit hospitale pauperum, illas dico vj. libratas terre illis concessi quas retinueram in dominio meo postquam partitus fui ceteras partes illius manerii, hoc est partem illam in qua fundata est ecclesia et ad quam etiam forum pertinet. Quare volo et firmiter precipio quod ecclesia predicta et canonici hanc predictam terram teneant et imperpetuum possideant bene et in pace et libere et honorifice et quiete ab omni seculari exactione sicut elemosinam dominicam cum saca et socna, toll et theam et infangenetheof et cum omnibus aliis liberis consuetudinibus suis cum quibus tenent alias possessiones suas. Testibus Teobaldo archiepiscopo Cantuariensi et Roberto episcopo Londoniensi et Roberto episcopo Herefordensi et Roberto episcopo Exoniensi et Ilario episcopo Cicestrensi et Willelmo episcopo Norwicensi et M. regina et comite E. filio meo et Willelmo de Ipra et Roberto de Ver et Willelmo Martel et H. de Essexa et Ricardo de Luci et Warnero de Lusoriis apud Londoniam. [Ibid., p. 222. 1148.]

3. S. rex Anglorum episcopo Londoniensi et vicecomitibus et prepositis et ministris et omnibus baronibus suis Francis et Anglicis Londonie, salutem. Precipio ut hoc quod canonici Sancte Trinitatis Londonie tenent de elemosina mea et donatione Matildis regine uxoris Henrici regis infra Londoniam et extra omnino sit in pace et quietum de omnibus geldis et scotis et auxiliis et consuetudinibus et querelis sicut umquam melius fuit in aliquo tempore. Et volo et firmiter precipio quod bene et honorifice et libere teneant ubicunque et de quocumque teneant cum saca et soca et toll et team et infangenetheof et omnibus consuetudinibus suis sicut rex Henricus per cartam suam canonicis predicte ecclesie concessit et confirmavit. Et super hoc prohibeo super forisfactum meum ne aliquis sit ausus hominibus suis vel aliis rebus ad ecclesiam Sancte Trinitatis pertinentibus ullo modo injuriam vel contumeliam facere. Et homines illius ecclesie non placitent nisi ubi placitare debent, scilicet in curia predicte ecclesie quia nolo quod jus suum decidat tempore meo vel decrescat. Testibus episcopo Wintoniensi et Willelmo de Ponte Arca apud Westmonasterium. [? 1135.]

4. Stephanus rex Anglorum vicecomitibus et baronibus Londonii, salutem. Precipio quod prior et canonici Sancte Trinitatis Londonie teneant homines suos et terram suam de Anglica Cnichtenegilda ita bene et in pace et juste et quiete et honorifice sicut antecessores eorum tenuerunt melius et liberius tempore Willelmi regis avi mei et Willelmi et Henrici regum avunculorum meorum et meo et tempore Liovestani et ipsi postea hucusque melius. Et super hoc quieti sint de warda et forisfactura ejus sicut mea propria elemosina quia juste debent inde esse quieti et sicut tam ipsi quam antecessores eorum semper hucusque inde quieti fuerunt sicut carta Regis Henrici testatur. Testibus M. regina et Warnero de Lusoriis apud Bermundeseiam. [1135–1154.]
5. S. rex Anglorum episcopo Londoniensi, justitie, vicecomitibus, baronibus, ministris et omnibus fidelibus suis Francis et Anglis, Londonie, salutem. Sciatis quia reddidi et concessi deo et ecclesie Sancte Trinitatis Londonie, et canonicis regularibus ibidem deo servientibus pro anima regis Henrici et pro salute mea et Mathildis regine uxoris mee et Eustacii filii mei et aliorum puerorum meorum imperpetuum terram suam de Smethefelda quam comes Gaufridus preoccupaverat ad vineam suam faciendam. Quare volo et firmiter precipio quod bene et in pace, libere et quiete et honorifice teneant et habeant terram predictam sicut melius et liberius et quietius tenent alias terras suas et sicut rex Henricus illam eis concessit et carta sua confirmavit. Testibus, M. regina et Thoma Capellano et Willelmo de Ipra et Ricardo de Luci apud Londoniam. [1143–1148 Pipe Roll Society, Vol. X, p. 48.]
6. S. rex Anglorum episcopo Londoniensi justitie, vicecomiti, baronibus et omnibus ministris et fidelibus suis Francis et Anglis de Essexa, salutem. Sciatis me concessisse deo et priori et canonicis Sancte Trinitatis Londonie pro anima patris mei et matris mee et pro salute amicorum et parentum et predecessorum meorum ij. hidas terre in Leytona quas Sim' de Molend' et Adelina uxor ejus et postea Robertus de Ver eis dederunt in elemosinam. Quare volo et firmiter precipio quod ipsi teneant bene et in pace et libere et quiete et honorifice in bosco et plano et pratis et pasturis et aquis et semitis cum soca et saca et tol et team et infangenethef et cum omnibus aliis rebus et libertatibus et quietantiis que ad illas pertinent cum quibus prefatus Sim' et uxor ejus unquam melius vel liberius tenuerunt et sicut ipsi eis eas dederunt et concesserunt. Testibus, Roberto Caus, et Willelmo Martel et Fulcone de † Dilli † apud Westmonasterium. [1135–1154.]
7. S. Rex Anglorum justitie et vicecomiti et baronibus et ministris et omnibus fidelibus suis Francis et Anglis de Hertfordscira, salutem. Precipio quod omnes illi qui venerunt ad forum canonicorum Sancte Trinitatis Londonie de Bracching ibidem

commorantes et inde redeuntes meam firmam pacem habeant. Et prohibeo quod nullus super hoc disturbet eos vel res suas injuste super x. libras forisfacture. Teste W. Martel apud Bermundeseiam. [1135–1154.]

8. H. rex Anglorum et dux Normannorum et Aquitanorum et comes Andegavorum archiepiscopis, episcopis, abbatibus, comitibus, vicecomitibus, et ministris suis Londonie et totius Anglie et omnibus fidelibus suis Francis et Anglis, salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et confirmasse canonicatum regularium canonicorum in ecclesia Christi Londonie quem rex H. avus meus et Matildis regina uxor ejus avia mea ibi instituerunt esse stabilem imperpetuum et liberum ab omni subjectione preter episcopi Sancti Pauli. Et volo et precipio quod idem canonici bene et in pace et honorifice et libere teneant omnes terras suas et omnes res ecclesie sue pertinentes cum saca et soca et toll et team et infangenethef et cum omnibus consuetudinibus suis de quibuscumque teneant tam infra civitatem quam extra. Precipio etiam ut hoc quod prefati canonici tenent de elemosina et donatione regis H. avi mei et regine Matildis et mea omnino sit in pace et quietum de omnibus geldis et scotis et auxiliis et consuetudinibus et querelis sicut unquam melius fuit in aliquo tempore. Et prohibeo super foresfactum meum ne aliquis sit ausus hominibus vel rebus ad predictam ecclesiam pertinentibus ullo modo injuriam vel contumeliam facere. Et homines illius ecclesie non placitent nisi ubi placitare debent scilicet in curia predicte ecclesie. Testes regina Alienora et Herbertus Albrincensis episcopus et Tomas cancellario et Ricardus de Luci et Unfridus de Bohun dapifer et Radulfus de Hastynges apud Londoniam. [1155–1158.]

9. *Henricus, rex † Anglie † vicecomitibus et baronibus Lundonie, salutem. Precipio quod prior et canonici Sancte Trinitatis Lundonie teneant homines suos et terram suam de Anglica Chenitewilda ita bene et in pace et juste et quiete et honorifice sicut antecessores eorum umquam liberius tenuerunt tempore patris mei et fratres mei et meo et tempore Levestani et ipsi postea hucusque melius. Nov. 16. Westminster. 30 Whereas Edward, late earl of Chester, the king's father, lately inter alia granted to the prioress and nuns of St. Mary, Chester, that all their men and tenants whether at will or for a term of years, who were not of the gild merchant of that city or sworn to the liberty of that town, should be free from murage, stallage, passage, toll, watch, customs, pontage, mises and taxations, as in that charter is contained, and whereas now the said prioress and nuns have petitioned the king, setting forth that though they have hitherto used the said liberties and quittances for themselves, their men and their servants and their tenants as well whole (integris) as others by virtue of this charter, they are now being impeded in their enjoyment of the same, and praying for a remedy herein ;

now the king for the removal of all ambiguity has hereby granted to the said prioress and nuns that they and their men and servants, who are not within the gild merchant of the city of Chester or sworn to the liberty of the said city, being in the service of the said prior and nuns, and all their tenants for a term of years or at will, dwelling upon the lands and tenements of the prioress and nuns, even though the said tenants hold parcels of lands of other persons, shall be quit of all the foregoing. Aug. 3. Nottingham. 29

Whereas Edward III by a charter which the king has confirmed granted to the bishop, prior and convent of Ely that they and their successors should have year and waste, chattels of felons fugitive and condemned and all other forfeitures thereto belonging within two hundreds in the isle of Ely, the hundred and a half of Midford, the five hundreds and a half of Wyckelawe and the Trilling of Wyneston as well of the men and tenants of their own fees as of those of others, as in the charter and confirmation more fully appears ; and whereas Thomas now bishop of Ely, the king's cousin, and the prior and convent have petitioned the king, setting forth that although they claim under the general words of this charter to have the lands, tenements, goods and chattels of certain men and tenants of their fee and of other fees who have been condemned to death before the king's justices by reason of the late insurrection against the king, yet the king's escheators in the counties of Cambridge, Norfolk and Suffolk have seized all the said lands, tenements, goods and chattels as forfeited, against the form of the said charter, whereupon the bishop, prior and convent have prayed the king to give to them the said goods and chattels and to grant to them the said lands to hold in frank almoin, and have further prayed that for their better security and the removal of all ambiguity, to the end that they and their successors by such an insurrection be not wronged touching such forfeitures, the king should declare the meaning of the said general words ;

now the king, out of devotion to St. Etheldreda, whose holy body was translated in the church of Ely, where, while he was there present, the king saw many wonders wrought by the divine power on the intercession of that glorious virgin, among others in the bestowal of sight upon a knight of the king's, who was blinded by lightning in the night time, which miracle took place in the king's presence in the company of many persons, and also out of affection to the said bishop, of special grace and with the assent of the council, hereby grants that the bishop, prior and convent shall have all the goods and chattels of their own men and tenants in their own fee and of others' men and tenants in others' fees, which have been forfeited or seized by reason of the said insurrections, and that they shall also have and hold in frank almoin all lands and tenements of such rebels in those places forfeited in like manner ; and in case of any such future insurrection, which God forbid, the king hereby declares with the consent of his council that the said bishop, prior and convent and their successors shall have all forfeitures of lands, goods and chattels, which by reason of such insurrection of the commons may come to the king within the Isle of Ely, in frank almoin, and that they may take all such forfeitures by their own ministers, so that no minister of the king's shall intermeddle therein, nor shall the bishop, prior and convent or any of them be put in question for any such seizure.

July 9. Westminster. 28

Inspeximus in favour of the abbot and convent of St. John's, Colchester, of letters patent dated at Westminster, 28 March 51 Edward III [Patent Roll, 51 Edward III. m. 25], inspecting and confirming the following :—

1. A charter of Henry I dated at Westminster. [Cartulary, Vol. I. p. 27.]
2. A charter dated at Westminster, 28 January 37 Henry III. [Calendar, Vol. I. p. 418. Cartulary, Vol. I. p. 55.]
3. A charter dated at Westminster, 22 March 37 Henry III [Calendar, Vol. I. p. 423. Cartulary, Vol. I. p. 57], inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Roche Andely, 30 October 10 Richard I. [Ibid. Ibid.]
4. A charter dated at Westminster, 23 March 37 Henry III. [Calendar, Vol. I. p. 423. Cartulary, Vol. I. p. 56.]

And considering that the said abbey, which is of the foundation of the king's ancestors and of his patronage, has been in the hands of the king and his grandfather by the death of five abbots there within twelve years, and that one abbot lent to Edward III 40*l.*, no part of which has been repaid, as appears by a certificate thereof into the chancery by the treasurer and chamberlains, and seeing that the abbot and convent by their letters patent have acquitted the king of the said sum, and have delivered two tallies levied thereof into the chancery, which have been sent to the treasurer and chamberlains to be cancelled, the king hereby confirms all the foregoing, with clause licet. By p.s. [2854.]

MEMBRANE 17.

Dec. 15. Westminster. 27

Whereas King Edward III by charter granted to Thomas de Camoys, cousin and heir of Ralph de Camoys, that he and his heirs should have a weekly market on Saturday at their manor of Bradewatre, co. Sussex, and a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Barnabas, and now the said Thomas prays that for the quiet of those parts he may have licence to transfer the market to Monday, the king has hereby granted the licence prayed for. By K.

Dec. 21. Sheen. 26

Adam, bishop of St. Davids, has petitioned the king setting forth, that he holds his bishopric and a certain parcel thereof of the king as of his crown wholly, and that he and his predecessors have always used royal jurisdiction in all their demesnes of the said bishopric, in cognisance of all pleas personal and real and those of the crown at their own prosecution and that of others, with all the profits thence arising after the customs of those parts, and that no king or lord marcher had ever intermeddled therein, and that King Henry III by his charter granted A. bishop of that church that he and his successors should be quit of all pleas, plaints and suits save before the king and his heirs or justices specially assigned, and that they should have their free court of their men, who should not be bound to answer of any plaint elsewhere than in the court of the said bishops save before the king and his heirs or justices assigned therefor, and this by the king's special mandate, saving always the king's dignity; and the said bishop thereupon prayed the king to provide against any infringement of these liberties.

And the king, at the special request of the archbishop of Canterbury and all the clergy of that province, of special grace, has hereby granted that the said bishop and his successors shall have all the foregoing liberties and all other liberties as fully as any of the Lords Marchers in the marches of Wales have them, and that all their tenants and those dwelling in their demesnes shall not be bound to answer elsewhere than in the court of the said bishop and his successors; and that the said bishop and his successors shall be quit of all pleas, plaints, suits and impeachments moved against them save before the king and his council, saving always the king's dignity.

By king's letter of the signet.

Dec. 28. Westminster 25

Whereas by a statute of the parliament held at York in the ninth year of Edward III it was ordained that all merchants, foreign or native, and all other men who wished to buy or sell merchandise or other goods at any place within the realm, might sell the same without impediment and might also freely buy and carry the same where they would for their own use or for the profit of the king, the magnates and the people of the realm, notwithstanding any charter of liberties, use or custom or any judgements rendered thereon;

and whereas John, bishop of Durham, has now petitioned the king setting forth that his predecessors were wont to have great yearly profit from the coals in their soil within their country called the bishopric and royal liberty of Durham, and especially by the shipping (deliberationem) and passage which they had thereof by the ships and vessels which came to fetch this coal in the water of Tyne, which profit was great part of the revenue of the church of Durham, and the men of the town of Newcastle upon Tyne for their own profit have been impeding the bishop and those who wished to buy coal there against the form of the said statute and to the prejudice of the church of Durham and the diminution of the profit of the said bishop; and in particular where the said bishop by the grants of the king's progenitors to the bishop's predecessors ought to have the putting in of ships on the side of his said country called the bishopric in the said water, the said men and their ministers prevent any vessel putting in on the side of the bishopric in the said water or from carrying or taking on board such coal and will not permit the bishop to have any vessels of his own in that water for the shipping such coal; and the said men without any grant or royal authority for their own profit have laid impositions and heavy charges upon every chaldron of coals put on board in the said water, and exact the same from all men who purchase and ship the coal of the bishop to the damage of the bishop, who has thereby not received such profit as he ought to have done from his coal since his accession to the see;

and therefore the bishop prays a remedy herein; and the king considering the service rendered by the bishop to his father and himself, of special grace and sure knowledge, has hereby granted to the said bishop and his successors for the peace and quiet of the church and bishopric that merchants and others friendly to the realm of England, who wish to put in with their ships and vessels on the side of the said country called the bishopric and royal liberty of Durham in any place in the said water and there to load or unload coal or other merchandise, may do so and take any such coal and merchandise whither they will without impediment from the men of Newcastle or others; and the said bishops may have their own vessels in the said water where they will to serve for the shipping (deliberatione) of their coal and for the carriage of it whither they will, and for selling the same to merchants or other purchasers, who shall have power to ship the coal and take it whither they will without any impediment or any charge levied by the men of Newcastle in the said water, notwithstanding any charter, liberty or custom that can be alleged against the said statute; provided always that this grant shall not extend to the shipping of wools, hides and wool-fells to parts without the realm from other places than those ordained by the king; and provided that the bishop and all acting on his behalf shall observe any ordinances forbidding the export of merchandise to the enemies of the king or his realm. MEMBRANE 5.

July 22. Bristol Castle. 7. The master and brethren of the hospital of St. Thomas the Martyr in Suthwerk have petitioned the king setting forth that the said hospital was founded for the aid and support of poor siek men by the alms of the faithful, and that within its elose many strangers, out of devotion to the hospitality of that place, have built houses on vaeant sites therein for the improvement of the hospital, and still intend to build sueh houses, and therein the said strangers do dwell, whieh houses the master and brethren are too poor to build themselves, and that the residents within the elose of the said hospital had never been assessed to any subsidy, tenth, fifteenth or other tax (taxam), tallage or quota, before a subsidy of 4*d.* from every lay person of the realm was granted to Edward III ; and the said master and brethren have prayed that they and all other persons resident in the hospital may have a eharter of exemption from sueh taxes, tallages and eharges ; now therefore the king eonsidering that the residenee of strangers within the elose of the hospital is of mueh relief to the poverty of the master, brethren and sick, has hereby granted that they and all dwelling within the close of the said hospital shall be quit of all tenths, fifteenths, aids, subsidies, taxes, tallages and other eontributions, quotas and eharges whatsoever that may be granted to the king from any their goods, ehattels, rents or possessions within the said hospital and its close, provided always that they shall remain liable for their goods and possessions without the said hospital and its elose.

1. A charter dated at Westminster, 12 June 13 Edward I [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 318], inspecting and confirming the following :—
   (1) A charter dated at Marlborough, 18 March 9 John. [Rotuli Chartarum, p. 175.]
   (2) A charter dated at Norwich, 25 March, 40 Henry III. [Calendar, Vol. II. p. 318.]
   (3) A charter dated at Norwich, 25 March 40 Henry III. [Ibid.]
   (4) Letters patent dated at St. Paul's, London, 28 September 45 Henry III. [Ibid.]
2. Letters patent dated at Westminster, 1 July 13 Edward I. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1281–1292, p. 182.]
3. Letters patent dated at St. Albans, 28 April 26 Edward I. [Ibid. 1292–1301, p. 349.]
4. Letters patent dated at Beverley, 22 July 34 Edward I. [Ibid. 1301–1307, p. 455.]

and whereas by a charter, with clause licet, dated 22 August in his 46th year King Edward III ratified to the burgesses and good men the foregoing liberties; and moreover for the relief of the town and in consideration of an increase of 100*s.* on the farm of 55*l.* gave to the burgesses and good men a place in the high sea near the entrance of the port of the said town called Kirkelerode and annexed the same to the said town and port to be held by the burgesses and good men so annexed, intending that they should have in the said place of Kirkelerode all the liberties granted by the charters of his progenitors and his own confirmation thereof, and also should take from all ships and boats, which may happen to come to the said place and there unload in part or wholly, the same customs that they would have if the said ships and boats had come to the said town and there unloaded wholly or in part; and whereas the said king also granted to the said burgesses that no ship or any boat shall be loaded or unloaded at any town or place upon the sea-coast within seven leagues (leucas) from Great Jernemuth of any herring or other goods by any person other than the owner of the said ship, boat or cargo, but only at the town or port of Great Jernemuth or at the place of Kirkelerode, and also that at the time of the fishery and the fair of herrings no fair or other sale or purchase by way of trade shall take place within a space of seven leagues from the said town, but only at the town itself or in its port; and the said king also forbade anyone to load or unload any ship or boat not being his own of any herrings or merchandise not being his own within the said distance of seven leagues save in the said town, port or place, or to hold any fair or sale or purchase of herrings or merchandise at the aforesaid time save in the said town or port on pain of the forfeiture of such ship, boat, herrings or merchandise, providing also that the bailiffs of Great Yarmouth should inquire of such forfeitures and take them into the king's hands and answer for the same at the Exchequer; and the said king also revoked certain letters patent granted to the men of Loystoft which were inconsistent with this charter;

all which liberties so granted were revoked as harmful to the king and his people in a parliament held at Westminster in the fiftieth year of Edward III; and whereas subsequently at the petition of the burgesses and good men of Great Jernemuth and of the commonalty of England in a parliament held at Gloucester in his second year the present king granted to the burgesses and commonalty of the said town the liberties contained in the said charter of Edward III and afterwards annulled, which charter in a parliament held at Westminster in his fifth year was afterwards annulled;

and whereas now the commonalty of the realm of England by their petition in the present parliament have prayed that, in consideration of the increased burthens laid upon the said town in the farm thereof and in the tenth granted by the said parliament and in the fortification of the town against the enemy, which burthens exceed those laid upon any other town in the six surrounding counties, and have impoverished the town and caused so many to leave it, that the remaining burgesses cannot sustain these charges, the king would restore the aforesaid liberties to the said burgesses;

now therefore the king with the assent of the prelates, dukes, earls, barons and magnates at the petition of the commons and for 100*s.* to be paid yearly by the burgesses by way of increment upon their farm of 55*l.* has hereby granted to the burgesses and good men aforesaid and their heirs and successors the said place of Kirkelerode and annexed it to the town and port, and has also granted all the liberties and quittances set out above, with revocation of the letters patent in favour of the men of Lowistoft; provided that any person whether alien or liege coming to the said town or its port to buy or sell herrings may freely do so during the said fair and carry the said herring thence at his will without impediment.

MEMBRANE 11.

Nov. 14. Westminster. 11 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the good men and all the commonalty of the county of Chester of the following :—

1. Letters patent dated at Westminster, 30 March 28 Edward I [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1292–1301, p. 499], inspecting and confirming a charter of Ranulf, earl of Chester and letters patent of Edward eldest son of King Henry III.
2. A charter of Edward, eldest son of the king of England and France, prince of Wales, duke of Cornwall, earl of Chester to the following effect :—when the said earl summoned an eyre to be held at Chester on Monday after the feast of the Assumption last past, all the commonalty of the county of Chester came and, in the presence of the justices assigned to hold the said eyre and seated in the hall of pleas for that purpose, alleged that that eyre, if carried on, would be harmful to the laws and customs of that county, because no such eyre had ever been held before ; and other reasons were alleged by them against the eyre and also by the justices in defence of the earl's right, and all were laid before the earl and the council on both sides ; whereupon the said commonalty tendered the earl a fine of 5,000 marks on condition that the eyre should cease and that other matters should be granted to them ; which fine after deliberation by the earl and his council was accepted (attemptato) ; and thereupon the commonalty came before the said justices sitting in the said hall in judgement and made a recognisance for the payment of the said 5,000 marks into the Exchequer of Chester on the days and year therein mentioned ; and thereupon the said justices by the earls precept adjourned all the pleas for which days were assigned before them in the said eyre from that eyre to the county of Chester next to be held ; and the earl also granted a respite of the said eyre for thirty years ; and wills that the session of the justices or the adjournment of pleas made by them shall not prejudice the said commonalty in future nor be drawn into a proof of the earl's possession of the said eyre, but that at the end of the said thirty years the said commonalty shall be in the same position to obtain relief from the said eyre as it was at the time at which the eyre now in question was summoned; and the earl has also granted that, although on account of many complaints made to him, he assigned justices to hear and determine all manner of felonies, trespasses, oppressions and other grievances, yet this act shall not prejudice the said commonalty nor be used to diminish the liberties, laws and customs enjoyed by them before this time, but that they shall be in the same position as they were before the making out of this commission; and for the said fine the earl has also granted that the said commonalty shall have all its laws and customs hitherto used and that they shall have all the liberties granted by Ranulf sometime earl of Chester and by King Edward I; and none of the said commonalty, arrested for trespass, shall in future pay aught for 'sueta prisone habenda,' but shall be dismissed by sufficient mainprise without paying aught therefore, unless he be convicted of this trespass, or be arrested by special mandate of the earl or for a cause for which there is no mainprise; none of the said county taken for felony shall have a heavier imprisonment or penalty than he ought reasonably to have, in order to make him pay quicker a heavier fine than he would do, if he were not so constrained; and if he is lawfully bailable (manucaptibilis), he is to be released on sufficient mainprise without paying anything for that reason; no one adjudged to die shall be executed if he will make fine with the earl at the earl's will, or put himself on the country, as the men of the county have been wont to do, unless he be convicted of that for which he was arrested or indicted at the suit of the party, or the cause be so horrible as not to admit of pardon;' none shall be put from (differatur) his suit in a plea of land by the plea (allegationem) that the earl's escheator has entered upon the land, unless it be truly found that the escheator has seized the land for a lawful cause; no man shall be bound to give an ox to the sheriff because of any writ brought against him or by him, unless in an assize of novel disseisin, where one of the disseisors has been convicted by judgement and the disseisor or disseisors so convicted shall give to the sheriff for one writ one ox, and no one for any entry shall in future be bound to give an ox; the sheriff shall in future make executions for debts recovered and admitted (recognitis) in the county or exchequer of Chester, or in the eyre of the justice without taking anything for making such execution; although in past times it was the custom, as the commonalty has it by charter, that if anyone was charged in the earl's court, he might defend himself by 'thwertnic,' yet because this custom is contrary to the common law and is the origin of trouble and destructive to peace, the earl now ordains with the consent of the commonalty that this defence shall not be allowed in future, and the said charter

Rysing and the houses then upon the said castle; saving always to Edmund Noon, the king's squire, for his life the water of Wygenhale with the profits thereof according to the tenor of the gift of the king's father and the king's confirmation thereof, which profits are valued at 8 marks yearly; and saving to John Gateneys the lands then held by him in Rysing, Rydon and Wotton for life, which are valued at 50*s.* yearly, and are parcels of the appurtenances of the castle and manor of Rysing, as appears by an extent thereof returned into the chancery; it being the king's will that the said duke and Joan his wife and his heirs should receive yearly from the issues of wools, hides and wool-fells in the port of Boston, at Easter and Michaelmas equally, 8 marks during the life of the said Edmund and 50*s.* during the life of the said John Gateneys by the hands of the collectors there until by the deaths of the said Edmund and John the said water and lands should come to the said duke, his wife or his heirs, upon which events the said payments from the customs should cease;

and afterwards on the 17th May in the 9th year by letters patent the king granted to his uncle, Thomas, duke of Gloucester, the castle and honour of Rysing with all appurtenances, which John de Monte Forti, duke of Brittany, held by the king's grant, to be held by the said Thomas and the heirs male of his body from the time when the castle and honour should come to the king's hands by the services due therefrom in part satisfaction of 1,000*l.* yearly which the king granted to him and his heirs male, when he created him a duke; in which letters patent no mention was made of the manor of Rysing by that name nor of the king's share in the Tholboth of Lenne nor of the water of Wygenhale, nor of the lands which John Gateneys held, nor of the sums granted out of the customs of Boston to the value of the said water and lands, nor was mention made in express words of all the appurtenances, nor of exemption from the annuities granted to William Oxwyck, John Herlyng, Henry Kirkestede and William Joce, and John Eyr, nor of the value for which the said castles and honour were reckoned;

now therefore, at the petition of his uncle, the king, of special grace, has given the said castle and manor of Rysing and his share of the said Tholbothe, quit of the said annuities, to be held by the king's uncle and the heirs male of his body with all appurtenances, here fully expressed, from the king and his heirs by the services due therefrom, as soon as the said castle, manor and share shall come to the king's hands to the value of 110*l.* yearly in part satisfaction of the yearly sum of 1,000*l.*; saving as aforesaid the water of Wygenhale and the lands in Rysing, Rydon and Wotton; it being the king's will that the king's uncle and the heirs male of his body shall receive in lieu of the said water and lands an annuity from the customs of Boston in the form above set out; with further grant that as soon as the said castle and manor and share or any parcel thereof come to the king's hands, his said uncle or his heirs may enter thereupon by their ministers and take possession thereof. 1392. MEMBRANE 29.

Feb. 15. Westminster. 28 By letters patent the king granted to Thomas duke of Gloucester, his uncle, when earl of Buckingham, for the support of that title, which was conferred upon him at the king's coronation, 1,000*l.*

receivable yearly at the Exchequer for life, so that if Eleanor his wife, one of the daughters and heirs of Humfrey de Bohun, late earl of Hereford, died without issue of their bodies, the said sum should remain to the said duke and the heirs of his body, until the king should provide lands, tenements or rents in England to that amount to be held by him and the heirs of his body [Report on the Dignity of a Peer, Vol. V. p. 96];

and afterwards by letters patent, at the request of the said duke, then earl, and with the assent of the king's council, the king granted that he should receive the said 1,000*l.* during the king's pleasure from the farms of the following alien priories and possessions in the king's hands by reason of the war between him and the French, that is from the priory of Ware 206*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, from the farm of the priory of Merseye 60*l.*, from the farm of the priory of Tackeleye 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, from the farm of the priory of Stoke by Clare 60*l.*, from the farm of the priory of Paunfeld and Welles 40*l.*, from the farm of the possessions of the abbess of Caen 266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, from the farm of the possessions of the abbot of Fécamp 200*l.*, from the farm of the priory of Swaveseye 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to be received from the farmers of the said priories and possessions [ibid.];

and by other letters patent with the assent of the great council the king granted to his said uncle that he should hold the said 1,000*l.* to himself and the heirs of his body although there should be issues of the marriage between him and the said Eleanor; it being the king's will that his uncle and the heirs of his body should have the said sum from the farms of the said priories and possessions in the above form so long as they are in the king's hands, and if for any cause they cease to be in the king's hands, then the said uncle and the heirs of his body should receive that sum yearly at the exchequer, until they were provided with land to that value, as aforesaid [ibid. p. 97]; and by other letters patent the king granted to his said uncle the custody of all the possessions of the alien abbess of Caen in England in the king's hands by reason of the war with France which John Bromwych, knight, lately held at fee farm for 400 marks yearly, to be held by the said duke and the heirs of his body so long as the said possessions shall be in the king's hands, to the value of 400 marks, which the king has granted to the said duke and his heirs to be received from the farm of the said possessions so long as they remain in the kings hands, in part satisfaction of the 1,000*l.* granted to the said duke and his heirs, as earl of Buckingham, by rendering to the king beyond the said sum of 400 marks 40*s.* yearly only payable at the Exchequer [ibid. p. 98]; and afterwards by charter of special grace with the assent of the prelates and magnates of the realm and others of the council in parliament and at the request and with the assent of all the commonalty of the realm in the said parliament assembled, the king gave to the said duke the said 1,000*l.* yearly to be received by him and the heirs of his body at the Exchequer and elsewhere in the following manner, to wit 733*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* from the issues of the following alien priories and possessions, from the priory of Ware 206*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, from the priory of Mersey 60*l.*, from the priory of Tackeleye, 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and from the priory of Stoke by Clare 60*l.*, from the priory of Paunfeld and Welles 40*l.*, from the possessions of the abbey of Fécamp 200*l.*, from the priory of Swavesey 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, so long as the said priories and possessions were in the king's hands; and by the same charter the king granted to the said duke the custody of the lands of the abbess of Caen in England, to be held by him and the heirs of his body to the value of 400 marks yearly in part satisfaction of the said sum of 1,000*l.* by rendering yearly at the Exchequer 40*s.* only and by keeping up the houses and buildings belonging to the said possessions; so that if the said priories and possessions shall cease to be in the king's hands for any cause, then the said duke and the heirs of his body should receive the said 1,000*l.* yearly at the Exchequer, until the king should have assigned to them lands in England to that value, and they should have had seisin thereof [Ibid. pp. 96–101];

and by charter of special grace, and by the assent and at the request aforesaid, the king granted to the said Duke and his said heirs the remainder of the manor of Brustewyk with members, which Anne queen of England holds for life of the king's grant with reversion to the king, to be held with all appurtenances from the king by the services due therefrom to the value of 600*l.* yearly in part satisfaction of the said sum of 1,000*l.* yearly; and by the same charter the king granted to his said uncle and the heirs of his body the remainder of the castle, town, lordship and manor of Okeham, co. Rutland, and of the office of sheriff of that county (vicecomitatus), which King Edward III granted to William de Bohun, late earl of Northampton and the heirs male of his body, whereof Joan, countess of Hereford, holds in dower all the lands and rents which Humfrey de Bohun, late earl of Hereford, held to him and the heirs male of his body in the town of Langham, a member of the said castle and manor, excepting 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, which the bondmen of Langham pay yearly for the aid called 'Scorfe,' and the profits († perquisite †) of the court of all the soke of Okeham, by the assignment of dower made to her by King Edward III after the death of the said Humphrey, she to render therefor at the Exchequer 44*s.* yearly, and whereof the present king granted to John de Overton, esquire. by letters patent the issues and profits of the fairs and markets of the town of Okeham, which are worth 20*l.* yearly, to hold for life and afterwards on the restoration into the chancery of these letters to be cancelled the king by the assent of his council granted to the said John 20*l.* yearly receivable for life from the issues of the county of York, payable by the sheriff; and the king after the said assignment and grant gave to his cousin Edward, earl of Rutland, the son of Edmund, duke of York, for the life of the said duke, the said castle, town and lordship of Okeham, co. Rutland and the office of sheriff of the county of Rutland with all appurtenances to hold as the said late William de Bohun, earl of Northampton, had them for his life; all the which lands, castle, town, lordship and office on the falling in of the reversions thereof remain to Thomas duke of Gloucester aforesaid and the heirs of his body, to be held by him and his said heirs for the support of his dignity as earl of Buckingham, with all appurtenances, as the said late earl of Northampton held them, excepting the king's forest of Roteland, which is not parcel of the said castle or manor, from the king and his heirs by the service due therefrom, to the value of 293*l.* 17*s.* 6½*d.* notwithstanding the king's grant by letters patent to the said duke of Gloucester of 1,000*l.* yearly to keep up his state as duke or any other grants or conditions contained in the said letters; it being the king's will that the said duke his uncle should receive the said 1,000*l.* granted him to keep up his state as earl until he have received the said manor of Brustewyk with members, the lands held in dower by the said Joan, the castle, lordship and manor of Okeham, the office of sheriff of Rutland to hold to him and his heirs quit of the annuity of 100*l.* granted by the king to Richard Stury knight for life and all other rent charges for lives or terms until the king shall provide him and his heirs with land in England to that amount, with provisions for deducting from the said 1,000*l.* the value of the several reversions as they fall in [ibid. p. 101]; now therefore the king, of special grace and with the assent of his council, has granted to the said duke and the heirs of his body 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* receivable yearly from the issues of the priory of Okeburne at Ascension day and Martinmas in equal parts, so long as the said priory shall remain in the king's hands, to be held from Michaelmas last past by the said duke and the heirs of his body until the aforesaid reversions fall in, in lieu of the 200 marks granted to him from the priory of Tackeley, which the duke has surrendered; provided that if the priory of Okeburne shall cease to be in the king's hands before the said reversions fall in, the said duke and his said heirs shall then receive the said sum of 133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* at the Exchequer, until that event shall happen. Teste N. episcopo de Eli, apud Eboracum. [1138.]

And further with the assent of the council and by way of relief to the said prior and convent and their house, which is on the sea coast, the king has hereby given to the said prior and canons the following liberties.

They shall have chattels of felons and fugitives in all places within the town of Bridlyngton and all the circuit of the same, and may put themselves in seisin of the same by their bailiffs and ministers;

they shall have leet and view of frankpledge there, and assize and assay, and amends of the assize of bread, wine and ale, and the custody and assay of measures and weights there, and the punishment of the same; and also the punishment, cognisance and judgement (justificationem) of all trespassers and evil-doers against the peace, and of all victuallers, butchers, buyers and sellers of victuals, forestallers and regrators, within the said town by their bailiffs and ministers; and they shall have all fines, forfeited issues and amercements there in all the aforesaid cases for their own use, and also all 'waifs' and 'straies' there without rendering any account thereof, and all wreck of sea between the dikes called Erledike and Flaynburghdyk; and no sheriff, or escheator, bailiff or minister of the king shall enter therein to do aught touching the foregoing, nor impede the prior and canons or their bailiffs and ministers in any way; and the prior and canons shall render for these new franchises 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly at the Exchequer for fee farm by the hands of the sheriff of Yorkshire.

1392. Dec. 11. Westminster. 24 Grant, of special grace, to the abbot and convent of Woubourne, of free warren in all their demesne lands in Hare in the parish of Tudyngton, co. Bedford. By p.s. [8419.]

MEMBRANE 23.

Feb. 11. Winchester. 22 Grant, of special grace, at the petition of the king's lieges the mayor and citizens of York, to the said mayor and citizens that they may acquire land and rents, held of the king in burgage in the city of York, to the value of 100*l.* and hold them for the perpetual support and upkeep of the bridges of Ouse and Fosse within the said city and of other bridges in the suburbs and of chaplains and other ecclesiastics celebrating divine service in their common chapel upon the said bridge of Ouse, and of other divine services and alms, which the mayor and citizens maintain for the safety of the king and his heirs and the souls of his ancestors, notwithstanding the statute of mortmain or the fact that the tenure of the said lands and rents is by burgage, provided that it is found by inquisitions taken in due form and returned into the chancery, that such acquisitions are not to the damage of the king or others ; and the king considering that by the grant of his progenitors confirmed by himself the mayor and citizens have cognisance of all pleas of land within the said city and suburbs, under which grant the king's justices will not allow the said mayor and citizens the cognisance of pleas of assize, because these pleas are not expressly mentioned in the said grant, has hereby granted, of special grace and at the petition of the said mayor and citizens that they shall have cognisance of all pleas of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestre of all lands and tenements within the said city and its suburbs as well before justices of either bench, justices of assize or in eyre, as before all other justices or ministers of the king for taking such assizes, before the mayor and bailiffs of the said city in the ' Gihalda ' there ; and the king has also granted that the justices of the peace and of labourers and workmen in the three trithings in the county of York shall not intermeddle in the city or its suburbs or liberty or without them in anything that may arise therein ;

and that the mayor and twelve aldermen of the said city or at least two of them with the said mayor shall have such power to correct, punish enquire, hear and determine all matters within the said city, suburbs and liberty as the justices of the peace, labourers and craftsmen shall have without the same, saving to the king any fines, amercements or profits thence arising ;

and considering that the bridge over the king's fishery (vivariam) of Fosse is so weak that without great repairs it cannot endure, the

Jan. 30. Winchester. 22 Grant, of special grace, to Blanche Bradeston and her heirs of free warren in all their demesne lands of the manor of Wynterbourne, co. Gloucester; and also of a weekly market on Monday in the town of Wynterbourne which is united to the said manor, and of two yearly fairs there, one on the feast of SS. Peter and Paul and the other on the feast of St. Luke the evangelist. By p.s. [8505.]

April 20. Westminster. 21 Grant, of special grace, to Thomas Lyons and his heirs, of free warren in all the lands that they hold of the king in the manor of Assheton Lyons by Bristol; and of power to enclose the said lands with dikes and hedges and to make a park thereof and to hold the same to him and his heirs without impediment. By p.s. [8693.]

March 11. Westminster. 20 Whereas King Edward III by letters patent demised to the abbess and convent of Shaftesbury the rent, toll and profits of his court in the town of Shaftesbury at farm, during the king's pleasure, by rendering 12*l.* yearly; and the present king afterwards by his charter granted the same to the abbess and convent to be held by them and their successors by rendering 12*l.* yearly; and although the said abbess and convent and other farmers who before that time held the said farm always had the said town with the court and profits thereof with all the lands, rents, liberties and profits belonging to the king in the said town of Shaftesbury by virtue of the said farm of 12*l.*, yet now the said abbess and convent, because there is no express mention thereof in the said charter, are prevented from receiving a great part of the said profits;

now, since it has been found by an inquisition taken before John Moigne, late escheator in the county of Dorset, Stephen Derby and John Wykyng, under a commission directed to them, and returned into the chancery, that it is not to the king's damage to grant to the said abbess and convent the said farm of 12*l.* with the court, profits, lands, rents, services, franchises and the rest pertaining to the town of Shaftesbury, and that this farm consists in lands, tenements, rents, services, tolls, profits of courts, liberties, franchises, escheats and other profits, which are worth yearly 12*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, the king has hereby granted for the greater security of the abbess and convent and the removal of all doubts, to the said abbess and convent the said town of Shaftesbury with the court and its profits with the lands, tenements and so forth as above in the said town belonging to the king, on rendering yearly 12*l.* by way of farm. York, Muskham, co. Nottingham, Fifhide, Willynghale Doo, Willynghale Spaigne, co. Essex and Paulynsgray, co. Kent. By p.s. [8738.]

May 7. Westminster. 18 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the abbot and convent of Byland of letters patent dated at Westminster, 1 February 1 Richard II [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1377–1381, p. 119] inspecting and confirming a charter dated at Westminster, 30 May 33 Edward III. [See above, p. 159.]

And now the said abbot and convent have petitioned the king setting forth that they and their predecessors by virtue of the above charters of the King and his predecessors from time immemorial have been used (usi sunt) to receive for their own use by their own ministers all goods and chattels of fugitives and felons, attainted for felony in any court or condemned, convicted or outlawed, being of their men and tenants or residents within their lands, and that they had their own coroner and wayf and 'strayf' and other franchises in the said lands, although the said liberties are not specially mentioned in their charters, and have prayed to have the said liberties confirmed to them by express words;

the king therefore, of special grace, has granted to the said abbot and convent that they shall have their own coroner and wayf and strayf, and chattels of felons and fugitives, who have been attainted, condemned, convicted or outlawed in any court being their men and tenants and persons resident in their lands, to be received by their own ministers. and the king has also granted that the keepers of the peace and justices assigned to hear and determine felonies, trespasses and other mis-deeds or the justices of labourers, servants and craftsmen in the three trithings of the county of York shall not intermeddle in the city or its suburbs or liberty or without them in anything that may arise therein;

and that the mayor and twelve aldermen of the said city or at least two of them with the said mayor shall have power to correct, punish, enquire, hear and determine all matters as well of all felonies, trespasses, misprisions and extorsions, as of all other causes and plaints whatsoever within the said city and suburbs and the liberty thereof arising, as fully as the keepers of the peace, justices assigned to hear and determine felonies, trespasses and other misdeeds, and justices of labourers, servants and craftsmen in the three trithings without the same, saving to the king the fines, and amercements and other profits thence arising;

and considering that the bridge over the king's fishery (vivariam) of Fosse is so weak that without great repairs it cannot endure, the king has hereby granted to the said mayor and citizens, that they may place piles and piers (columnas) of stone in the said fishery for a distance of 100 feet of assize beyond the space which the said bridge now occupies in the said fishery to strengthen and support the said

July 5. Westminster. 13 Grant to Nicholas de Stafford, knight, and Elizabeth his wife, and the heirs and assigns of the said Elizabeth of a weekly market on Wednesday at the town of Tyddeswell, co. Derby, and of a yearly fair there on the vigil and the feast of the decollation of St. John the Baptist. By p.s. [8903.]

July 24. Westminster. 12 The king's progenitors gave by charters, which the king has confirmed, to the dean and chapter of St. Peter's, York, and lately in a parliament at Winchester the king granted to the mayor and citizens of York, that the justices of the peace and of labourers and craftsmen in the three trithings of the county of York shall not intermeddle in the said city, suburbs or liberty or without them in any thing that may arise therein; and also that the mayor and twelve aldermen of the city or at least two of them with the mayor shall have power to correct, punish, enquire, hear and determine all matters within the said city, suburbs and liberty as the justices of the peace, labourers and craftsmen have without the same, as in the said charter is more fully contained.

Now therefore the king of special grace declares that at the time of the said grant to the said mayor and aldermen and citizens it was not his intention, that they under colour of this grant should claim in any way to enter the close or cemetery of the church of St. Peter or the bedern (bedernam) of the vicars of the said church, or the dwellings (mansiones) inns (hospicia) or the houses without the close and cemetery belonging to the dignities, canonries and prebends of the said church, which are in the hands of their owners or are occupied by officers of the church with the license of the said owners, or that they should intermeddle or have cognisance of any matter within the said close, cemetery, bedern, or houses ; and further the king has hereby granted that under colour of the said grant the mayor, alderman and citizens shall not enter the foregoing or intermeddle or have any jurisdictions in matters there arising ;

and the king has also granted that the dean and chapter of the church of St. Peter shall have power to correct and punish and cognisance and authority to enquire, hear and determine by their steward all matters arising in the aforesaid precincts, just as the mayor and aldermen have under their grant in the city, suburb and liberty and as the justices of the peace, and of labourers and craftsmen have outside it, so that neither the mayor, aldermen nor the said justices shall interfere in any way with the jurisdiction hereby granted to the dean and chapter, to whom are saved all the liberties granted to them by the king and his progenitors. Oct. 30. Westminster. 11 Among other liberties granted to the abbot and convent of Beaulieu in the New Forest by charters of the king's progenitors, which he has confirmed, it was granted that they should have common pasture for all their beasts and those of their men, except goats, in the king's forests of the New Forest and La Bere of Porchestre, in covert and open, in the fence month as at other times ; and this common pasture they and their men used, until certain of the king's ministers of the forest of La Bere lately stayed the free tenants of the abbot and convent of the town of Soberton from their common of pasture ; now therefore the king, for the removal of all doubts, has hereby given to the said abbot and convent common of pasture for all their beasts and for those of their men and tenants, free and bond, of the said town of Sobirton, except goats in the said forest of La Bere, in covert and open, in the fence months as at other times. Nov. 25. Westminster. 10 Whereas King Edward III by letters patent of the 14th of April in his fiftieth year granted to the burgesses of Clifton, Dertemuth, Hardenesse that they should not plead or be impleaded save within that town before the mayor and bailiffs of any tenures within the said town or of trespasses or contracts or other matters there arising, unless the pleas touched the king or the commonalty of the said town ; now the king, considering the losses caused to the burgesses by war and the fact that by these letters patent they are bound to find two ships of war of 120 tons burden with double crew (eskippamento), as often as the king warns the ships of the realm to set out for war and that they are bound to keep these ships at their own cost to remain in the king's service with the said two ships for forty days from the date of their coming to the place assigned in the said warning, of further grace with the assent of the council, has granted to the said burgesses that the mayor and bailiffs of the said town shall have cognisance of all pleas of lands and tenements and of assizes of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor arising within the liberties of the said town to be held before the mayor and bailiffs within the said town ; and that the said burgesses, their heirs and successors may choose among themselves from year to year at their will a coroner to discharge the office of the crown (corone) and to do whatever belongs to that office of the articles of the crown and the other articles of the said office, which may arise within the said liberty; and the coroner shall make oath faithfully to discharge his office in the same manner in which the mayor does; and no other coroner or minister shall intermeddle therein; saving to the king the profits, fines and amercements of the said courts and office; and on condition that the burgesses shall continue to find the said two ships, as aforesaid.

MEMBRANE 18.

Nov. 29. Westminster. 9 The king's progenitors by several charters which the king has confirmed, granted to the then abbots and the convent of St. Mary's, York, that the men of St. Mary should not go to counties, shires, trithings, wapentakes or hundreds, even at the call of (pro) sheriffs or their ministers; but that if sheriffs or their ministers had any plaint against the men of St. Mary, they were to speak with the abbot and come on the appointed day into the court of St. Mary and there have right of their chief plea; and that the abbot and monks should have breach of peace, fighting in a house (pugnam in domo factam) and entering a house forcibly, and all assaults of their men, forstall, gridbreke, haimsok, soc and sac, and thol and theam, and infangenethef and utfangenethef, and all amercements of their men and fines for the same; so that the abbot and convent shall receive from their men, whatever the king would have received if the men had been amerced for any fault or trespass in any court of the king's, except the court of the justices assigned to take pleas of the forest; and saving to the king the amercements of the abbot and monks for their own faults in whatever court of the kings they may have been amerced, and all other fines for the amercements of their men, which they and any of their men had made with the said kings or before any judges; and saving to the king all pleas of the forest and amercements thence arising;

and that the said abbot and monks should have all the goods and chattels of their men being outlaws, condemned and fugitives, from which any profit could come to the king, and all animals called wayf;

and that they and their men should be quit in city and borough, in markets and fairs, in passage of bridges and sea ports and in all places throughout England, Ireland and Wales of toll, tallage, passage, pedage, stallage, wardage, works and aids of walls, sea-walls, dikes and fish-ponds (vivariorum), ship-service, building of royal houses, and all works and guard of castles, carriage, sumpter-service, so that their horses and carts shall not be taken for any carriage nor their woods for any works; and that they should be quit of fengeld, horngeld, forgeld, penygeld, miskennyng, chevage, chiminage and herbage, and from taxes and tributes, and from suits of counties, hundreds, wapentakes and trithings, and escape and concealment, and from all aids of sheriffs and their ministers, and from recognitions, inquisitions and summonses, save for the liberty of the abbey, and then if it be a plea between the abbot and monks and their men only or between their men only on both sides, all of the assize should be of the liberty of St. Mary, or of the liberty of St. Peter, York, if those do not suffice, but if the assize ought to be arramed between the abbot and monks or their men and one who is not of the liberty, half the assize should be of the men of the liberty and half of foreigners ;

and that if the abbot and monks or their men are parties to any plea, the plea should be held within the gate of the abbey, and when the plea is finished the abbot and monks should have estreats of the rolls of the justices, who held such pleas, containing all the amercements of their men under the seals of the said justices, so those amercements or fines for them should not come into the summons from the Exchequer to the troubling of the abbot and monks or their men, but the abbot and monks might distrain their men as they would ;

and that they should have return of all the king's writs touching them, their men or their lands ; and that no sheriff or other minister of the king's should disturb the abbot and monks or their men for any custom, service or exaction or other cause touching any goods which their men can prove by oath to be their property ;

as in the said charters and confirmation is more fully contained.

and now the king is informed that certain persons are affirming that the foregoing liberties were granted to the abbot and monks and their bondmen only and not to their tenants ; and therefore the king at the petition of the abbot and convent and for the removal of all ambiguity, of special grace, and with the consent of his council, hereby grants and declares that the aforesaid liberties are to be interpreted as applying to any tenants of the said abbot and convent, and that the abbot and convent shall enjoy the said liberties in this form without impediment ; and further with the advice of the council the king hereby grants to the said abbot and convent that their servants dwelling upon their manors, lands and tenements shall have the same privilege of not attending courts as is above granted to their men ; and that the abbot and convent shall have in the above form jurisdiction over their servants and the amercements and fines thence arising ; and that they shall have the goods and chattels of their servants being outlaws, condemned or fugitive in the above form, provided that such goods were on the manors, lands or tenements of the abbot and convent at the time of the commission of the felonies ; and that the said servants shall have all the franchises set forth above, being quittance of fengeld and so forth ; and that if the abbot and convent or their servants are parties to any plea, the plea shall be held within the gate of the abbey, and the estreats should be given in the same form as above ; and that they shall have return of all the king's writs touching them and their servants in the same form as above.

MEMBRANE 17.

Dec. 18. Westminster. 8 Among the liberties granted to the abbot and convent of Westminster by St. Edward and other kings of England, which the present king has confirmed to them, it was granted that they should have all manner of liberty for ever ; and that if any of their men not being earls or barons for any fault ought to lose life or limb or should fly and refuse to abide judgement or should do aught else for which he ought to lose his chattels, in whatever court justice ought to be done on him, the chattels should go to the abbot and convent, who might put themselves in seisin thereof without impediment in the said cases, as also in all others in which the king's bailiffs could have taken the said chattels as belonging to the king ;

and that if any of the tenants of the abbot and convent or of their cells should forfeit the fee, which he held of the said abbot and his cells, the abbot and convent may put themselves in seisin thereof and hold that fee, notwithstanding the king's claim to possession for a year and a day ; and that if any of their men or tenants, not being earls or barons, were amerced before the king, his justices, sheriffs, constables, foresters, bailiffs and their or other ministers, the abbot and convent shall have all amercements, and fines for licence to agree, with power to distrain for the same ; and if by any chance these have been collected by the king's bailiffs, they shall be restored at the Exchequer to the abbot and convent by the view of the treasurer without diminution ;

which liberties were granted and confirmed in frank almoin with all liberties and free customs, which the king can grant to any religious house ; and now the king has heard that the abbot and convent are impeded in their enjoyment of the same in the Exchequer and the Marshalsey and elsewhere, on the ground that it appears to the officers of those places (placearum) that certain words in the said charters are too general and not sufficiently specific ;

now therefore, the king, at the petition of the said abbot and convent and for the removal of ambiguity hereby declares the said liberties and franchises as follows :

the abbot and convent shall have all goods and chattels of their men and tenants, free or bond, and of all dwellers upon their lands and fees, who are outlawed for felony, contempt, trespass, debt, account or any other reason at the suit of the king or at the suit of a party, and all the goods and chattels of the same, being suicides (felonum de seipsis), felons, fugitives, or condemned, so that if any of the men, tenants or dwellers aforesaid for any felony or other reason ought to lose life or limb or fly and refuse to abide judgement or be outlawed, or do aught else for which he ought to lose his goods and chattels, in whatever court justice ought to be done, whether before the king or the justices of either bench, or in the chancery or Exchequer or before the steward and marshals and clerk of the market of the king's household, or before the king's justices in eyre for common pleas, pleas of the crown and pleas of the forest, or before justices assigned to hear and determine felonies, trespasses and other matters at the suit of the king or of others, or before justices assigned to take assizes, juries, certifications, or any other inquisitions and to deliver gaols, or before keepers of the peace, or before justices assigned to administer the statutes and ordinances of craftsmen, labourers, servants, victuallers and of weights and measures, or before any other justices, officers, or ministers of the king whether in his absence or in his presence and in all other courts, leets or places (placeis), the said goods and chattels shall go to the abbot and convent, who may put themselves in seisin thereof without impediment in the above cases or in any others in which the king's officers could have seized the same for the king's profit ; and the said abbot and convent and their cells shall have all fines for trespasses, oppressions, extorsions, deceits, conspiracies, concealments, regrating, forestalling, maintenances, and other delicts, all fines for licences to agree, all amercements, ransoms, forfeited issues, forfeitures, as well of attaints as of other matters, year, day and waste, deodands, treasure trove and all that could belong to the king from year, day and waste and from murders and all felonies of all their men and tenants, as well as of the said residents, in any court of the king's as in the foregoing list of courts, where the said men, tenants and residents may chance to make fine be amerced, forfeit issues or where year, day and waste, forfeitures, deodands, treasure trove, murders or felonies may be adjudged, all the which ought to belong to the king, if they had not been granted to the abbot and convent; and they and their cells may collect the same by their ministers without any impediment;

moreover among the other liberties granted to the abbot and convent by the king's progenitors and confirmed by him it was granted that they and their men holding of them should be quit of all toll in every market and in all fairs and in all passage of bridges, waters, ways and the sea through all the king's realm and wherever the king can give such liberties, and that all goods (mercimonia) of them and their men shall be free in like manner; and now therefore the king, of special grace, and by the advice of his council hereby grants that the abbot and convent and their cells and all their men and tenants and the said residents shall be quit of all toll, pontage, pavage, murage, passage, stallage and picage in the said places. 4. A charter dated at Westminster, 13 July 2 Richard II. [See above, p. 248.]

And further considering the services rendered by the said bishop as keeper of the rolls of the chancery, keeper of the privy seal and treasurer, the king hereby grants to him and his successors the following liberties ;

they shall have all fines for trespasses and other misdeeds, fines for licence to agree, all kinds of fines, ransoms and amercements arising for any reason, and all forfeited issues, from the dean and canons of the said church and each of them, and from all men and tenants in the lands and fees of the bishop and in those of the dean, chapter and canons, and from all dwellers in the said lands and fees, even though the said dean, canons, men, tenants or residents be ministers of the king ;

they shall have all forfeitures, year, day and waste (vastum et estreppamentum) and all that can come to the king from such year, day and waste, forfeitures and murders in the said lands and fees, in whatever court of the king's the said persons may make fine or be amerced, or such year, day and waste, forfeitures and murders may be adjudged, as fully as the king could have had them before this grant, with power to collect the same by their bailiffs and ministers either by estreats to be delivered to their bailiffs and ministers by justices in eyre for common pleas and pleas of the forest, or the steward, marshall, coroner of the household or clerk of the king's market, before whom the foregoing have been adjudged, or by estreats of the Exchequer, if adjudged before the king or in Chancery or before the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer or before the judges of the common bench or judges assigned to take assizes, deliver gaols or to hear and determine trespasses and felonies or before any other of the king's judges, the said estreats to be delivered to the bishop's bailiffs by the sheriff in whose bailiwick the lands and fees concerned are situated ;

the bishops, their men, tenants, and dwellers within the lands and fees of the bishop shall be quit of prises and chiminages ; and nothing shall be taken of their corn, hay, oats, horses, carts, victuals or other goods within the lands and fees aforesaid by the purveyors of the king's household or any other officers for the use of the king or any others against their will ;

the bishops in all their lands and fees, in the king's presence as in his absence, shall have by their ministers the assay and assize of bread, wine and ale and all other victuals and of all things belonging to the office of the clerk of the king's market, with the punishment of the same ; and they shall have fines, amercements and all profits thence arising, so that the clerk of the king's market shall not enter the said lands or fees to do aught belonging to his office ;

the bishops shall have chattels of all fugitives, felons and outlaws, being deans, canons, men and tenants of their lands and fees and dwelliers therein, even though the said persons be the king's ministers, so that if any of the foregoing for any misdeed ought to lose life or limb or shall fly and refuse to abide judgment, or shall do aught else for which he ought to lose his chattels, in whatever court the justice ought to be done, the chattels shall go to the bishops, who may put themselves in seisin thereof without impediment ; and the bishops shall have returns of all the king's writs and of summonses, estreats and precepts of the exchequer and of estreats and precepts of the king's justices in eyre for pleas of the forest and common pleas and of other justices, and of attachments as well of the pleas of the crown as of others in all their lands and fees ; and the bishops by their bailiffs and ministers shall have in the said lands and fees the execution of the said writs, summons, estreats and precepts, so that no sheriff, bailiff or other minister of the king shall enter the said lands or fees to do any office therein, save in case of default by the bishops or their ministers ;

if the sheriffs or bailiffs of liberties, hundreds or wapentakes are negligent in any executions on behalf of the said bishops to be done by the king's writs or mandates or in any other way, for which negligence they are amerced or make fine in the Exchequer or in any other court of the king's, these fines or amercements shall go to the bishops, who may levy them by their ministers ;

the bishops shall have in all their lands and fees all chattels called wayf and stray, deodands, treasure trove and other goods or chattels found, with power to take the same themselves or by their ministers ; the bishops shall have all the goods and chattels called mainour (manuopera) taken with any person within the said lands and fees and disavowed (deadvocata) by the said person before any justice ;

the bishops shall have cognisance of all pleas touching lands or tenements within the city of Salisbury, assizes of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor, certifications and attaints, as well as of any other plea real or personal, and also of all pleas of debt, trespass and agreement, and of all other causes and contracts arising within the said city, to be held before the bailiffs of the bishops in the said city, in the king's presence as in his absence ;

the bishops shall have full power to enquire, hear and determine by their bailiffs of Saresbury all matters, plaints, defects and causes and other things arising within the city and liberty, which could be enquired into and determined by the justices of labourers and craftsmen, provided that no bailiff shall procede to the determining of any felony without a special mandate from the king ; but saving to the bishops all liberties granted and confirmed to them by previous kings and the king himself. 18 RICHARD II.

MEMBRANE 18.

1394. Aug. 9. Westminster. 19

Gift, out of desire to provide for the king's health during his life and for his soul after his death and for the soul of Anne, late queen of England, to the church of St. Peter, Westminster, and William the abbot and the prior and convent of that place of 200*l.* receivable yearly at the Exchequer at Michaelmas and Easter in equal parts, until the king shall provide them in priories and possessions of alien religious in the king's hand by reason of the war with his adversary of France, or in churches to impropriate or in other lands and rents to the value of the said 200*l.* yearly, on the following conditions :—

the abbot, prior and convent during the king's life shall specially celebrate and pray for the king's health and the properity of the realm, and during the king's life shall celebrate the anniversary of the queen on the 7th of June being the date of her death, and after the king's death they shall celebrate the anniversary of the king and queen on the day of the king's death in the manner following :—

the abbot, prior and convent or the prior and convent, if the abbot is absent, on the eve of the day so fixed in solemn vestments with the whole convent shall chant placebo and dirige with nine lessons with 100 cierges lighted round the tomb, every cierge to be twelve pounds in weight, to be renewed yearly on the said anniversary, and to burn from the placebo and dirige on the eve up to high mass on the day of the anniversary, with the solemn ringing (pulsatione) of great and other bells, for the soul of the said queen during the king's life, and the souls of both of them after his death ; and on the day of the said anniversary, the abbot or the prior in the abbots absence, if he can find no worthier prelate, shall say a solemn mass at the high altar of the church with the cierges and candles alight and bells rung as aforesaid ;

and every monk shall say a private mass on the same day, and the other monks in minor orders shall say (dicant et versilient) the whole psalter and the lay-brothers shall say the Lord's prayer and the creed and the 'Hail, Mary!' as often as the abbot, prior and convent shall command them, for the soul of the queen, or the souls of the king and queen, as aforesaid, and for the souls of the faithful departed ; and the said abbot, prior and convent every week on the eve of the like day, on which the said anniversary falls, in the choir of the church with full convent shall sing placebo and dirige with nine lessons and the solemn ringing of bells, and on the week day shall celebrate solemn mass with solemn ringing of bells ; on the day of the said anniversary the abbot, prior and convent shall give to every one of the poor flocking to their house 1*d.* of sterling or money that at the date of this charter was worth one sterling, waiting for the coming of the poor up to the hour of terce, for the souls of the queen or the king and queen, as aforesaid; and in every week on the like day the abbot, prior and convent shall feed 140 poor within the close of the abbey, that is to say that each of them shall receive 1 sterling or money worth 1 sterling on the date of this charter for their food on that day by the hands of a fit monk appointed by the abbot, prior and convent, to be set free from all other care of the monastery on that day, which monk shall see that everyone of the said poor before and after receiving the penny shall say clearly and devoutly the Lord's prayer and the creed with 'Hail, Mary' for the soul of the queen or the souls of the king and queen, as aforesaid, and for the souls of the faithful departed; of the said cierges there shall remain throughout the year thirty around the tomb of the queen or the tomb of the king and queen, up to the day of the renewal of the cierges on the aforesaid anniversary which the abbot, prior and convent shall cause to be lighted on the greater feasts, and when magnates visit the tomb, and otherwise as they think fit; and the said abbot, prior and convent shall maintain four cierges, each of eight pounds, burning round the tomb of the queen or that of the king and queen, continually; in time of voidancy of the abbey the prior and convent shall be bound to fulfil all the aforesaid conditions; and when all these have been fulfilled all the residue of the said 200*l.* or of the priories, possessions, churches, lands and rents to be provided instead of that annuity shall remain to the prior and convent for their pittances; but no profit therefrom shall accrue to the abbot, nor shall he intermeddle in the keeping thereof, saving to him his prelacy and rule, and the prior and convent shall order the same at their will;

at any voidancy of the abbey the king will not lay hands upon any of the foregoing, but will preserve the same entirely for the benefit of the prior and convent under the king's protection;

the abbots before the restitution of temporalities and immediately after making the oath of fealty to the king shall make another corporal oath that they will cause all the foregoing to be maintained and observed;

and immediately on the death of any abbot the prior shall make corporal oath before the king, if the king is in London or in the neighbourhood, that he will have the foregoing observed during his time; and if the king is not in those parts, the prior shall make the same oath in the full Exchequer before the treasurer and barons;

and lest the foregoing should be forgotten, in each year on the aforesaid anniversary the whole of the foregoing charter shall be read aloud in the chapter before the whole convent;

and the abbot prior and convent shall bind themselves and all their possessions to the observance hereof. By K.

Oct. 30. Westminster. 13 — King Edward III by a charter which the king has confirmed granted to John, duke of Aquitaine and Lancaster, by the name of John, king of Castile and Leon and duke of Lancaster, that he and the heirs of his body should have all fines, ransoms and amercements of all their men and tenants in the hundreds of Northgrenehow and Smethdon, co. Norfolk, and the fees of them, given to the said John and the heirs of his body by the said king in exchange

1395. MEMBRANE 15.

July 26. Eltham. 11 Whereas preceeding kings of England by several charters granted to the church of St. Paul, London, and the predecessors of Robert, bishop of London, and their successors certain liberties by general and special words, by virtue of which charters the predecessors of the said bishop had allowances in the Exchequer of all amercements of townships in their fees, of amercements of their men and tenants, of year, day and waste of the lands of their tenants, of chattels of felons and fugitives being their men and tenants, and of escape of felons, as is made clear by record in the Exchequer; and whereas of late notwithstanding the said charters and allowances the bishop cannot have these allowances in the Exchequer, as the king understands;

now the king considering the intention of his progenitors and that King Edward III by his charter granted that the words contained in the said charters ought to be taken in the sense most favourable to the grantees, hereby grants and declares the following in favour of the bishop Robert and his successors;

they shall have all kinds of amercements from all townships within their lands and fees and from all men, tenants and residents therein ;

they shall have year, day and waste of all the lands of the said men, tenants and residents within the said lands and fees and also chattels of felons and fugitives from the same in the usual form ; they shall have all sums exacted or to be exacted for the king's use for escape of felons out of the custody of townships, constables or others in the said lands and fees, excepting escapes of convicted clerks out of the bishop's prisons ;

they shall have return of the king's writs, of precepts of justices in eyre for pleas of the forest, common pleas and pleas of the crown, and attachments of pleas of the crown and other pleas, in the said lands and fees ;

they by themselves and their bailiffs shall have therein execution of the said writs and precepts so that no sheriff, bailiff or minister shall enter the said lands and fees to do any such execution, save in case of default by the bishop or his ministers ;

they shall have fines for licence to agree and all other fines for any cause arising from all their men and tenants and residents in their lands and fees in whatever court of the king's imposed, as fully as the king could have had them, if they had not been granted to the said bishop ;

so that they by the hands of their bailiffs and other ministers may levy without impediment fines and amercements of the said townships, men, tenants, and residents of and in the lands and fees aforesaid, and forfeited issues and all that can come to the king from year, day and waste, and sums arising from escapes in the said lands and fees, which may be adjudged before justices in eyre for common pleas, pleas of the crown and pleas of the forest, or before the steward and marshal, coroner or clerk of the market by estreats to be delivered in the sessions of these courts to the said bailiffs, and if the same are adjudged before the king or before the barons of the Exchequer or the justices of the common Bench or justices to take assizes or deliver gaols or before justices assigned to hear and determine trespasses and felonies or any other justices, then by estreats of the Exchequer to be delivered to the bishop's bailiffs by the hands of the sheriffs in whose bailiwicks the said lands and fees lie. By p.s. [10132.]

MEMBRANE 14.

Sept. 22. Windsor Castle. 10

Grant, of special grace and with the assent of the king's council and at the request of the king's liege burgesses of Cardigan in South Wales, that the counties and little sessions shall be held in the said town of Cardigan and the great sessions of the county shall be held within the said county in a fixed place to be appointed by the king's justice of South Wales, for all matters and acts arising within the said county of Cardigan, notwithstanding that the said counties and sessions of the county were previously held at the town of Kermerdyn, and notwithstanding any charter or letters patent to the contrary hereof ;

and for the aid and relief of the said town of Cardigan and for the peace and quiet of the said burgesses, grant of further grace that the burgesses may freely choose from themselves a mayor and two bailiffs once in each year on Monday after Michaelmas, who immediately upon election shall make oath before the chamberlain of South Wales or his lieutenant faithfully to discharge their offices and shall then do all that belongs thereto within the town of Cardigan and the borough ; and that they may have yearly of themselves by the choice of the said chamberlain or his lieutenant a coroner on the same day, who on making oath before the said chamberlain or his lieutenant shall do all that pertains to the office within the town of Cardigan and the borough, so that the king shall not burden the mayor, bailiffs and coroner otherwise than in time past ;

the burgesses shall have return of all the king's writs in all pleas real and personal and in all other cases touching matters arising in the said town of Cardigan and its borough, so that no escheator, sheriff or bailiff shall enter the said town and borough or intermeddle therein ;

the Exchequer of the county of Cardigan and the receipt thereof and the king's seal shall remain within the castle of Cardigan.

Sept. 25. Westminster. 6 — Whereas Anne, late queen of England, by her letters patent granted to Thomas, duke of Gloucester, all her estate in the fee farm of the town of Gloucester and all fines, issues and amercements and all other liberties, franchises and forfeitures of and in that town, to be held during the queen's life as fully as she held it, which grant the king by letters patent afterwards confirmed to the said duke for the term of his life ; now, at the request of the said duke, the king, of special grace, has hereby granted to him all fines, issues, amercements and all other liberties, franchises and forfeitures, with all forfeitures of all things forfeited or to be forfeited, as well adjudged as not adjudged, and of things incurred by way of forfeiture in the life of the said queen before the grant of these liberties to the duke and not adjudged between that date and the present time, as well as of other things which shall be forfeited in future within the said town ; to be held by the said duke and the heirs male of his body. [Ibid. Vol. II. p. 48.]

Moreover, at the petition of the said citizens the king has granted to them the following liberties ;

they, their heirs and successors shall have chattels of outlaws for whatever cause or before whatever judges or keepers of the peace and of labourers or craftsmen adjudged forfeited and all chattels of felons and fugitives, deodands, all issues, fines, ransoms, amercements of all citizens of and in the said city, although any of these persons be ministers or officers of the king, and also of all residents in the city and suburbs, in whatever court of the king's the same may be imposed, the same to be levied by the bailiffs of the city without impediment ;

the citizens shall have all goods called 'maynoeure' taken with any person in the city and its suburbs and disavowed by that person before any justices or judges ;

they shall have cognisance of all pleas of lands and tenements, of assizes of novel disseisin, and mort d'ancestor and certifications arramed, and of debts, trespasses and other pleas real and personal arising within the said city and suburbs, the same to be held before the bailiffs of the city in the Gildehalle ;

they shall have full power by their bailiffs to punish, and to enquire into, hear and determine all matters belonging to the office of justice of the peace, labourers and craftsmen, and any other matters arising within the city and suburbs which in any way could be enquired into, heard and determined before such justices, as fully as the said justices can exercise such powers in the county of Worcester, so that the said justices shall not in future intermeddle in any such matters within the said city and its suburbs ; provided that the bailiffs shall not proceed to hear and determine any felony without special mandate from the king ;

the bailiffs shall have full power to take any recognisances between merchant and merchant and to execute the same according to the statute of merchants and the statute of Acton Burnell ;

the bailiffs shall have full power to attach by their bodies men of little substance in any pleas of debts, accounts, trespasses, detinue of chattels or replevin of cattle, brought before them in the Gildehalle at the suit of any party, saving to the bishop of Worcester that no tenant or servant of the bishop shall be attached by colour hereof.

MEMBRANE 5.

May 18. Westminster. Out of affection for the city of York and in consideration of the good service done by the citizens, grant, of special grace and with the deliberation and assent of the council, to the citizens and their heirs and successors of the following liberties ;

the city of York and its suburbs, according to the bounds thereof, which is now within the corpus of the county of York, shall henceforth be separated from the said county, and be a county by itself and called the county of the city of York ;

the citizens shall have within the said city and suburbs the following liberties and franchises ;

the mayor, so soon as he is elected, shall be the king's escheator in the city of York ;

the citizens and commonalty in lieu of three bailiffs shall have two sheriffs and the office of sheriff of the county of the city of York, which sheriffs shall be chosen yearly in the following form ; to wit, the citizens shall choose yearly of themselves two fit persons to be sheriffs, who immediately on election shall make oath in due form before the mayor, and who shall not leave the city to make these oaths ; and the names under the common seal of the said city shall be sent yearly to the chancery ; provided that the said escheator and sheriffs shall answer at the Exchequer for the issues of their offices, and that at no time shall there be any other escheator or sheriff in the said city and suburbs ;

the escheator and sheriffs of the city of York shall have such power, jurisdiction and liberty and all else pertaining to their offices, as other escheators and sheriffs have elsewhere in the realm of England ;

the sheriffs shall hold their county (comitatum) there on Monday from month to month, as other sheriffs do elsewhere in the realm ;

the sheriffs of the city of York shall have their court there and receive the profits thereof as the bailiffs of the city were wont to do ;

no escheator of the county of York shall enter that city or its suburbs to do any office there ;

the escheator and sheriffs have power to make their proffers and to account yearly before the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer by sufficient attornies to be appointed by letters patent under the common seal of the city ; and these attornies shall be admitted by the treasurer and barons ;

each escheator of the city immediately upon his appointment (prefectionem) shall make each year his oath faithfully to discharge his office, if the king's courts be not in the city, before some sufficient person in the city to be assigned for this purpose by the king's writ by the advice of the Chancellor ; and in each year the name of the said escheator shall be certified to the Exchequer under the common seal of the city ;

the citizens shall have all fines, forfeited issues and amercements belonging to justices of the peace within the liberty of the said city and suburbs, or arising in any way from that office, the same to be levied for the up-keep and repair of the bridges of the city and other daily charges ; the mayor, sheriffs and aldermen and commonalty of the city shall have the forfeitures of all victuals forfeited under any law, to wit of bread, wine and ale and other matters not of merchandise ;

the mayors of the city may cause their sword which the king has given to them or another sword to be carried before them with the point erect, unless the king be present, in the presence of other magnates and lords of the realm of England, who are of the king's blood, and of all others ; and the serjeants of the maces (clavarum) of the mayor and sheriffs of the city may bear without impediment gilt or silver or silvered maces adorned with the king's arms, in the presence of the king and his future wife and of the mothers of the king's heirs within the city and suburbs, as the king's serjeants at arms do, without question ;

the steward and marshalls of the king's household and the clerk of the market of the household shall not enter or sit within the liberty of the city nor do their offices there, nor hold any enquiry therein, nor intermeddle in any way, nor hale to plead without the said city any citizens or dwellers therein for any matters arising within the said city ; saving always that if any complain in the king's presence that the mayor, and sheriffs or keepers of the city are negligent in these matters during the king's presence in the city, the chancellor or another of the chancery to be by him appointed at the suit of the complainant shall overlook the matter complained of, and if he find that there has been negligence, he shall amend it and punish the mayor, sheriffs and keepers by fines and amercements, saving to the king the said fines and amercements and the punishment of that which is amended;

no purveyor or taker of victuals or any officer of the king or any other person shall make any prise or take any victuals of the goods of the citizens save at their free will, unless payment be promptly made for necessary victuals taken for the king's use at a reasonable price;

the coroners of the city may exercise their office as well in the king's presence as in his absence, as they have used from time immemorial, without question or impediment. By p.s. [10580.]

Further in amplification of the clause in the charter of Richard I granting to the burgesses that they should have the liberties and laws which they then had in common with the citizens of Oxford, the king has hereby granted to them the following liberties :—

none of the burgesses shall plead or be impleaded before the king or any of his justices or ministers without the borough of lands or tenements therein, nor of trespasses, agreements or contracts made therein or of aught else there arising ; but all such pleas summoned or attached before the king or the justices of the bench, or other justices or ministers, to be pleaded without or within the borough, shall be pleaded and determined within the borough before the mayor and bailiffs and no others ; unless those pleas touch the king or the commonalty of the borough ;

the burgesses shall not be put with foreigners upon assizes, juries or inquisitions, which are to be taken before the king, his justices or ministers touching any tenements, trespasses or other foreign matters so long as they remain in the borough ; nor shall foreigners be put with them on the like, which are to be taken touching lands or tenements in the borough or trespasses, contracts or agreements or other matters therein arising ; touching any pleas arising within the borough the burgesses shall not be convicted by foreigners but only by their fellow burgesses, unless the matter touch the king or his heirs or the commonalty of the borough ;

the mayor and bailiffs of the borough shall have power to make all executions within the borough of all things recovered before them and of damages adjudged, as in the city of London, is done ;

writs of right patent shall in future be addressed (scribatur) to the mayor and bailiffs of the borough of Bedford, as to the mayor and sheriffs of London ;

the burgesses in all actions touching their tenements, rents and tenures shall have power to plead by the king's writ of right patent, making protestation (protestatione) at their choice according to the form of the writ to be pleaded ;

the clerk of the king's market shall not, in the king's presence, intermeddle in any matter touching the said borough, saving that if any complain in the king's presence that the mayor and bailiffs are negligent in executing the office of the market, the chancellor or a clerk of the chancery to be by him appointed shall over-look the matter complained of, and shall correct any defect found and shall punish the mayor and bailiffs, saving to the king the fines and amercements thence arising;

the burgesses throughout the king's realm and power, by land and, water, within London and without may freely buy all merchandise and victuals from aliens and natives and sell the same to them, as the citizens of London do;

no merchant or other person shall meet merchants or others coming by land or water to the said borough with victuals or other goods, to purchase for resale, until such goods have been exposed for sale in the borough in the place ordained, upon pain of forfeiture of the thing purchased, and prison, whence he shall not escape without due punishment;

no one shall expose for sale merchandise, which owes custom, until the custom has been levied thereon, upon pain of the usual forfeiture; the burgesses shall be quit throughout the king's realm and power of toll, murage, pavage, pontage, passage, stallage, lastage, quayage, picage, carriage, rivage, anchorage, strandage, chiminage, terrage, and the like from all their goods and merchandise; and if anyone shall exact from the burgesses, toll or any custom of which they are quit, if he fail to do right therein, the mayor and bailiffs may take distraint (namium) at Bedford and keep the same, until full restitution is made;

no one who is not of their gild shall sell wine or other merchandise in the town by retail;

the burgesses shall be quit of giving money for murder within the borough;

none of them shall do battle; of pleas of the crown they may deraign themselves according to the law and custom of London; the husting is only to be held once a week in the borough;

the mayor and bailiffs may hold twice in the year view of frank pledge, and do all things that may pertain to that view and the keeping of the peace. By p.s. [10387 at King's Langley.]

MEMBRANE 2.

May 18. Westminster. 1 Out of affection for the city of York and in consideration of the good service done by the citizens, grant, of special grace, and with the deliberation and assent of the council, to the citizens and their heirs and successors of the following liberties:—

The city of York and its suburbs, according to the bounds thereof, which is now within the corpus of the county of York, shall henceforth be separated from the said county and be a county by itself and called the county of the city of York;

the citizens shall have within the said city and suburbs the following liberties and franchises;

The mayor, so soon as he is elected, shall be the king's escheator in the city of York;

the citizens and commonalty, in lieu of three bailiffs, shall have two sheriffs and the office of sheriff of the county of the city of York, which sheriffs shall be chosen yearly in the following form: to wit, the citizens shall choose yearly of themselves two fit persons to be sheriffs, who immediately on election shall make oath in due form

before the mayor, and who shall not leave the city to make these oaths; and the names under the common seal of the said city shall be sent yearly to the chancery; provided that the said escheator and sheriffs shall answer at the Exchequer for the issues of their offices, and that at no time shall there be any other escheator or sheriff in the said city and suburbs;

the escheator and sheriffs of the city of York shall have such power, jurisdiction and liberty and all else pertaining to their offices, as other escheators and sheriffs have elsewhere in the realm of England;

the sheriffs shall have their county there on Monday from month to month as other sheriffs do elsewhere in the realm;

the sheriffs of the city of York shall have their court there and receive the profits thereof as the bailiffs of the city were wont to do;

no citizen shall implead or be impleaded before the king or any of his justices without the said city of the lands or tenements, which they hold within the liberty of the city nor of any trespass done in the city; but if any of the said citizens or any other will sue for any land or tenement in the said city or complain touching any trespass done therein, he shall pursue his right and plaint before the mayor and sheriffs of the city, and if the matter (loquela) cannot be determined before them, it shall be determined before the king's justices next in eyre within the city and not without or before any other justice of the king's specially assigned therefor; the mayor and sheriffs shall have cognizance of all pleas of trespasses, agreements and contracts arising within the said city and suburbs, as well in the king's presence as in his absence, with all profits arising from such pleas in the same form in which the mayor and bailiffs of the city had them under charters of previous kings, confirmed by the king, before the making of this charter, without any impediment from the king, his justices, stewards or marshals of the household, escheators, sheriffs or other bailiffs or ministers, so that the said stewards and marshalls shall no wise intermeddle in cognisance of pleas of such trespasses, agreements and contracts arising within the said city and suburbs, but only in cases arising in the king's household between those who are of that household; the mayor and citizens shall have cognisance of all pleas of assizes of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor of all lands and tenements within the said city and suburbs as well before the king's justices of either bench, justices of assize and in eyre, as before all other justices and ministers, the said pleas to be taken before the mayor and sheriffs in the Guyhalda of the city, as the mayor and citizens had the same before the mayor and bailiffs in times past;

no escheator or sheriff of the county of York shall enter the city or suburbs to do any office there;

the escheator and sheriffs of the city of York have power to make their proffers and to account yearly before the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer by sufficient attornies, to be appointed by letters patent under the common seal of the city; and these attornies shall be admitted by the treasurer and barons; so that the escheator and sheriffs shall not be compelled to come in person without the city to make such proffers or accounts;

each escheator of the city immediately on his appointment shall make each year his oath faithfully to discharge his office, if the king's court be not in the city, before some sufficient person in the city to be assigned for this purpose by the king's writ by the advice of the chancellor and shall not be compelled to leave the city for this purpose; and in each year the name of the escheator shall be certified into the Exchequer under the common seal of the city;

the citizens shall have all fines, forfeited issues and amercements belonging to justices of the peace within the liberty of the said city and suburbs or arising in any way from that office, the same to be levied for the up-keep and repair of the bridges of the city and other daily charges; the mayor, sheriffs and aldermen and commonalty of the city shall have the forfeiture of all victuals forfeited under any law, to wit of bread, wine and ale and other matters not of merchandise;

the mayors of the city may cause their sword which the king has given to them, or another sword, to be carried before them with the point erect in the king's absence, in the presence of other magnates and lords of the realm, who are of the king's blood, and of all others; and the serjeants of the maces of the mayor and sheriffs may bear without impediment their gilt or silver or silvered maces, adorned with the king's arms, in the presence of the king and his future wife, and of the mothers of the king's heirs within the city and suburbs, as the king's serjeants at arms do, without question;

the steward and marshals of the king's household and the clerk of the market of the household shall not enter or sit within the liberty of the city nor do their offices there, nor hold any enquiry therein, nor intermeddle in any way, nor compel to plead without the said city any citizens or dwellers therein for any matters arising within the said city; saving always that if any complain in the king's presence that the mayor and sheriffs or keeper of the city are negligent in these matters, the chancellor or another of the chancery to be by him appointed at the suit of the complainant shall overlook the matter complained of, and if he find that there has been negligence, he shall amend it and punish the mayor, sheriffs and keeper by fines and amercements, saving to the king the said fines and amercements of that which is amended; no purveyor or taker of victuals or any officer of the king or other person shall make any prise or take any victuals of the goods of the citizens save at their free will, unless payment be promptly made for necessary victuals taken for the king's use at a fair price;

the coroners of the city may exercise their office as well in the king's presence as in his absence, as they have used from time immemorial, without impediment. By p.s. [10580.]

July 25. Westminster 6 Whereas Henry, king of England, the king's progenitor, by a charter which the king has inspected gave to the abbot and monks of Holmcoltram, which is of the king's patronage, in frank-almoin, timber in the forest of Englewode for their buildings and for all their needs, with the bark of the trees felled by them ; and later King Richard by a charter, which the king has confirmed, gave to the said monks in frank-almoin timber and stone in the forest of Ingelwode for their buildings and for all their needs, with the bark of the timber felled by them, and granted that they should have all their easements in the said forest without any vexation from the foresters, especially as that abbey was the special house of the said king ; and that if the monks offended in the woods of the king contrary to these liberties, they should amend the same reasonably ;

therefore the king, considering the foregoing and the losses sustained by the abbot and convent by the invasions of the Scots owing to its situation on the frontier (frontera), and also their assertion that they are of late impeded in the above liberties by the officers of the forest, of special grace and sure knowledge, hereby declares and grants that the abbot and convent and their successors may have timber and stone for all their buildings and for all the needs of their house in all the said forest of Englewod and may fell trees for that purpose and dig stone and take the bark of the trees felled without impediment ; and that the abbot and monks and their

Feb. 6. Shrewsbury. 15 Whereas all the persons who in past times have been successively sheriffs of the counties of Essex and Hertford were bound to pay to the king yearly several sums of money above all the farms, issues and profits arising yearly from the said counties for the old farm of the county or for sundry old farms and matters not leviable to the final undoing of the said sheriffs, were it not for the pardoning thereof yearly by the king, for which reason many men having lands, tenements and rents in the said counties refuse to dwell there to the great loss of the said counties, as the king is informed; now therefore the king of special grace and for 2,000*l.*, which the king's lieges of those counties have freely granted to him, has hereby granted to the said lieges and all persons holding lands, tenements or rents in the said counties and all the king's lieges abiding in the said counties, that the present sheriff for all the time of his office and all future sheriffs, their heirs, executors and administrators, and the tenants of their lands and tenements shall not be bound in future to answer at the Exchequer for the said old farm or any farms or matters not leviable but shall be fully discharged thereof; and that William Bateman now sheriff of the said counties and other persons who shall succeed him in that office, shall in future only be bound to account yearly upon their oath for all farms, issues, profits, revenues, amercements, and other emoluments arising from the said counties and leviable and shall not be bound to account for the said old farm or matters not leviable. 6. A charter dated at Feckenham, 10 August 40 Henry III. [Ibid. Vol. III, p. 201. Ibid. p. 402.]

Moreover the burgesses shall have the chattels of men outlawed for any cause before any justices whatsoever, the chattels of felons and fugitives, deodands and all issues, fines, ransoms, amercements of all burgesses of and in the said town, although the same may be ministers or officers of the king, and of residents within the town and its suburbs, in whatsoever court of the king's forfeited; and the bailiffs of the town may levy the same for the use of the burgesses without impediment;

the burgesses shall have all goods and chattels called 'maynoeure' taken with any person in the said town and suburbs and disavowed by the said person before any of the king's justices;

the burgesses shall have cognisance of all pleas touching lands in the said town and suburbs, as well of assizes of novel disseisin, mort d'ancestor and of certifications arramed, as of debts, trespasses and any other pleas, real or personal, arising within the said town, the same to be held before the bailiffs of the town in 'la Gildehalle';

the burgesses shall have full correction, punishment and power to inquire, hear and determine by the bailiffs of the said town all matters, plaints, defects, causes and articles pertaining to the office of justice of the peace, labourers and craftsmen and all other things within the said town and suburbs arising, which in any manner could be enquired and determined before such justices, as fully as such justices had in the county of Gloucester before this time, so that such justices shall not intermeddle in any such matters in the said town; provided that the bailiffs of the town shall not proceed to the determination of any felony without a special mandate from the king;

the bailiffs shall have full power to receive recognisances between merchant and merchant and to make execution of the same according to the statute of merchants and the statute of Acton Burnell; the bailiffs shall have power to attach by their bodies men of little substance (minus sufficientes) in any pleas of debt, account, trespasses, detinue of chattels, replevin of cattle or of chattels, within the said town and suburbs, which may be moved before them in the Gildehalle, at the suit of a party; saving to the abbot of St. Peter, Gloucester, that his tenants and servants shall not be attached under this article. MEMBRANE 9.

July 4. Nottingham Castle. 13 Before the judgement lately rendered in the last parliament at Westminster against Thomas, late earl of Warwick, sundry debates had arisen between the said earl and the abbot and convent of Westminster touching returns of the king's writs and other liberties in the county of Worcester granted by the king's progenitors and confirmed by the king to the said abbot and convent, wherein the said earl wrongfully prevented the abbot and convent from using the said liberties; and subsequently after the said judgement, when the office of sheriff of that county was seized into the king's hands on the 17th day of October last past, the king granted by charter to the abbot and convent return of the king's writs and other liberties in the said county, as by that charter more clearly appears; and also at the same parliament adjourned to the quinzaine of Hilary at Shrewsbury it was decreed and ordained that the shrievalty of Worcester, which the said earl held in fee, and which by virtue of that judgement came into the king's hand as forfeited with all its appurtenances, should remain to the king and not be given, granted or in any way severed from the crown.

Now therefore the king considering that the said returns of writs, liberties and franchises in the said charter contained were the right of the said church long before the aforesaid judgement, forfeiture and seizure, and knowing that the said earl wrongfully impeded the abbot and convent therein, and desiring to provide for their indemnity herein, hereby declares that the said grant and confirmation are in accordance with said statute and ordinance and not repugnant thereto, since the king's intention always was that nothing should be done to the prejudice of the said church in the matter of the said returns and liberties, of special grace, mere motion and sure knowledge, grants to the said abbot and convent that they shall enjoy all the returns, liberties and franchises contained in the said charter made on the said 17th of October. Aug. 14. Westminster. 12

Whereas the town of Oswaldestre lies within the principality of Chester on the march between England and Wales, and from time immemorial has been privileged with all the liberties belonging to a town and borough merchant; now the king, of special grace, for the betterment of the said town and at the request of its burgesses, has granted to the same the following:—

the burgesses in the same borough by the common council of the township may choose two of the more lawful and discreet of the burgesses to keep the pleas of the crown and all else belonging to the king and his crown in the said borough and to see that the provosts of the borough treat lawfully and justly both the poor and the rich; the burgesses for the trespasses or forfeitures of their servants shall not loose their chattels or goods found in their servants' hands or by their servants deposited anywhere, so far as they can prove ownership;

if the burgesses or any of them shall die testate or intestate within the king's realm or power, the king will not confiscate their goods, but their heirs shall have the chattels of the deceased so far as ownership is proved, provided that knowledge or proof can be had of the said heirs;

no sheriff, bailiff, or minister shall in future take any prises within the liberty of the said town beyond the due and wonted customs, save with the consent of the owners of the goods taken;

the burgesses may distrain in the borough their debtors for debts which the burgesses have allowed their debtors to contract at the same borough ; and of pledges both of lands and of other things pledged within the borough the pleas shall be held there ;

the assizes of victuals shall be kept by the good men of the said borough and by the king's bailiffs upon pain of forfeiture to the king ;

the burgesses shall have thol and theam, sok and sak and infangenethef within the said borough ;

the burgesses shall have a gild merchant with a hanse and other customs and liberties belonging to the said gild ; and no one who is not of that gild shall trade in the borough save with the consent of the burgesses ;

if any bondman shall remain in the said borough and keep himself (se tenuerit) therein and be in the said gild and hanse, lot and skot with the said burgesses for a year and a day without being claimed, he shall not thereafter be redemanded by his lord, but shall remain a free man in the said borough ;

the burgesses shall be quit through all the king's land of toll, lestage, passage, pontage, stallage, leve, danegeld, gaywit and all other customs and exactions, through all the king's dominions in England and elsewhere, saving the liberty of the city of London ;

no one shall buy within the said borough fresh hides or raw cloth unless he be in lot and scot and in assize and tallage with the said burgesses ;

the burgesses through all the king's land and power shall have this liberty, to wit that neither they nor their goods, wherever found, shall be arrested for any debt whereof they are not sureties or principal debtors, unless the debtors be of their commune and power and have wherewith to discharge the debt in whole or in part, and the burgesses have failed to do justice to the creditors who can prove such failure ;

the burgesses shall be quit of all payment of murage in the realm ;

none of the king's burgesses or men or others of the town shall be impleaded or put to question on any appeals, indictments (rettis), wrongs, trespasses, charges, claims or any other matters charged against them within the liberty of the said town, but only before the bailiffs of the town ; nor shall they be convicted by any foreigners but only by their peers of the said town and liberty, unless the matter touch the commonalty of the town ; and in that case they shall be treated according to the liberties of the town of Shrewsbury as hitherto used and approved ;

no burgess shall be put on assizes, juries, recognitions or inquisitions to be taken concerning any charges, trespasses or other matters before any of the king's justices, saving those to be taken within the said town before the bailiffs, and then of matters done within the said liberty, unless in cases touching the king's crown and within the town and liberty of Oswaldestre ;

the burgesses shall have attachments, their own prison and the keeping of prisoners attached or adjudged to prison in the liberty of the town, as the burgesses of Shrewsbury have ;

all pleas and plaints within the town and its liberty shall be held before the bailiffs of the town, excepting those which belong to the crown ;

no burgess or man of the said town of Oswaldestre and no other person shall be impleaded of his lands or tenements or other matters arising within the said town and liberty before any judges or ministers of the king but only before the bailiffs of the town, by whatever writ or in whatever manner they may be impleaded ;

no sheriff, bailiff or minister of the king shall enter the said town or its liberty or intermeddle therein in any way with the burgesses or men of the town and liberty in any plea, plaint, occasion, trespass or other matter arising in the said town and liberty, save in case of default by the said burgesses ; saving to the king the pleas of the crown, which shall be attached by the burgesses until the coming of the king's justices ;

through all the king's land and power the burgesses shall have all liberties and free customs approved and hitherto used, which the burgesses of Shrewsbury have ; provided that the bailiffs of Oswaldestre shall be accountable to the king for fines, amercements and forfeited issues there arising and other profits due to the king from the said town, as they were before the making of this charter.

April 23. Windsor. 9 Gift, out of desire to provide for the king's health during his life and for the health of his soul after death and for the health of the soul of Anne late queen of England, to the church of St. Peter and William the abbot and the prior and convent of the same place of all the lands, tenements, rents and services called Hoddesford and Cowhous in the towns of Hendon and Hampstead, co. Middlesex, late of Richard Lescrop of Bolton, and also of the manor of Stokyngecherche with all lands, tenements, rents and services in the town of Stokyngecherche, co. Oxford, to be held by the said abbot, prior and convent, together with return of writs and all other liberties, which they have in their other lands by the charters of the king and his progenitors, and with all other things pertaining to the said lands upon the following conditions ; on the eve of the day upon which the anniversary of the queen is to be celebrated during the king's life and on the eve of the joint anniversary of the king and queen after the king's death, the abbot, prior and convent in the choir of the church with full convent shall sing placebo and dirige with nine lessons for the soul of the queen during the king's life and for the souls of the king and queen after his death, the same to be sung solemnly with the solemn tolling of bells ; and every week on the like day of the anniversary fixed as aforesaid they shall celebrate a solemn mass with the solemn tolling of bells ; and every week on the same day the abbot, prior and convent shall find victual for 140 poor men within the close of the abbey, that is to say each of the poor men shall receive 1*d.*, or its worth at the date of this charter, weekly for their victual by the hands of a fit monk appointed by the abbot, prior and convent and to be set free from all other care of the monastery on that day, which monk shall see that everyone of the said poor men before and after receiving the penny shall say clearly and devoutly the Lord's Prayer and the creed with 'Hail Mary' for the soul of the queen or the souls of the king and queen, as aforesaid, and the souls of all the faithful departed; provided that in any case of voidancy of the abbey the lands, rents, services and manor aforesaid with all thereon shall remain to the prior and convent subject to their performing the services and alms aforesaid, during all the period for which the temporalities of the abbey are in the king's hands; and if the monk appointed to distribute these alms shall die or for any cause be unable to discharge this duty during such voidancy, the prior and convent shall provide another monk for that purpose;

and although the king has ordained that after his death his anniversary and that of the queen shall be celebrated on the same day, being the day of his own anniversary, in the manner set forth above, yet, if that day be not the anniversary of the queen, the abbot, prior and convent shall still be bound to celebrate the anniversary of the said queen solemnly without the alms and burthens aforesaid; and if the anniversaries of the king and queen either coincide with any principal feast, the solemnization of them shall be anticipated according to the custom of the monastery, and the same shall be done in the case of the days, on which weekly such offices shall be sung, and on Maundy Thursday (feria quinta in Cena Domini), Good Friday and Easter Eve (Sabbato Pasche);

the abbots before the restitution of the temporalities and immediately after making the oath of fealty to the king shall make another corporal oath that they will cause all the foregoing to be maintained and observed;

and immediately on the death of any abbot the prior shall make corporal oath before the king, if the king is in London or the neighbourhood, that he will have the foregoing observed during his time; and if the king be not in those parts, the prior shall make the same oath in the full Exchequer before the treasurer and barons;

and lest the foregoing should be forgotten, in each year on the aforesaid anniversary the whole of the foregoing charter shall be read in the chapter before the whole convent;

and the abbot, prior and convent shall bind themselves and all their possessions to the observance hereof. By K.

the abbot, prior and convent or the prior and convent in the absence of the abbot, during the king's life, shall specially celebrate and pray for the king's health and the prosperity of the realm, and during the king's life shall celebrate the anniversary of the queen on the 7th of June, being the date of her death, and after the king's death they shall celebrate the anniversary of the king and queen on the date of the king's death in the manner following :—

The abbot, prior and convent, or the prior and convent, if the abbot is absent, on the eve of the day so fixed, in solemn vestments with the whole convent shall chant placebo and dirige with nine lessons with 100 cierges lighted round the tomb, every cierge to be twelve pounds in weight, to be renewed yearly upon the said anniversary, and to burn from the placebo and dirige on the eve up to high mass on the day of the anniversary, with the solemn ringing of great and other bells, for the soul of the said queen during the king's life and the souls of both of them after his death ; and on the day of the said anniversary, the abbot or the prior in the abbot's absence, if he can find no worthier prelate, shall say a solemn mass at the high altar of the church with the cierges alight and bells rung as aforesaid ;

and every monk shall say a private mass on the same day, and the other monks in minor orders shall say (dicant et versilient) the whole psalter, and the lay-brethren shall say the Lord's Prayer and the creed and the 'Hail Mary' as often as the abbot, prior and convent shall command them, for the soul of the queen or the souls of the king and queen as aforesaid, and for the souls of the faithful departed ;

on the day of the said anniversary the abbot, prior and convent shall give to every one of the poor flocking to their house 1*d.* of sterling or money that at the date of this charter was worth one sterling, waiting for the coming of the poor up to the hour of terce, for the souls of the queen or of the king and queen as aforesaid, provided that the distribution which the abbot, prior and convent are bound to make to 140 poor men shall be made yearly on the eve of the anniversary and thereafter in each week through the year the distribution shall be made according to the other charter ; of the said cierges there shall remain throughout the year thirty around the tomb of the queen, or the tomb of the king and queen, up to the day of the renewal of the cierges on the aforesaid anniversary, which the abbot, prior and convent shall cause to be lighted on the great feasts, and when kings, dukes, earls and the relations or descendants of kings visit the tomb and otherwise as they think fit ; and the said abbot, prior and convent shall maintain four cierges, each of eight pounds, to burn round the tomb of the queen or that of the king and queen continually ;

and although the king has ordained that after his death his anniversary and that of the queen shall be celebrated on the same day, being the day of his own anniversary, yet, if that day be not the anniversary of the queen, the abbot, prior and convent shall still be bound to celebrate the anniversary of the said queen without the alms and burthens aforesaid ; and if the anniversaries of the king and queen either coincide with any principal feast, the solemnization of them shall be anticipated according to the custom of the monastery, and the same shall be done in the case of the days on which weekly such offices shall be sung and on Maundy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter Eve (Sabbato Pasche);

and when all these have been fulfilled all the residue of the money arising from the issues of the manors, messuages, mills, land, meadow and pasture aforesaid and the revenues of the said church and advowson shall remain to the prior and convent for their pittances; but no profit therefrom shall accrue to the abbot, nor from the custody thereof, saving to him his prelacy and rule, nor shall he intermeddle therein; and the prior and convent shall order the same at their will;

the abbots before the restitution of the temporalities and immediately after making the oath of fealty to the king shall make another corporal oath that they will cause all the foregoing to be maintained and observed;

and immediately on the death of any abbot the prior shall make corporal oath before the king, if the king be in London or in the neighbourhood, that he will have the foregoing observed during his time; and if the king be not in those parts, the prior shall make the same oath in the full Exchequer before the treasurer and barons;

and lest the foregoing should be forgotten, in each year on the aforesaid anniversary the whole of the foregoing charter shall be read aloud in the chapter before the whole convent;

May 1. Westminster. 6 The king, desiring to provide for his health during his life and for the health of his soul after death and of that of the late Queen Anne, by certain charters has given to the church of St. Peter, Westminster, and William the abbot and the prior and convent the manor of Stevyngton, co. Berks, and the church of Stevyngton, with the advowson, the manor of Westbury, co. Wilts, two messuages, a mill, 140 acres of land, 16 acres of meadow and 40 acres of pasture in Esthenrith, co. Berks, the manors of Northall and Downe, co. Middlesex, and all the manors late of Richard Lescrope of Bolton, knight, in the towns and hamlets of Holme, Langeford, Henlawe, Bicleswade, Southyevell, Brome and Stratton, co. Bedford, all the lands, tenements, rents and services called Hoddesford and Cowhous in the towns of Hampstead and Hendon, co. Middlesex, late of the said Richard Lescrop, and the manor of Stokyngecherche with all lands, rents and services in the town of Stokyngecherche, co. Oxford; to be held by the said church, abbot, prior and convent with return of writs and other liberties such as they have elsewhere by performing certain alms and charges in the said charters contained.

And because the foregoing lands are scarcely sufficient to support these burthens by their true value, and yet the abbot, prior and convent are liable to pay their share of any tenth, fifteenth, or other subsidy granted to the king by the commonalty of the realm for these manors, lands and so forth, the king hereby grants that the abbot, prior and convent shall not be bound to pay anything from the said manors, lands and so forth or their goods on them by reason of any tenth, fifteenth, or other subsidy or any tallage, but shall be quit of the same;

and that they shall have therein the following liberties: sac, soc, tholl, theam, infangenethef, utfangenethef, westgeldethef, hamsokne, grithbriche, blodewite, infang and forfang, fichtwite and flithwite, ferdewite, hangewite and leirwite, flemeneswite and flemenesfrenthe, escape from prison, murder and larceny, and money pertaining to murder and larceny, forstall within time and without, with all possible causes; they and their men shall be free from all scot, geld, all aids of kings, sheriffs and their ministers, amercement and fine of county, hidage, carucage, danegeld, horngeld, wapentak, stallage, lestage, tallage, showyng, miskennyng, mundbrich, burbrich, shires, hundreds, swain motes, pleas, plaints, assizes, views and summonses, conduct of treasure, ward and ward-peny, haver-peny and hundredpeny, tethingpeny, borthalpeny, all works of castles, parks, walls, fish-ponds, and bridges, enclosures, all carriage, sumpter-service, and ship service, building of king's houses and all kinds of works; their woods shall not be taken for these works nor their corn nor their goods nor those of their men to provision castles; they may freely without chiminage or other impediment take of all their woods for their own use without incurring any forfeiture of waste or any amercement; all lands and purprestures already made and all essarts of theirs and of their men's, who are not earls or barons, which are already made, or shall in future be made with the king's assent, are hereby quit-claimed to them from waste, regard, view of foresters and all else belonging to the forest or the foresters;

they shall have view of frank pledge in all the foregoing, with plea of replevin (vetiti namii); and all animals called waif found therein, unless anyone have followed the animals who can prove ownership and the animals were followed and claimed within a proper time according to the custom of the country; they shall have the goods and chattels of all their men and tenants, free or bond, and of all residents in the said manors, lands, tenements and fees, who may be outlawed for felony, contempt, trespass, debt, account or any other cause at the suit of any party, or who may be suicides or otherwise felons, fugitive or condemned in the usual form with the usual powers of taking such goods; they shall have all fines for trespasses, oppressions, extorsions and all other delicts and misprisions, and all amercements, ransoms, forfeited issues and forfeitures from attaints and other matters, year, day and waste, deodands, treasure-trove, and all that could accrue thence to the king, in whatever court the same might be adjudged, with power to receive the same without any impediment; and all their men, tenants and residents shall be quit of all toll, pontage, pavage, murage, passage, stallage, picage in all markets and fairs, passage of the sea or of bridges, waters and ways, wherever the king can grant such liberty; the abbot and convent shall have full return and execution of all the king's writs, bills, precepts and summonses of the exchequer, and the levying of all moneys, and every kind of execution by writ or bill within the said manors, lands and tenements, even though such execution touch the king and any other person whatsoever; and if any person shall be liable to imprisonment for felony, trespass, debt, detinue or account or any other cause, the abbot and convent shall have by their bailiffs and ministers the arrest and custody of such persons in their own prison to be appointed by them for that purpose, and the execution of judgement on such persons imprisoned shall

MEMBRANE 3.

April 6. Westminster. 4

Grant, of special grace and with the assent and deliberation of the council, to the mayor, bailiffs and commonalty of the town of Coventry and their heirs and successors, that they may make their profit of all the gates and towers of the walls and of all bridges and purprestures made in lands and waters and of all wastes in the said town within the following bounds, from Jabettesassh to the mill called Nassyngtones Milne and thence to the corner of the stone wall of the park of Cheillesmore and thence along the wall (parietem) and paling of the said park to Baroneswell and thence to the house of John atte Yate, and so leaving the said manor and park and the house of the Friars Minors of Coventry on the left to the corner of Crabtrefeld and below Crabtrefeld and along a lane leading to the church of Spouna and thence to Dudmaneswell and thence to the church and cemetery of St. Nicholas, Coventry, and thence to Bottescros, and thence to Harnelle quarelle, and thence to Gosfordgrene and Jabettesassh aforesaid, in aid of the repair and amendment of the walls of the town, and in support of the fee farm of the town and of other charges within the said town without any impeachment from the king or his ministers ; and, with the assent aforesaid, grant that the burgesses of the town shall have full correction, punishment, authority and power to enquire, hear and determine by the mayor and recorder of the town and other four good and lawful men of the town to be chosen by the mayor, in all matters belonging to the office of justice of the peace, labourers and workmen, as fully as such justices in the county of Warwick had before this charter, so that such justices in the county shall no wise intermeddle therein within the said town and suburbs, provided that the mayor and recorder and four men shall not proceed to the determination of any felony without the king's special writ ; and that the mayor, bailiffs and commonalty shall have all amercements, issues and profits arising from the said office of justice, as fully as they had such profits under charters of previous kings and of the king himself ;

moreover grant that none of the liberties and franchises granted by the king's progenitors and by him confirmed to the mayor, bailiffs and residents in the town of Coventry and the manor of Cheillesmore shall be denied to the present mayor, bailiffs, commonalty, tenants and residents for any reason or under any colour ; but that they shall enjoy all such liberties and customs article by article, word for word, as they have had and used them under the charters and confirmations granting them in times past.

April 17. Westminster. 3 Whereas John, bishop of Ely, and preceding bishops of that church, in right of the said church and from time immemorial have had free warren in all their lands, woods and marshes belonging to their manors of Dodyngton, Littelport and Dounham in the Isle of Ely, and have also had the roe-deer (capreolos) and other beasts of the chace (savagine) there ; and whereas, when any trespassers took any such beasts of the chace there without the consent of the bishops, they were punished by presentment and amercement in the bishop's court at the said manors ; and whereas now certain trespassers allege that without licence of the bishop they may hunt, take and slay roe-deer as a beast of vermin, and under this colour have taken and intend to take roe-deer and other beasts of the chace and warren there to the great damage of the bishop, and against his ancient right ; now therefore the king desiring to preserve the rights and liberties of the said church hereby confirms to the said bishop and his successors the said free warren as aforesaid ; and in order that the wrong done to the said church by the said trespassers may cease and to remove all doubt in the matter, the king hereby, of special grace and of sure science, grants to the said bishops free chace in all their lands, woods and marshes belonging to the said three manors, with all rights belonging to the said free chace. MEMBRANE 2.

March 20. Westminster. 2 Grant, of special grace, to the prior and convent of the house of Mountgrace of the Carthusian order, that they and their successors shall have and hold all their manors, lands, tenements, rents and possessions well and in peace with all their liberties and customs, as well touching the election of prior as touching the other customs which the house of Chartreuse has, and quit of gelds, danegelds, hidages, scutages, works of castles, bridges, parks, dikes and houses, of toll, passage, payage, pontage, lestage, all service and custom, and all payments (questu pecuniario) to the king ; and that they shall be free throughout the realm, on either side the sea, of essarts and regard of forest within their boundaries, of shires and hundreds and suits thereof, and of all pleas and plaints ; and that all their lands from which they were wont to pay the murder-fine, shall be quit of the same and of all earthly exaction ; and that no forester or minister of a forester shall trouble them within their bounds, nor those entering or quitting the same ; and that the prior and brethren of the house shall be quit throughout the realm of all aids, tallages, payments and customs payable to the king without any impediment ; and that if the temporalities or spiritualities of other religious in the realm of England shall be taxed by any grant made to the king in any way, the goods of the said prior and convent shall not be taxed, nor aught thereof levied to the use of the king ; and that the prior and convent shall have all fines, ransoms, forfeited issues and amercements pertaining to the king for any trespasses, or offences, whereof the tenants and servants of the prior and convent may be impeached or questioned before the justices for keeping the statute and ordinance of labourers and workmen, so long as the said statute and ordinance are in force; with power to levy the same by their bailiffs by estreats of the said justices to be delivered to the said bailiffs without any impediment; that the prior and convent and lay brethren of the said house and other servants shall not be troubled before these justices or other ministers for any hides, whether of their own beasts or not, purchased for the behoof of the prior and convent, tanned in the tannary of the house and then sold for their profit at a price agreed upon between them and the purchaser;

since the king has taken the said house and the monks and their household under his special protection, ordering that no sheriff or minister or other person shall presume to thresh any of their corn or take and carry away any victuals, goods, horses, oxen, wains, carts, ships or boats of theirs under colour of purchase in any merchant town or elsewhere against the will of the prior and convent or the keepers of the same, or under that pretext extort anything from them, upon pain of the penalties contained in the statute enacted at Westminster in 3 Edward III;

the prior and convent may work all mines of lead found upon their own ground and take the issues without impediment; the prior and convent throughout the realm shall be quit of murage, quayage, picage, pavage and stallage and all other such customs.

   (4) A charter of Henry II, dated at Woodstock. [Ibid.]
2. A charter dated at Westminster, 18 June 5 Richard II. [See above, p. 278.]

And further considering the dignity of the church of Canterbury and the king's devotion to St. Thomas and the services rendered by the archbishop at the time of the king's coming to his realm and since and for the removal of all ambiguity in the words of the above charters, the king hereby declares and grants the following :—

the archbishop and his successors, his men and resident tenants, and other residents in the lands, lordships and fees of the archbishop and in those of the prior and convent, even though they be elsewhere tenants of the king or others, shall be quit throughout the realm of all toll in markets, fairs, passage of bridges, waters, wherever the king can grant such liberties ; and all the goods, chattels and merchandise of the said men, tenants and residents shall be quit of pavage, passage, lastage, stallage, carriage, pesage, picage, terrage, tronage, pontage, chiminage, anchorage, and wharfage; and that the foregoing shall be quit of suits of shires, hundreds and lathes. (lasta hundredorum) belonging to the king;

the archbishops shall have the goods and chattels of their men, tenants and residents convicted of felony or outlawed for felony, contempt, trespass, debt, account or any other cause at the king's suit or that of a party; and they shall have all forfeited goods and chattels of the said men, tenants and residents, and of suicides and all other felons, fugitives and condemned persons or outlaws in the usual form, with power to put themselves in seisin thereof in the usual form;

the archbishops shall have return of all the king's precepts and of all writs and precepts touching the king or others, of all bills and precepts returnable before the steward and marshal of the household so that all summonses, attachments and executions to be made by the judgement of the said steward and marshall shall be made by the said archbishops or their ministers, to the exclusion of any officer of the king's, save in case of default by the said archbishops or their ministers;

the archbishops shall have all fines for all trespasses, oppressions, extorsions, deceptions, conspiracies, concealments, regrating, forstalling, maintenance, ambidextries, falsities and other misprisions, all fines for licences to agree, all amercements, ransoms, forfeited issues and forfeitures, as well by writs of attaints, writs of decies tantum or premunire facias as by any other writs, from all their men, tenants and residents as aforesaid, all escapes of felons in their said lands, lordships and fees, and all that could come to the king from such escapes or from murderers and felons, of all their said men, tenants and residents, even though they hold elsewhere of the king or others, in whatever court the foregoing may be adjudged, provided that the same would have belonged to the king, if they had not been granted to the archbishops;

the archbishops shall have deodands, treasure-trove, all goods and chattels called mainour (manu opera) found with any person in the said lands, lordships and fees and disavowed by him before any judge;

they shall have all fines and ransoms and amercements running upon any of the townships or hundreds in the said lands, lordships and fees;

no sheriff, bailiff or other minister shall attach or take any man of the tenants or residents in the said lands, lordships or fees by any writ, precept or other warrant in the county where these reside, provided the execution of such writs, precepts or warrants can be duly made within the lands, lordships and fees aforesaid by the said archbishop and his successors, though any sheriffs, bailiffs or ministers find any such men, tenants or residents without the lands, lordships and fees aforesaid within the said counties where they are resident; but a mandate shall be sent to the archbishops, or their ministers to make such execution, save in case of default by the same;

the archbishops and their ministers shall have, in the king's absence or presence, in all their lands, demesnes and fees the essay, amends and assize of bread, wine and ale and all victuals, measures and weights

2. Letters patent dated at Westminster, 1 May 3 Richard II. [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1377–1381, p. 482.]
3. Letters patent dated at Nottingham, 29 June 16 Richard II. [Ibid. 1391–1396, p. 126.]

And further considering the losses sustained by the said abbess and convent by reason of the inundation of the Thames upon their lands, the king has granted to them the following:—

they shall have in their hundred of Bekentre alias Begentrowe and in all their lands and fees all fines for trespasses and other misdeeds, all fines for licences to agree and all other fines, ransoms and amercements, forfeited issues of their men and tenants of and in the said hundred, lands and fees, and of all residents therein, and also all forfeitures, year, day and waste (vastum et estreppamentum) and all that can belong to the king thence, in whatever court the foregoing may be adjudged, as the king would have had them before this grant, with power to levy the same by their bailiffs in whatever court of the king's the same are adjudged by estreats to be given in the sessions of the justices itinerant for common pleas and pleas of the forest, and of the steward, marshalls, coroner and clerk of the market of the household, and by estreats of the exchequer to be given by the sheriff to the said bailiffs in the case of other courts ;

the abbess and convent in the king's presence as in his absence shall have the essay and assize of bread, wine and ale and all other victuals belonging to the office of clerk of the king's market, with the punishment thereof and fines and amercements and profits thence arising, with exclusion of the jurisdiction of the clerk of the market of the household from the said hundreds, lands and fees ; the abbess and convent shall have the chattels of fugitives and felons, suicides and outlaws of their men and tenents and of all residents in the usual form, with power to levy the same in the usual form ;

the abbess and convent shall have return of all the king's writs and summonses, estreats and precepts of the exchequer and of estreats and precepts of the justices in eyre for pleas of the forest and for common pleas, and all other justices, and also they shall have attachments of all pleas of the crown, in the said hundred, lands and fees, and the execution of all the said writs, summons, estreats and precepts, to the exclusion of the sheriff, save in case of default ; and if sheriffs or bailiffs of liberties, hundreds or wapentakes are negligent in making any executions on the king's writs for the said abbess and convent, whereby they are fined or amerced in the Exchequer or other of the king's courts, the abbess and convent shall have the said fines and amercements and may levy the same ;

the abbess and convent shall have in the said hundred, lands and fees all chattels called wayfs and stray, deodands, treasure-trove and all goods called mainour ; and they may take the same without any impediment. By p.s. and for 20 marks paid in the hanaper.

May 23. Westminster. 1 Grant, of special grace, for the relief of the town of Newcastle upon Tyne and its burgesses to the said burgesses that the said town with its suburbs according to the old bounds thereof, which is now contained in the corpus of the county of Northumberland, shall be in future separate from that county as well by land as by water, and that the said town and its suburbs shall in future be a county by itself and be called the county of the town of Newcastle upon Tyne ; and that the burgesses shall have in the said town and its suburbs the following liberties ; they shall have instead of bailiffs of the said town one sheriff in the said town and suburbs and the office of sheriff of that town, which

sheriff shall be yearly chosen and appointed in the following form; the burgesses in each year, when it shall be needful, by twenty-four of the fitter, discreeter, better and more honourable burgesses shall chose from among the whole body of burgesses one fit person to be sheriff of the town and suburbs, who immediately upon his election shall make oath before the mayor of the town in due form, and whose name shall be sent yearly into the king's Chancery under the seal of the town; so that the said sheriff shall answer at the king's Exchequer for all issues of his office belonging to the king, and that at no future time shall there be any sheriff of the said town saving the one so chosen by the burgesses; and the said sheriff shall have such power and jurisdiction to do all else belonging to the office of sheriff in the said town and suburbs as other sheriffs have elsewhere in the realm; the sheriff shall hold his county in the said town on Wednesday from month to month, as other sheriffs hold their counties elsewhere in the realm of England; the sheriff in every year may make his proffer and account before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer by sufficient attornies to be appointed for this under the common seal of the said town, in all matters touching the office of sheriff for which he is accountable; and these attornies shall be admitted by the Treasurer and Barons to make and render the said proffer and account in the stead of the sheriff;

none of the burgesses shall plead or be impleaded without the said town touching any lands, tenements or tenures within the town and suburbs or touching any trespasses, agreements or other contracts arising within the said town and suburbs; but the mayor and sheriff shall have, together or separately, cognisance of all pleas, real and personal or mixed, touching all lands, tenements and tenures within the town and suburbs, and of all trespasses, agreements and other contracts arising therein, the same to be held and determined in the 'Guyhalda' of the same town, both in the king's absence and in his presence; so that the stewards and marshalls shall nowise intermeddle in any such pleas arising in the said town and its suburbs, but only in trespasses, agreements and contracts done in the king's household between those who are of his household; the burgesses shall not be put upon assizes, juries or other inquisitions without the said town by reason of their lands and tenements within the said town and suburbs; in each year the burgesses may chose of themselves six aldermen; and the mayor and aldermen, or not fewer than two of them with the mayor shall have full power to enquire, hear and determine all matters, plaints, defects, causes and articles belonging to the office of justice of the peace, servants, labourers and craftsmen and the correction and punishment thereof, as fully as any other such justices in other counties of the realm, to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of such justices for the county of Northumberland; provided that the mayor and aldermen shall not proceed to the determination of any felony without the king's special writ;

the mayor and sheriff shall have and hold their courts of the town, as the mayor and bailiffs did before this charter, and shall take the profits thereof in like manner; saving always to the king all fines, ransoms, amercements, forfeited issues and other profits arising as well from the office of sheriff, and from the pleas whereof they have new cognisance under this charter, as from the office of justice of the peace, servants, labourers and craftsmen, By K.

MEMBRANE 12.

May 13. Westminster. 2 Whereas King Richard II by a charter [see above, p. 320.] which the king has inspected and confirmed, with clause licet, granted to the chancellor and scholars of the university of Oxford the liberties therein set out and here recited ; and whereas the said chancellor and scholars have shown to the king by their petition that in the said charter the limits of the town are not set out in special words and that certain matters touching the liberties aforesaid are granted by general words, and that in consequence they are often impeded in their enjoyment of the said liberties, and have prayed for a remedy herein ;

now therefore the king, out of special affection for Philip Repyngdon, abbot of Leicester, chancellor of the university, of special grace, has granted that the precincts of the university shall be limited as follows ; from the east side of the said town to the hospital of St. Bartholomew by Oxford, from the west side of the said town to the town of Boteley, from the north of the said town to the bridge called Godstowebrygge, from the south of the said town to the wood called Bagley and so in a circuit including all the said places ; and has also granted that the chancellor, his commissaries and deputies shall have and enjoy the aforesaid liberties, in the king's presence as in his absence, within the said precincts ; and that they shall have power to enquire by scholars or laymen of the town of Oxford or others touching trespasses, misprisions, extorsions, ignorances, negligences, excesses, conspiracies, confederations, champarties, ambidextries, maintenance, false allegiances, nuisances (nocumentis), forestallers, regrators and all other articles of the eyre, which can fall into fine, or ransom or other pecuniary penalty, and touching contracts, personal pleas and plaints and all other causes and matters even if they touch the king or his ministers, excepting only felony mayhem and assizes and pleas of free-hold, which arise, or occur in the town of Oxford and its suburbs and the aforesaid precincts, either ex officio or at the king's suit or the suit of a party or otherwise, whereto masters or scholars or their servants or other persons entitled to enjoy, the privileges of the university, whom the chancellor or his commissaries or deputies may claim for such, shall be a party, and shall have full cognisance and correction thereof, and shall hold all such cases in any place by them chosen within the said boundaries, and make execution thereof according to their laws and customs or the law and custom of the realm of England at the will of the chancellor, his commissaries or deputies, and hear and determine the same, and receive all amercements and profits thereof to the use of the university ; to the exclusion of all other justices or ministers of the king, so that if these intermeddle in any wise in any of the aforesaid matters, on the certificate of the chancellor, his commissary or deputy they shall at once stay all process or execution therein ; and whereas among the liberties granted by previous kings and confirmed by the king it was granted that the chancellor should have the keeping of the assize of bread, wine and ale and the correction and punishment thereof in the town and suburbs of Oxford with the fines, amercements and profits thence arising, on rendering to the king 100*s.* yearly, the king hereby releases to the said chancellor and scholars the said yearly sum, so that they shall render in future at the Exchequer 1*d.* only at Michaelmas yearly. 1403. MEMBRANE 4.

Dec. 14. Westminster. 7 Grant, of special grace, to Thomas Brounfletc, knight, and his heirs, of free warren in all their demesne lands in the manors of Wymyngton and Grendon, cos. Bedford and Northampton.

Jan. 18. Westminster. 6 In consideration of the king's affection for the city and citizens and commonalty of Norwich, and of their good bearing towards him, the king, of special grace, has granted to the said citizens the following liberties ;

the city and all the land within the city and its liberty with its suburbs and hamlets and all the land about the city within the liberty of the city, with the exception of the castle and le Shirehous, all which are now within the corpus of the county of Norfolk, shall henceforth be separated from the said county by land and by water ; and shall in future be a county by itself and called the county of the city of Norwich ;

the citizens and commonalty shall choose yearly a mayor from themselves, and such mayor on his election shall be the king's escheator in the county of the city of Norwich ; instead of the four bailiffs formerly used, who and whose names in their vulgar titles (vulgari nuncupatione) are to be wholly disused in the city and elsewhere, the citizens and commonalty shall choose yearly two sheriffs of themselves, and shall have the office of sheriff of the county of the city of Norwich ;

the mayor and sheriffs shall be chosen in the manner following ; in every year the citizens and commonalty shall choose of themselves three persons, one for mayor and two for sheriffs ; and every escheator immediately upon his appointment shall yearly make oath faithfully to discharge his office before a sufficient person in the city to be assigned for that purpose by the king's writ in the chancery, so that no escheator shall be compelled to come without the city to make oath before any other person, provided that yearly the name of the escheator shall be certified at once into the Exchequer under the common seal of the city ; and the sheriffs shall take the same oath before the mayor and shall not leave the city for that purpose ; and their names shall yearly be certified into the chancery under the common seal of the city ; and the mayor shall have full power to take the said oaths from the sheriffs in the hall called 'le Gyldehalle' without suing a writ of dedimus potestatem out of the chancery or awaiting any other mandate from the king ; and the sheriffs shall make oath before the mayor in the same place, and shall have power to do and execute in due course all that other sheriffs of others counties in the realm have power to do and execute according to the laws and customs of the realm ; provided always that no sheriff or escheator of the county of Norfolk shall enter the said county of the city of Norwich to do any office therein ; but the escheator and sheriffs of the city shall have full power to exercise their offices therein ; the said sheriffs of the city of Norwich shall hold their county there on Monday from month to month as the other sheriffs of the realm do, and shall in like manner hold their court there and take all the profits thence arising as the bailiffs of the city did previously ;

none of the citizens or commonalty shall implead or be impleaded before the king or any of his justices without the city touching lands or tenements, which they hold within the liberty of the city, its suburbs, hamlets and so forth as above, nor touching any trespass or agreement made therein ; but if any of the citizens or any other person will sue for any land within those limits or complain touching any trespass or agreement made therein, he shall pursue his right and plaint before the mayor and sheriffs according to the form and ordinance to be made thereof by the citizens and commonalty of the city ; and the mayor and sheriffs shall have cognisance of pleas of trespasses, agreements, contracts and debts arising in the said limits whether in the king's presence or absence with all the profits thence arising without any impediment from any of the king's ministers, with exclusion of the jurisdiction of the stewards and marshals over such pleas, save over those arising in the king's household between members thereof ;

the citizens and their heirs and successors being citizens of the said city shall have cognisance of all pleas of assizes of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor of all lands within the said limits as well before the king's justices of either bench, justices for taking assizes and justices in eyre as before all other justices of the king for such assizes, to hold and take the same before the mayor and sheriffs in ' le Gyldhalle ' of the city ; the escheator and sheriffs of the city of Norwich may yearly make their proffers at the Exchequer and account before the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer by attornies, having sufficient power under letters patent sealed under the common seal of the city of Norwich, of all matters whereof they are accountable ; which attornies shall be admitted for these purposes by the treasurer and barons in the place of the escheator and sheriffs ; the mayor, sheriffs, citizens and commonalty may make their profit of all gates, bridges and wastes on land or water within the said limits in aid of the repairing of the gates and walls of the city ; the mayor shall have full jurisdiction to hear, correct, reform and determine before himself in ' le Gyldhalle ' at the suit of any person all defaults (defunctus), oppressions, extorsions, misprisions, ignorances, negligences and wrongs, done by the sheriffs of the county of Norwich within that county and adjudge damages to the aggrieved party according to the nature of the offence ;

the citizens and commonalty of the city, their heirs and successors, shall have full correction, punishment, authority and power to enquire, hear and determine by the mayor and four other better and more lawful (probiores et legaliores) men of the city, to be chosen by the mayor, all matters, plaints, defects, causes and articles, belonging to the office of justice of the peace, labourers and craftsmen, arising in the limits aforesaid, as fully as the justices of peace, labourers and craftsmen in the county of Norfolk did before this date, whose jurisdiction is hereby excluded ; provided that the mayor and four of the better and more lawful men of the city shall not proceed to the determination of any felony without the king's special mandate ; the citizens and commonalty shall have all fines, forfeited issues and amercements pertaining to the office of justice of the peace within the said limits, to be levied by their ministers and applied to the repair of the bridges of the city and other daily charges thereof ;

the mayor, sheriffs, citizens and commonalty of the city shall have the forfeiture of victuals forfeited by any law, to wit of bread, wine and ale and other matters which do not pertain to merchandise ;

the citizens and commonalty shall have the right that the mayor may have the sword given by the king or another sword born in his presence with the point erect, if the king be absent, even in the presence of magnates and lords of the realm, who are connected with the king by consanguinity, or of others ; and the serjeants of the maces of the mayor and sheriffs of the city may bear their gilt, silver or silvered maces with the sign of the king's arms upon them within the said limits even in the presence of the king and of his consort and of the mothers of the king's heirs (tam in presencia nostra et heredum nostrorum quam in presencia consortis nostre ac matrum heredum nostrorum predictorum) as the king's own serjeants at arms can do ; the steward and marshalls of the household or the clerk of the market of the household, whether the king be present or not, shall not enter or sit within the said limits nor do any office therein, nor hold any enquiry nor intermeddle in any way within the said liberty nor compel any citizens or residents to plead without the city for any matter arising within the said limits ;

no purveyor or other taker of victuals nor any other minister of the king's or of any other shall make any prise or take any goods of the citizens against their will, whether the king or any other lord is present or no, saving victuals needful to the king taken by his ministers, who shall pay beforehand a reasonable price for the same ;

the coroners of the city shall have power to exercise their office in the king's presence as in his absence as they have done from time immemorial without impediment ;

none of the franchises or liberties granted to the citizens and commonalty, their heirs and successors, tenants and residents within the said limits by the king's ancestors and confirmed by the king shall be denied to the mayor, sheriffs, citizens and commonalty, tenants and residents within the said limits by reason of the change in the name of bailiffs or for any other cause or colour ; but the mayor, sheriffs, citizens and commonalty shall enjoy and use all the liberties and franchises, which the bailiffs, citizens and commonalty enjoyed and used under previous charters before the change of name.

The king has learnt that the chancellor and scholars of the University of Oxford have divers franchises of the king's grant and of that of previous kings, which they and their predecessors have hitherto peacefully used, until of late by the malice of the lay folk of the town and the covin of their abettors the chancellor and scholars, their officers and ministers, by reason of their exercise of these franchises and the execution thereof have been and are daily indicted and appealed of treasons, insurrections, felonies, mayhems, and so ill-treated, arrested, imprisoned, and thereupon charged (allocuti) before secular judges and condemned to death otherwise than was done in times past to the destruction of the university; and the king has therefore, of special grace, granted to the chancellor and scholars and their successors that if the chancellor, commissary, deputy, master, scholar, officer or minister of the university or any other person under its privileges shall be indicted or appealed before justices for holding pleas before the king, justices for assizes, justices for gaol delivery, or justices for hearing and determining treasons, felonies and other misdeeds, justices of the peace or other justices, coroners, the stewards and marshalls of the king's household, sheriffs or other justices, commissaries or ministers of the king, or before the mayor and bailiffs of the town, by any lay men resident within the said town or the four adjacent hundreds or having possessions within the said town and hundreds touching any treasons, insurrections, felonies or mayhems, or within the county of Oxford or Berks, and shall afterwards on such indictment or appeal be arrested or imprisoned within the precincts of the university, then, if the chancellor, commissary or deputy of the university will claim the said person, he, in whose custody such person is, shall cause the prisoner to be delivered to the steward of the chancellor of the said university or his deputy, the said steward to be appointed by commission from the king to be granted under the great seal by the king's chancellor or keeper of the seal by virtue of his office, at the nomination of the chancellor of the university or his deputy, provided that the person so nominated shall seem to the king's chancellor or keeper of the seal a sufficient person; such delivery to be immediately upon the claim being made upon pain of 200*l.* to be paid to the king; and in like manner the person, in whose custody the said indictment or appeal is, upon the demand of the steward shall cause the said indictment or appeal to be sent before the steward with all processes and the like upon the same penalty; so that the said person arrested or imprisoned shall stand to judgement (staret recto) before the steward if the king or any other person wish to allege aught against him, and before no other judge; and if the said person shall plead on the indictment or appeal to have the verdict or inquisition of the country (ad verificationem sive inquisitionem patrie), then the steward shall proceed by precepts directed under his seal to the sheriffs of the counties to cause to come before the steward at the gild-hall (Guyhaldam) of the town of Oxford on a day fixed eighteen good and lawful men of the neighbourhood (visn') of the place where the said treason, insurrection, felony or mayhem is supposed to have taken place; and the steward shall also proceed by other precepts directed to the bedells of the university to cause to come before him at the gild-hall on the same day eighteen good and lawful laymen of the men under or of the privilege or jurisdiction of the university; and with these two panells before him he shall proceed to the delivery of the person arrested or imprisoned by such verdict or inquisition, whereof half shall be of the men returned by the sheriff and half of those returned by the bedells, as according to the law and custom of the realm of England and the liberties of the university and the purport of this charter ought to be done; and if the arrested or imprisoned person being charged by the steward shall allege that he is a clerk or otherwise claim privilege of the church and he be claimed by the ordinary of the place, then the steward shall deliver the said person to the ordinary as is fitting. 1407. MEMBRANE 9.

Oct. 23. Gloucester. 13 Among other liberties granted by previous kings of England to the mayor and citizens of York and confirmed to them by the present king was this, that none of them should plead or be impleaded before any of the king's justices without the city touching any lands which they hold within the liberty of the said city, nor of any trespass done in the said city; and now certain justices and ministers of the king's refuse (differant) to allow these liberties and franchises before them on the ground that they were granted by negative words, as the king is informed.

And therefore at the petition of the mayor, sheriffs, aldermen and citizens of the city the king, of special grace, has granted and declares that the mayor, sheriffs, aldermen and citizens, their heirs and successors, shall have cognisance of all manner of pleas of all lands and tenements within the said city and its suburbs begun or to be begun before any judge or minister of the king's, such cognisance to be before the mayor and sheriffs of the city in the gildhall (Gihalda).

April 4. Westminster. 5 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of Nicholas, bishop of Bath and Wells, the king's treasurer, and the dean and canons, prior and monks there of a charter dated at Westminster, 6 December 4 Henry IV. [See above, p. 419.]

And in consideration of the services of the said Nicholas, as king's secretary, keeper of the rolls of the Chancery, keeper of the privy seal and treasurer the king hereby declares and grants to the said bishop and his successors the following liberties :—

the bishop shall have all fines for trespasses and other misdeeds, fines for licence to agree, and all other fines, ransoms and amercements and forfeited issues from the dean and chapter, the several canons, vicars and ministers of the church of Wells, and from the prior and convent of Bath and from all men and tenants in the lands and fees of the said bishop and in the lands and fees of the said dean and chapter and the said prior and convent and from all residents in the said lands and fees, even though any of the foregoing persons should be ministers of the king ;

the bishop shall have all forfeitures, year, day and waste, and all that could come to the king therefrom or from forfeitures or murders in the said lands and fees, in whatever court it may chance that the foregoing persons may make fine, be amerced, forfeit issues, or that the said year, day and forfeiture or murder may be adjudged, as fully as the king could have had such profits, if they had not been conferred upon the bishop; with power to the bishop to levy the same by his bailiffs and ministers by estreats to be given to the said bailiffs and ministers in the sessions of justices in eyre for common pleas and pleas of the forest or before the steward and marshals of the king's household or the coroner and clerk of the market or by estreats of the Exchequer to be delivered to the said bailiffs and ministers by the sheriff, if the profits aforesaid accrue in any other of the king's courts;

the bishop, dean, chapter and canons, prior and convent and monks aforesaid, and their men and tenants within their lands and fees, shall be quit of toll, picage, prises and chiminages; nor shall aught be taken of their corn, hay, oats, horses, carts, carriages, victuals or other goods and chattels nor of those of residents on their lands and fees by the purveyors of the king's household or any other officers or ministers of the king against their will;

the bishop by himself or by his ministers, in the king's absence or presence, shall have the assay and assize of bread, wine and ale and all other victuals and all else pertaining to the office of the clerk of the king's market with the punishment of the same when needful, and shall take fines and amercements and all profits thence arising to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of the clerk of the market of the king's household;

the bishop shall have the chattels of fugitives, felons and outlaws from among the dean and canons, prior and monks, men and tenants in the said lands and fees and residents therein, even though the said persons be ministers of the king in the usual form, with power to put himself in seisin of the said goods and chattels without impediment;

the bishop shall have return of all the king's writs and of summons, estreats and precepts of the Exchequer and of estreats and precepts of the king's justices in eyre for pleas of the forest and for common pleas and of all other justices and the attachments of pleas of the crown and other pleas in their lands and fees; and he shall have the execution of the said writs, summonses, estreats and precepts, to the exclusion of any sheriff, bailiff or minister of the king's from the said lands and fees;

if sheriffs or bailiffs of liberties, hundreds or wapentakes are negligent in making executions for the bishop on the king's writs, whereby they are fined or amerced in the Exchequer or elsewhere, the fines and amercements shall go to the bishop, who may levy them by his ministers;

the bishop shall have in his lands and fees waif and stray, deodands treasure trove and other things found; and by his ministers he may seize and take for his own profit waifs and 'straies,' deodands, treasure trove and other things found; the bishop shall have all chattels called mainour (manuopera) taken with any person in the said lands and fees and by him disavowed before any judge;

the bishop shall have cognisance of all pleas touching lands within the city of Wells and its liberty, as well of assizes of novel disseisin, mort d'ancestor, certifications, attaints as of any other plea real or personal, and cognisance of all pleas of debt, trespass, agreement and all other causes and contracts arising within the city of Wells and its liberty to be held before the steward, bailiff or bailiffs of the bishop in the city, in the king's presence as in his absence ;

the bishop shall have full correction, punishment, authority and power to enquire, hear and determine by his steward, bailiff or bailiffs of Wells all matters, plaints, defects and causes arising within the city and liberty of Wells, which could be enquired, heard and determined before the justices of the peace, labourers and craftsmen, as fully as the said justices had in the city of Wells before this charter ; provided that the steward, bailiff or bailiffs do not proceed in any case of felony without the king's special mandate ; saving to the bishop all other liberties granted by the king's predecessors or used by him. For 10 marks paid in the hanaper.

MEMBRANE 1.

June 7. Westminster. 2 King Henry III granted and confirmed by a charter to St. Mary and the prior and brethren of Witteham of the Carthusian Order the gift made to them by King Henry II of all their lands in Witteham and Ceddreford as in the charter of that king [Monasticon, Vol. VI, p. 1] is more fully contained ; and King Henry III ordered that the said prior and brethren of Witteham should hold all the said lands in frank almoin with all the liberties contained in the said charter and in his own ;

and that the prior and brethren and their men should be quit towards the king and his sheriffs, constables, reeves and bailiffs throughout his land of all tallage, stallage, carriage, carucage (caruagiis), pleas, plaints, summonses, distraints, works and repairs of all fortifications, causeways, fish-ponds (vivariorum), dams (stagnorum), bridges, parks, walls, and all closes, of aids of kings, sheriffs, constables, foresters and all bailiffs, of view of frankpledge, of all amercements, of fines for trespasses and amercements, fines for licence to agree, of escape of thieves (latronum), of cattle of seisin, with soka, saka and hamsochne, and blodwite and forstal and flemenfrith, with quittance of all scot, of armies, and tallages of the same, of ward and ward-penny, horngeld and danegeld, sumpter-service, and all other custom and secular exaction, beyond the sea and on this side of it ; and that they should have in their lands and tenements all beasts called ' wayf,' and that their lands and tenements should be quit of waste and regard and view of foresters, verderers and regarders and all their ministers ; and that they and all their men should be quit of suits of swainmoots and all other pleas of the forest and of hambling (espeltamentis) of their dogs and of all summonses and questions (occasionibus) pertaining to the forest, foresters, verderers, regarders and their ministers ; and that all their boundaries should be disafforested and diswarrenned and quit of taking pigs in the time of fawning (feonationis), of chiminages and all pleas and plaints of the forest belonging to the king, his ministers or bailiffs ; since the said King Henry III retained to himself nothing relating to the forest in those bounds ; and that king also granted that the prior and brethren might enclose all their bounds by the metes laid down in the charter of King Henry II, and build houses therein and make roads there ; and that no sheriff or forester, verderer or regarder or bailiff of the king or his ministers should enter the said bounds, whether enclosed or not, to destroy the goods or buildings of the prior and brethren or to hold pleas there or to make any attachments therein, but that all should belong to them as it would have belonged to the king or any sheriff or other minister if the king had the said lands and tenements ;

all evil-doers taken within the lands and tenements of the prior and convent by their bailiffs, on whom judgement cannot or ought not to be done in their court, shall be received by the sheriffs and bailiffs into custody without difficulty on pain of forfeiture to the king, as soon as the bailiffs of the prior and brethren shall wish to hand over such evil-doers ; neither the chief justice of the forest nor the justices of the forest in eyre shall turn aside to the house of Witteham for food or lodging unless invited to do so by the prior ; and if they endeavour to do so, they shall be refused, that no custom may grow up to the harm of the liberties of the house ;

the sheriff of Somerset shall not permit the prior and brethren to be troubled by any one touching their goods moveable or immoveable ; but whoever claim (vindicent) any right in aught belonging to the brethren, the sheriff shall cause them (eisdem) to know (scire faciat) on the king's part that they may come to the king to set forth their right therein ; and the king will do without delay what is just in the matter ; for the prior and brethren hold all that they have of the gift of King Henry II, all which King Henry III and his heirs are bound to warrant to them as their demesne church, since they may not plead by the statutes and rule (exigentiam) of their order, and the said king prohibited any justice, constable, sheriff, verderer or other bailiff from holding a plea of any plaint touching the said house or the brethren, but ordered them to reserve all such to be brought against the king by the complainants; and because the prior and brethren according to their order may not enlarge their boundaries, the said king forbade either them or any other persons to diminish the said land;

and since the said house of Witteham was a demesne house and alms wholly enfeoffed by the grandfather of the said King Henry III, who in founding the said house satisfied all those who had any right within the said bounds by exchange or otherwise, as appears by enquiry made hereof by King Henry III, therefore this last king willed that the said bounds (terminos) and all contained therein should be for ever possessed by the prior and brethren and should have the right and privilege of grave-yards (cemeteriorum) and should be protected by the king and his bailiffs with reasonable exceptions;

moreover the said King Henry III granted to the prior and brethren that they should not be impeded in these liberties on the ground of non-user, and prohibited any one from violating his grant in any way; and now the king hereby confirms all the foregoing to the said prior and brethren, with clause licet. By p.s. [5727.]

Sept. 2. Westminster. 1 Whereas among other franchises granted to the Barons of the Cinque Ports of the town of Feversham by charters of the king's ancestors and confirmed by the king, with clause licet, it was granted to them that if any one wished to plead against them, they should not answer or plead otherwise than they did in the time of King Henry I, and that they should only plead, where they ought to plead, to wit at Shipewey, as in the said charters is more fully contained; and although the said Barons have used these franchises up to these times, yet now the steward, marshal and clerk of the market of the household and other officers and ministers of the king have entered the town of Feversham to do their offices there to the damage of the said Barons; now therefore the king grants to the said Barons that the steward and marshal of the household and the clerk of the market or any other officer of the king's shall not enter the said town to do any office there nor intermeddle in any matter there by colour of their office, but that the said mayor and Barons shall have all their franchises without impediment. MEMBRANE 11.

Aug. 17. Westminster. 12 — Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the prioress and nuns of St. Leonard, Stratford, of a charter dated at Westminster, 27 April 14 Richard II. [See above, p. 325.]

Moreover King Edward III by letters patent pardoned to the said prioress and nuns 60*s.* at which during the running of a fifteenth they were assessed for a carucate of land and certain tenements in Brambleley, which 60*s.* are parcel of a sum of 107*s.* 3*d. ob.*, at which the town of Brambleley and the town of Estsmythefeld are wont to be assessed jointly during the course of a fifteenth, of which sum the prioress and nuns have had allowance in the Exchequer of King Edward III. Now however the Barons of the Exchequer make a difficulty in allowing the said letters to the damage of the prioress and nuns.

And therefore the king, of special grace, has pardoned to the prioress and nuns and their tenants of the said lands all sums of money wherein the prioress and nuns and their predecessors or the said tenants are charged in the Exchequer or elsewhere for the said lands and tenements or goods thence arising on account of any fifteenths or other quotas granted in the past to any king, which sums amount to 28*l.* 10*s.* or less ; and further has granted to the said prioress, nuns and tenants of the said lands and to the town of Estsmythefeld and Brambleley that they shall be quit of all fifteenths, aids, subsidies, taxes, tallages and other grants to the king on account of the share of the said prioress and nuns and tenants for the said lands and the goods thence arising. By p.s. [6218.]

the jurisdiction of the clerk of the market; and that the master of the college shall not be made a collector of tenths or subsidies granted to the king by the clergy of the province of Canterbury or York.

By K.

June 1. Westminster. 5 The king has learned that the predecessors of the abbot and convent of Bury St. Edmunds have had from ancient times at their town of Mildenhale, co. Suffolk, a yearly fair on the feast of St. Peter's Chains, and a weekly market there on Tuesday, which fair and market have long been discontinued because folk have gone to other fairs and markets held by other persons on the same days in other places near the town of Mildenhall under grants from preceding kings; and the king has therefore of special grace granted to the abbot and convent and their successors that in lieu of the said fair and market they shall have a weekly market on Friday at their said town and a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of Michaelmas. By K. and for 20*s.* paid in the hanaper.

MEMBRANE 2.

Nov. 1. Westminster. 1 Whereas the king's town of Drogheda in the land of Ireland situated within the counties of Loueth and Meath (Mid') is divided into two parts by the water called Boyne, whereof one part of the men and burgesses, dwelling in the said county of Loueth on the side of Uriel are governed by a mayor and two bailiffs and the other part of the men and burgesses dwelling in the said county of Meath on the part of Meath are governed by a steward and two bailiffs and have different franchises granted to them by the king's ancestors and confirmed to them by the present king and separate fee farms, so that the part in the county of Louethe towards Uriel renders 40*l.* to the Exchequer of Ireland and the part in the county of Meath towards Meath renders 40 marks, and the two parts severally take tolls and other customs from the merchants and other persons coming thither by land or water for their merchandise and other goods by virtue of their several franchises and so levy double charges on the king's lieges, whereby many disputes have arisen between the two parts, and merchants and other persons avoid (differunt) coming to the said town to the damage of the burgesses, the commonalty of the said town and the king's lieges of that part and the manifest impoverishment of the town ;

now therefore the king for the improvement of the said town and for the peace of his people and out of consideration of the losses, which the said burgesses and commonalty have sustained during war, and of their services to the king and his ancestors during war in those parts, of special grace, at the request and with the assent of the burgesses and commonalty aforesaid grants and orders to the burgesses and commonalty and their heirs and successors, that the said town with its suburbs and all the places, wherein the said burgesses and commonalty have had liberties in either county with the bounds fixed by the letters of the king's ancestors and the custom of the town, with all the bounds and precincts thereof by land or water, shall be one whole and incorporate (incorporatus) county by itself and shall be wholly separated from the counties of Loueth and Meath and shall be named the county of Drogheda and treated as a county by itself ; and that the said town shall be held by one whole fee farm to be rendered yearly at the Exchequer of Ireland by the hands of the sheriffs of that town at their account, being 100 marks at the usual terms ; and the said town with its suburbs and precincts shall of one liberty and franchise and under the government of one mayor and two sheriffs to be chosen by the burgesses and commonalty of the town from time to time, so that the name and estate of steward and bailiffs shall be wholly disused and that the town shall remain and be held of one liberty and franchise on both sides of the water ;

the mayor of the town shall be the king's escheator there ;

the mayor, sheriffs, burgesses and commonalty of the town so erected into the county of Drogheda shall have power to meet in a place within the said town yearly and to make ordinances and statutes among themselves for the wholesome governance of the town ; and in this present year the mayor, steward and bailiffs, who now are in the said town, immediately on the sight of these presents shall discharge themselves of their offices ; and the burgesses and commonalty of the town, as the burgesses and commonalty of one liberty and franchise shall lawfully proceed to the election of a mayor and sheriffs to take up the rule of the town during the remainder of the present year ; and the mayor so elected on the first occasion shall make his oath before those who were hitherto called jurats, but whom the king wills shall henceforth be called aldermen ; and afterwards when another shall be chosen he shall make oath faithfully to discharge his offices of mayor and escheator before the mayor who immediately preceded him in that office ; and the mayor and his successors, as mayors and escheators of that town shall have all the power and jurisdiction in that town and its suburbs and precincts which ought to belong to those offices ;

the burgesses and commonalty, whenever the mayor and sheriffs or either of them shall die or their offices become void for any cause, shall proceed to the election of a mayor or sheriffs or either of them and to the taking oaths from those so elected ; and the mayor so elected shall make his oath before the aldermen of the town ; and the sheriffs after their election shall make their oaths before the mayor and aldermen in due form, and shall not go outside the city for that purpose ; and their names shall be sent yearly under the common seal of the town into the Chancery of Ireland ; and the mayor and aldermen of the town and their successors shall have full power to take the oath of the said sheriffs in the hall of the 'Guihalda' of the said town, for the due performance of their office, without sueing out a writ of dedimus potestatem from the chancery or awaiting any other mandate ; and the sheriffs so to be appointed and chosen shall make their oaths as aforesaid in the said place and shall do all that belongs to sheriffs, or the office of sheriff ; to the exclusion of the escheators and sheriffs of the said two counties, and with full powers to the escheator and sheriffs of the town to do their offices in the said town ;

the sheriffs of the said town shall hold their county of Drogheda on Monday from month to month as other sheriffs do in Ireland, and their court under the liberties and franchises granted to the town as to one liberty and franchise, and shall take the profits thence arising for the common profit of the burgesses and commonalty on both sides of the water, as the bailiffs used to do previously ; the mayor, sheriffs, burgesses and commonalty shall have within the said town a common gaol for felons and other offenders ; and they shall have all the chattels called 'wayf' and 'strayf' and the chattels of felons and fugitives, escapes (escapia) and other forfeitures of chattels in aid of the said farm ; the burgesses and commonalty by themselves or by their ministers for this appointed shall levy tolls, customs and exactions from merchants and other persons coming by land and by water for the profit of the burgesses and commonalty now united ;

no burgess shall implead or be impleaded before the king or any justices without the said town of any lands and tenements within the liberty of the town nor of any trespass, agreement or contracts arising therein ; but if any of the said burgesses or commonalty or any other person will sue for (petere) any land or tenement within the said town or its precincts or complain touching any trespass, agreement or other contracts therein, he shall pursue his right or his plaint before the mayor and sheriffs of the said town according to the form of ordinances to be made thereon by the burgesses and commonalty ; and the mayor and sheriffs shall have cognisance of all pleas of trespasses, agreements, contracts and debts arising within the said town and its suburbs, with the profits thence arising, without any impediment from the king, his justices or the stewards or marshalls or clerk of the market of the household or any other minister ; so that the steward, marshall and clerk of the market shall only intermeddle in such pleas arising in the king's household between members of the household ;

the burgesses and commonalty, their heirs and successors shall have pleas of all assises of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor of all lands and tenements within the town and its precincts as well before justices of either bench in Ireland, justices assigned to take assises there and justices in eyre as before all other justices and ministers of the king in the said land of Ireland, the same to be held and taken before the mayor and sheriffs of the town in the said hall of the 'Guihalda';

the mayor shall have full power to hear, correct, reform and determine before himself in the said hall at the suit of anyone all defaults, oppressions, extorsions, misprisions, ignorances, negligences and wrongs committed by the said sheriffs in the discharge of their office and to adjuge to the aggrieved party damages proportionate to the fault;

the burgesses and commonalty of the town shall have the correction, punishment and power to enquire, hear and determine by their mayor and four of the better and more lawful men of the town to be chosen by the said mayor into all matters, plaints, defects, causes and articles belonging to the office of justice of the peace, labourers and craftsmen, as fully as such justices could do in the two said counties, and to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of other such justices; provided that the said mayor and four burgesses shall not proceed to the determination of any felony without the king's special mandate; the burgesses and commonalty shall have all fines, forfeited issues, and amercements belonging to the office of justice of the peace in the said town and it precincts to be levied by their ministers in aid of the repairs of the bridges of the town and of other daily charges; the mayor, sheriffs, burgesses and commonalty shall have the forfeiture of all victuals lawfully forfeited in the town and its precincts, to wit of bread, wine and other things not pertaining to merchandise;

neither the change in the name of steward and bailiffs nor any other cause or colour shall impair the franchises conferred upon the burgesses and commonalty, their heirs and successors, tenants and residents within the said town of Drogheda and its precincts granted by the king's progenitors and confirmed by him to the mayor, sheriffs, burgesses, tenants and residents in the said town; but all the said liberties shall be enjoyed by them as they were enjoyed by the mayor, steward and bailiffs before the change. May 6. Westminster. 17 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the citizens of Waterford of letters patent dated at Westminster, 24 November 1 Henry IV [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1399–1401, p. 242], inspecting and confirming with exceptions a charter dated at Westminster, 4 August 45 Edward III [see above, p. 219], excepting always the exceptions made in the said letters patent.

And further for the peace of the citizens who have sustained much damage in resisting the king's enemies and for the betterment and strengthening of the city which is upon the frontier (frontera) towards the king's enemies, and in order that the king's lieges may more eagerly flock to that city in proportion to its privileges, the king has hereby granted to the mayor, bailiffs, citizens and their heirs the following privileges :—

the mayor of the city shall be the king's escheator there ; and the mayor and commonalty of the city shall have all the amercements, forfeitures and other things belonging to the office of escheator of the city for the up-keep of the city ; and the mayor as mayor and escheator shall have all the power and jurisdiction in the said city and its suburbs that ought to belong to these offices ; the said mayor and escheator immediately upon election and appointment shall make oath in due form before the mayor and bailiffs of the city yearly and shall not go without the city to make this oath ; the escheator shall have the full powers of his office in the city and suburbs, as other escheators have in the land of Ireland ;

the mayor and commonalty shall have all chattels called ' wayf ' and ' strayf,' chattels of felons and fugitives and condemned persons of the liberty of the city and escapes of felons out of the liberty, and other such forfeitures, and also all forfeitures of chattels, goods and merchandise wrongfully customed within the port and liberty of the said city, to wit from Randowan and Rodybak to Portlyk, and also all ships and boats in which such goods and merchandise are found, and also fines, ransoms and forfeitures belonging to the crown from all those who do (attemptent) aught against prohibition within the said port and liberty ; the citizens and commonalty shall have the cognisance of all pleas of assizes of novel disseisin and mort d'ancestor of all lands and tenements within the city and its suburbs as fully as the justices of either bench in the land of Ireland, justices for taking assizes there, justices in eyre or any other justices have in the said land, so that such assizes shall be taken and determined before the mayor and bailiffs in the ' Guyhalda ' of the city ; the mayor and commonalty shall have the custom of the said city called ' cokett ' to be taken by the mayor and bailiffs without rendering any account to the king ; and they shall have the office of the admiralty of all matters thereto belonging from Rodybak and Randowan to Portlyk ;

the mayor and commonalty shall have correction and punishment and power to enquire, hear and determine plaints, defaults, causes and articles pertaining to the office of justice of the peace, labourers and craftsmen and other matters arising within the city and its suburbs by land or water, which could have been dealt with by the said justices for the county before this charter, to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of any other such justices ; and the mayor and commonalty shall have all fines, issues, forfeitures and amercements pertaining to or arising from the office of justice of the peace to be levied by their ministers for the up-keep of the daily charges of the city ;

if the mayor or a bailiff or anyone of the city be accused, arrested, molested or unjustly aggrieved by any deputy, justice or any other minister of the king's in Ireland, the person aggrieved may appeal from such molestations and wrongs to the king, and immediately on the notification of such appeal he shall be discharged from such arrest, provided that he find security to the mayor and bailiffs of the city for prosecuting such appeal to the king in England ;

the mayor and constables of the staple there may receive the oaths of the mayor and constables who shall be chosen from time to time, notwithstanding the contrary provision in the statute of the staple ;

no lieutenant, justice or other minister shall take the liberties of the city into the king's hands without a special mandate under the great seal of England. By K. and for 10 marks paid in the hanaper.

July 16. Westminster. 14 Whereas by the statement (insinuationem) of Richard Beauchamp, earl of Warrewik, the king's cousin, the king learns that his ancestors long since granted to the earls of Warwick and their heirs that the bailiffs, burgesses and other commons of the town of Warrewik, their heirs and successors should have a yearly fair for three days at Michaelmas, and that on that day there are six or seven other fairs in the neighbourhood, so that the said fair is of no profit; now therefore the king has hereby granted to the said earl and his heirs that the bailiffs, burgesses and other commons of the said borough shall have in lieu of that fair a yearly fair at the said borough on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Bartholomew. By p.s. [75.]

Westminster. 9 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the sovereign (superiore) and commonalty of the town of New Ross of letters patent dated at Westminster, 12 June 9 Henry IV [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1405–1408, p. 449], inspecting and confirming letters patent dated at Westminster, 1 April 1 Henry IV. [Ibid. 1399–1401, p. 325. Chartae, Privilegia et Immunitates, p. 84.]

Grant also to the sovereign and commonalty of the said town of the following articles :—

the sovereign of the town shall have cognisance of all pleas real and personal, of assises of novel disseisin, mort d'ancestor, of contracts, plaints, trespasses and other pleas of all lands, tenements, rents and services, within the said town, as fully as the justices of the king's bench (banco nostro) or justices of the common bench have by common law or custom ; and the sovereign shall be in that town escheator, coroner, inquisitor, justice of the peace, justice of labourers and craftsmen and inspector (scrutator) and clerk of the market ; he shall have full power and jurisdiction to enquire, hear and determine all points, plaints, articles and defects belonging to these offices and arising within the town, as fully as the common law or any custom stretches, with all fees, fines, amercements, forfeitures and other profits thence arising to be levied by the officers of the town for its profit ;

no lieutenant of the king, or justice of either bench, justice of the peace, labourers or craftsmen, escheator, inquisitor, sheriff, clerk of the market or other minister of the king shall enter the said franchise, or meddle in aught done therein ;

every sovereign shall take his oath before the preceding sovereign or, in default of one, before the commonalty ; provided that he shall not be bound to go outside the city for that purpose ;

none of the town shall implead or be impleaded touching any matters there done, or any lands, tenements, rents and services within the town, but all such pleas shall be before the said sovereign ;

no lieutenant, justice or other minister of the king shall seize the liberties of the said town without a special mandate from the king under the great seal of England ;

the said sovereign, bailiffs and commonalty for their support against the king's Irish enemies shall have all fines, forfeitures, issues and amercements of all things done against the crown and in violation of prohibitions, ordinances or statutes, and all other forfeitures, chattels of felons, 'wayve' and stray, escapes of felons, amercements and forfeitures of victuals, bread and ale and all other victuals, the king's custom called 'coket,' without accounting and all other customs in the said town, with all forfeitures of things not properly customed by land or water, all the foregoing to be levied by their own officers without rendering any account to the king or his ministers ;

the sovereign and commonalty shall have all the franchises, which the mayor and commonalty of the city of Waterford have by land and water and use them as they do ; the sovereign and commonalty may treat and make truce with the Irish enemies, when it is needful for the good of the town, and in time of war and peace may give and sell victuals and other goods to the said enemies for the support of the town without impeachment by the king or his ministers, notwithstanding any statutes or ordinances to the contrary. 2 HENRY V.—PART I.

1414. MEMBRANE 40.

April 23. Windsor Castle. 17 The king has heard that Richard late king of the Romans brother of King Henry III being seised of the manor of Burnham, co. Bucks, whereof the town of Bekenesfeld was a members and parcel, gave the said manor with all its appurtenances, view of frank-pledge, wards, marriages, reliefs and escheats to the monastery of Burnham, which he founded; which gift was confirmed by the king's progenitors; by virtue of which gift Elizabeth Warde, abbess of Burnham, and all her predecessors have been seised of all escheats, chattels of fugitives and felons within the said manor and within the said town of Bekenesfeld, which is a member of the said manor, until lately the abbess and her ministers have been impeded in their levying the said profits by the king's escheators; and the king considering the poverty of the said abbess and convent, at the petition of the abbess, has hereby granted to the said abbess and convent that they shall have chattels of fugitives and felons, condemned and outlawed, and all other escheats of their tenants and of residents in the said manor and in all other manors, lands and tenements, which the said abbess and convent have within the said county; and the king further considering that the abbess and convent and their predecessors have had and used at Burnham a weekly market on Thursday and a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Matthias the apostle by a grant from King Edward II (proavi nostri) and also a yearly fair at Bekenesfeld on the vigil and the day of the Ascension from time immemorial without any grant from any king, has hereby granted to the said abbess and convent and their successors a weekly market at Burnham on Thursday and a yearly fair there on the vigil, the day and the morrow of St. Matthias the apostle and a yearly fair at Bekenesfeld on the vigil and the day of the Ascension. By K.

MEMBRANE 8.

Sept. 25. Westminster. 3 — After a pious preamble [see Monasticon, Vol. VI. p. 31] foundation of a conventual house of monks of the Carthusian order upon the king's land (solo) at Shene on the north side of his manor there on a site containing 1,725 feet in length and 1,305 feet 8 inches (pollices) in breadth, and running from Hokelot by Diversbusshe on the south to Arnietteslote on the north, the said house to be called the house of Jesus of Bethleem by Shene; with gift of the said land to John Wydryngton, monk of the said order, appointed to be prior of the said place and the monks there for the site of their house and the habitation of the prior and monks and other persons afterwards to be specified and maintained by the said prior and monks, the said gift being made of special grace and sure knowledge with the assent of the king's council, to be held by the prior and monks and their successors from the king and his heirs, in frank almoin, quit of all secular exaction and service, with free access and other needful easements, for prayers and other divine services there to be done for the king's health during his life and for his soul after death and for the souls of his parents and progenitors and of all the faithful departed, and for the peace and quiet of the people and the realm, and for the maintenance of other works of piety there according to the king's ordinance thereof; with clause of warranty and licence to acquire the same notwithstanding the statute of mortmain or that the land is parcel of the king's manor of Shene aforesaid; with gift to the said prior and monks of the alien priory of Grenewyche and Leuesham, co. Kent, and all the manors, hundreds, lands and other profits in the realm of England late of the abbey of Fiscamp in Normandy now in the king's hands by reason of the war between him and those of France, to be held by the said prior and monks after the death of those who now hold the same for life or for a term of years, or sooner if that shall chance, with all thereto belonging, as fully as the present or past holders have held the same, so long as for any reason the same shall be in the king's hands, without rent (apporto), farm or account to be rendered to the king or his heirs; with licence to acquire of the said priory and all its possessions and profits belonging to the abbey of Fécamp from the abbots and convents of the chief houses of the said priory and possessions of Fécamp in the power of the King of France.

and to transfer the same with the churches appropriated thereto to themselves, or, if need be, to dissolve the appropriation of the said churches to the priory of Fécamp and to appropriate them anew, notwithstanding the statute of mortmain or any other statute touching such alien priories and possessions, or that the manors and possessions of the said priory and the possessions of Fécamp were of the gift of the king's progenitors or by them given to maintain chantries, guest-houses (hospitalitates) or other works of piety; and notwithstanding that there is here no express mention of the true value of the foregoing according to the form of the statute made thereof; and notwithstanding any other right, title or interest of the king herein; with further grant to the said prior and monks and their successors that they shall be quit of gelds, dangelds, hidages, scutages, works of castles, bridges, parks, dikes, houses, of toll, passage, payage, pontage, lestage, of all service and custom, and pecuniary gain to the king, and of essarts and regard of the forest, within their boundaries, and of shires and hundreds and suits of shires and hundreds, of pleas and plaints, and that all their lands from which murder was wont to be paid shall be quit thereof; with prohibition to the foresters and their ministers to trouble them within their bounds nor on their way in or out of the same; with further grant that the prior and monks and their successors shall be quit through all the realm of all aids, taxes, tallages, tenths, fifteenths, or other quotas whatsoever; and that although the temporal or spiritual goods of religious men in the realm may be taxed by reason of any grant made to the king by the commons or the clergy, yet the goods and possessions of the said prior and monks shall not be taxed or assessed in any way nor aught levied therefrom; and that if a tenth or other imposition be laid on the clergy of England by any pope and granted by him to the king, the said prior and monks shall be quit thereof; with further grant to the prior and monks of all fines, ransoms, forfeited issues and amercements belonging to the king for any trespasses, delicts or excesses, whereof the tenants and servants of the said prior and monks may be impeached, amerced or convicted before the justices for the conservation of the statutes and ordinances of workmen, servants and craftsmen (artificibus), so that the prior and monks may levy the same by their bailiffs by estreats of the said justices without impediment; grant also to the same that they may dig and take the issues of any mines of lead which they may find on their own several soil without impediment; and that they shall be quit throughout the realm of England of murage, quayage, picage, pavage, stallage and other such customs; and that they shall not be bound to find at the king's mandate any corrodies, pensions or maintenance for any persons by reason of the creation of new priors, but that they shall be discharged of all such. By K.

5. Letters patent under the great seal of Ireland witnessed by Thomas, archbishop of Dublin, justice of Ireland, at Dublin, on the 12th of September 2 Henry V, exemplifying letters patent under the same seal witnessed by Thomas of Lancaster, the king's steward of England, lieutenant of Ireland at Conell' 8 March 4 Henry IV to the following effect :—

The steward, bailiffs and burgesses of the town of Drogheda on the side of Meath have petitioned the king setting forth that King Edward III granted to the steward and burgesses of the said town thirty-two acres of land called 'Arondeleslond,' late of Gilbert Thedryk adjoining the said town and 18*s.* of rent late of the said Gilbert in the said town, which were the king's escheat, to be held by the said steward and burgesses and their heirs by rendering yearly to that king at the Exchequer of Ireland 50*s.* at the usual terms, and that King Richard II on the 17th of January in his 18th year by letters patent granted to the steward and burgesses the said land and rent to be held by them and their successors for the term of ten years without rendering aught to that king, as in his said letters more fully is contained ; and have prayed the king to consider the damage and loss which they, the steward, bailiffs and burgesses, have sustained in resisting the king's enemies and to grant and confirm to them the said land and rent to be held by the burgesses of the said town without rendering aught therefore, and to grant in aid of the restoration of their estate that in future the steward, bailiffs and burgesses shall not be troubled touching any arrears of the issues of the said land and rent ; and this petition by the advice of Thomas of Lancaster, steward of England, the king's lieutenant in Ireland and others of the king's council in that land the king has granted in the terms prayed

Excepting the following article 'Et si aliquis tenuerit aliquod tenementum infra metas ejusdem burgi de dono, emptione vel hereditarie per unum

MEMBRANE 2.

May 22. Westminster. 4 Whereas lately the king granted to the mayor, burgesses and commonalty of the borough of Wilton a yearly fair in the said borough on the vigil and the feast of St. Mary Magdalen, which charter has not been valid because the neighbours will not come to that fair with their merchandise by reason of the fewness of the days; now the king, of special grace and on the restoration of the said charter into the chancery, has granted to the same a yearly fair on the same feast and the three preceding days.

Nov. 12. Westminster. 3 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the prior and convent of Mountgrace of a charter dated at Westminster, 20 March 22 Richard II. [See above, p. 381.]
With further grant that the prior and convent shall have in all their lands and tenements within the precinct of their priory and house free warren and all waifs and estrayes, with power to put themselves in seisin thereof without impediment; and that they shall have all their lands, goods and chattels quit of tenths and fifteenths granted to the king by the clergy of Canterbury or York or either of them or by the layfolk of the realm, under any form of words, notwithstanding anything in such grant to the contrary of this charter.

MEMBRANE 1.

Sept. 1. Westminster. 2 Whereas King Henry IV on the 4th of November in his fourth year by letters patent [Calendar of Patent Rolls, 1401–1405, p. 170], granted to John, duke of Bedford, the manor and town of Saldeyn, co. Buckingham, to be held by him and the heirs of his body; and afterwards the same king in the 6th year of his reign by a bill endorsed and in the custody of the keeper of the privy seal granted to the said John certain members and parcels which Robert filz Neell, knight, and John Nowers, knight, late lords of the said manor, had in their time, whereof no letters patent were ever made, because Joan, the king's mother, queen of England, then held and still holds certain of the said members and parcels as parcel of her dower, and other persons also hold divers parcels for the term of their life ;

now, since the said duke has restored the said letters to the king in his chancery to be cancelled, the king has hereby given to his said brother the manor and town of Saldeyn alias Salden with all appurtenances in the counties of Buckingham and Bedford belonging to the said manor in the times of the said Robert filz Nell or John Nowers late tenants of the said manors, and also the remainders of all the manors, lands and so forth in the towns of Weston Turvyle, Hoggeston, Bechampton, Horwode Magna, Horwode Parva, Kymbell, Wendover, Ewell, Luton, and Fynellesgrove, which the said Robert and John Nowers successively held, and whereof the said queen holds part in dower and other persons hold part for the terms of their lives, to be held by the king's said brother and the heirs of his body, with all thereto belonging and with hidages, beau pleader (pulchra placitatione), money called 'Frithsilver,' bondmen and those that go with them, wayfes, strays, chattels of fugitives and felons including suicides, and of outlaws, being tenants of or residents within the said manor and town and other casualties and rights thereto pertaining, as freely as the said Robert and John Nowers or any of the king's progenitors held the same, without rendering aught to the king ; notwithstanding the omission of the true value of the foregoing ;

with further grant to the king's said brother and his heirs of a weekly market on Wednesday at their manor of Muresle, co. Buckingham, which is a member of the said manor of Salden, and of two yearly fairs, one on the vigil, the day and the morrow of the Assumption and the other on the vigil, the day and the morrow of the Nativity of St. Mary ;

with grant of free warren in all their demesne lands in Saldeyn, Muresle, Cunebell, Wycombe, and Wouburne, co. Buckingham, pursuant to charters of the king's progenitors granted to the then tenants of these manors ; and also of free warren in all their demesne lands in the other places, when the remainders fall in. By K.

Jan. 2. Westminster. 1 Grant, of special grace, to Ralph, earl of Westmoreland, the king's cousin, and his heirs of free chace in all their demesne lands in Burton in Bisshopdale, Walden, Westwitton and Penhill. By K.

5 HENRY V.

1417. MEMBRANE 5.

May 10. Reading. 2 Grant, of special grace, to the king's cousin, Richard de Bello Campo, earl of Warrewyk, and his heirs of a weekly market on Tuesday in the town of Walshale, co. Stafford, and of two yearly fairs there, one on the feast of St. John before the Latin Gate and the other on the feast of SS. Simon and Jude. By K.

July 21. Porchester. 1 Inspeximus and confirmation, with clause licet, in favour of the citizens and commonalty of the city of Norwich of the following :—

1. A charter dated at Westminster, 6 February 1 Henry IV. [See above, p. 405.]
2. A charter dated at Westminster, 28 January 5 Henry IV. [See above, p. 421.]

Moreover the king considering that many suits and dissensions have arisen in the said city between the citizens (concives) and inhabitants touching the choosing of the mayor and sheriffs of the city and the other governors and ministers thereof, owing to the fact that in the foregoing charters no special form of election is contained, and desiring to put an end to the said disputes, of special grace and at the request of the said citizens and commonalty hereby grants as follows ;

the citizens and commonalty shall chose twenty-four citizens (concives) of the city to be aldermen and sixty other citizens for the common council of that city in the following manner, which twenty-four citizens (concives) shall have the name of aldermen of the city of Norwich ; the mayor and sheriffs shall be chosen yearly as follows ; all the citizens of the said city there residing, who wish to take part in the election of mayor, shall yearly on the first of May freely meet at the 'Guyhalda' of the city, and being there the majority of them shall name two citizens dwelling in the city of the more sufficient and honourable persons among the twenty-four aldermen, of whom both have been mayor or sheriff of the city but not mayor within the preceding three years, of the which two so named the majority of the aldermen then present shall by scrutiny choose one to be mayor, and if in this election or nomination the voices on either side shall be equal, the voice of the mayor then in office shall be reckoned for two ; and for the election of the sheriffs of the city the following form shall be observed ; in each year on the day of the nativity of St. Mary at a meeting of the mayor and aldermen and the citizens wishing to take part in the election, the mayor and aldermen or the majority of those there present shall freely choose a fit person to be sheriff and the citizens (concives) there or the majority of them shall also choose a fit person to be sheriff, and these two so chosen shall be sheriffs of the city from the Michaelmas following for one year ;

the sixty citizens for the common council of the city of Norwich shall be elected by the four wards of the said city in the manner following ; the mayor of the city shall yearly warn all the citizens

dwelling and having lodgings (hospicia) by themselves in the ward of Conisford to be at the Guildhall on the Monday after Passion Sunday, on which day the citizens there appearing or the greater part of them shall choose twelve sufficient men of that ward to be of the common council of the city for that year; and in like manner it shall be done for the ward of Mancroft on the following Tuesday for the election of sixteen sufficient men; and on the following Wednesday for the ward of Wymer for the election of twenty sufficient men; and on the following Thursday for the ward beyond the Water for the election of twelve sufficient men; and all these sixty citizens (concives) so chosen shall form the common council of the city and shall have such power as the common councillors (communarii) elected for the common council of the city of London have;

the twenty-four aldermen shall be chosen by the commonalty of the city from the worthier and more sufficient citizens there dwelling; and they on election shall hold their state and degree for life unless a reasonable cause of removal arise; and the names of the twenty-four aldermen shall be recited yearly before the commonalty of the city of Norwich in the following manner; on the Monday after Passion Sunday six names shall be recited to the commonalty of the ward of Conisford for the said ward; on the following Tuesday six names in like manner shall be recited to the commonalty of the ward of Mancroft; on the following Wednesday six names shall be recited to the commonalty of the ward of Wymer; and on the following Thursday six names shall be recited to the commonalty of the ward beyond the Water; all these recitations and appointments shall be made in the presence of the mayor; and if it happen that one or more of the twenty-four aldermen have died or been removed before that day, the mayor shall warn the ward affected to meet at the Guildhall to elect persons to fill such vacancies; and the twenty-four aldermen so elected shall be charged, removed and discharged in the manner in which the twenty-four aldermen of London are discharged and charged; and if it shall appear to the mayor that any persons of the said wards in the election of the aldermen will not elect the worthiest and most sufficient persons of the city for any cause, the mayor shall have such part and power of correction in the said elections as the mayor of the city of London has there at present; and if any customs and ordinances hitherto used in the said city of Norwich are in any part difficult or defective, so that new cases arising in the city, where there was no remedy previously ordained, need amending, then the mayor and aldermen or the majority of them with the consent of the sixty citizens (concivium) of the common council or the majority of them shall have power to make new ordinances in such cases, provided that these be for the benefit of the king and his people and consonant to right reason.
